Premier Doubts German People Know What Was Done in Invaded Countries.

DR. SIMONS PROTESTS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 3.—Premier Lloyd George today delivered an ultimatum to Germany in reply to the proposals made by Dr. Simons. He gave Germany four days in which to accept the Allies' terms or submit an offer worthy of consideration.

Failing a favorable reply by Monday next, the Allies will immediately occupy Duisburg, Ruhrort and Duesseldorf, on the right bank of the Rhine, levy a tax on the sale price of German goods in allied countries and establish a customs line on the Rhine.

Mr. Lloyd George's speech made a remarkable impression. It enlisted the full sympathy of all the allied representatives, including Count Sforza, the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, and aroused the anger of the Germans. The German delegates were particularly annoyed at the definite nature of the penalties and the equally definite way in which Mr. Lloyd George stated them.

There was no doubt that the French and British experts, military and judicial, were in full agreement as to the measures that could be taken to compel German acquiescence in the terms of the Versailles Treaty.

TEXT OF LLOYD GEORGE'S SPEECH.

Mr. Lloyd George said:

"Dr. Simons and Gentlemen—I have been asked by my colleagues of the British and Allied Governments to make a statement on their behalf in reply to the speech delivered by Dr. Simons on Tuesday and to the document which he subsequently put in.

"The Allied Governments consider that the statement made by Dr. Simons on behalf of the German Government constitutes a definite challenge of the fundamental conditions of the Treaty of Versailles and must be dealt with accordingly.

"The Paris proposals, following the line of Boulogne and Brussels, involved substantial relaxation of the full demand of the treaty, both in respect of disarmament and reparation. These proposals were tendered in a spirit of concession to induce an amicable settlement with Germany. The counterproposals mock the treaty.

"The Allies have come to that conclusion not only from the character of these counter-proposals themselves, but also from perusal of speeches delivered by Dr. Simons in Germany after the Paris proposals and the support accorded to those speeches in the German press and Reichstag.

"One of the most serious statements made by him was contained in a speech delivered, if I recollect rightly, at Stuttgart, when he repudiated German responsibility for the war. This repudiation was acclaimed throughout Germany and, therefore, may be taken to represent the real attitude of Germany toward the Treaty of Peace. For the Allies German responsibility for the war is fundamental. It is the basis upon which the structure of the Treaty has been erected, and if that acknowledgment is repudiated or abandoned the Treaty is destroyed.

Treaty's Very Foundation Challenged.

"The Allies, therefore, feel that they have to take into account the fact that the German Government, with the apparent support of German public opinion, is challenging the very foundation of the Treaty of Versailles.

"Proposals such as those made by Dr. Simons are simply the necessary corollary of this new attitude. If Germany approaches her obligations in that frame of mind, such proposals are inevitable. We wish, therefore, once and for all to make it quite clear that German responsibility for the war must be treated by the Allies as a chose jugée.

"The treaty of Frankfort in 1871 was based on the assumption that France was in the wrong and consequently Germany not merely demanded reparation but payment by France of the whole cost of the war. Germany would never permit France to challenge that verdict, and we must insist that the verdict of the late war supported as it was by the declared assent of almost the whole of the civilized world, must be respected. Until Germany accepts that position and consents to interpret her obligations accordingly, these conferences will be futile.

"Perusal of speeches delivered in Germany and of articles appearing in the German press have driven me reluctantly

BERLIN, March 3.—The German press, though as pessimistic as ever, expresses astonishment at the indignation with which the English and French press received the German proposals. That even the liberal English press joins this chorus and accuses Simons of not being able to judge his opponent's psychology, which loses his last chance of coming to an understanding, puzzles the papers especially.

Theodore Wolff in the Tageblatt says:

"Lloyd George may have failed at the first moment to realize the whole magnitude of the German offer, but nobody can believe that after two days, during which those proposals were examined by English financial experts, the English Premier should still be under misapprehension. It matters little what noisy newspapers say, the decision now lies with Lloyd George and Briand, who know quite well what we offer."

The Lokal-Anzeiger says:

"Until now hostile threats have failed to make any impression. There is too much harmony and exactness in this sudden rattling of swords, which reveals an able stage manager behind the scenes. We shall see even more stunning effects of this kind in the next few days, but they must not wear out our nerves, because it is like this: You can only threaten with a revolver until you've fired. After you've fired your threat is worth nothing.

"The French may threaten to invade certain parts of Germany, which doubtless will mean an awful trial for those of our countrymen who will then make the personal acquaintance of civilization as practiced by white and colored Frenchmen.

But the German federation on the whole would get into a much better political and tactical position, because by unlawfully occupying German territory France would simply tear the Versailles Treaty to pieces, which would deliver us of all its obligations. All the Entente control commissions would have to leave Germany. Our position would be what it would have been in 1919 had we not in a moment of weakness signed that treaty. The question of peace would have to be completely revised. French invasion might secure much desired 'glory' but nothing like reparation, and the French nation would soon deplore the state of affairs created by its blind chauvinism that the French themselves will wish to end speedily. We can only repeat our advice to the German nation and Simons in London: 'Bleibe hart.'"

The noon papers publishing the London news that Germany will have four days to accept the Paris program raise

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR IMBRIE & CO.

LIABILITIES ARE $11,810,000

Assets $13,500,000 and Forced Liquidation Might Endanger the Firm's Banking Depositors.

Receivers in equity for Imbrie & Co., members of the Stock Exchange, with officers at 61 Broadway, were appointed yesterday by Judge Martin T. Manton, in the United States District Court. The complainant in the suit was the Beaver Board Company, with claims "upward of $5,000."

The petition for the receiver stated that the liabilities of the defendant company on Dec. 31 were $11,810,000 and that the assets at that time exceeded $13,500,000. The defendant, said the petition, dealt in corporation, municipal and Government securities, railroad and industrial bonds, and also carried on a private banking business.

Although the assets of Imbrie & Co. have not been impaired since Jan. 1, according to the petition, it was said that forced liquidation would depress the value of these securities, and loss might ensue to the creditors and depositors in the banking department. The defendant, it was alleged, was short of cash and other liquid assets, and a large part of its securities had been pledged with local banks.

John B. Johnstone and Theodore Smith were named receivers. Their joint bond was fixed at $50,000.

Rabenold & Scribner, attorneys for Imbrie & Co., filed a statement in which it was said that the defendant admitted the allegations and consented to the receivership. The members of the firm—James Imbrie, William Morris Imbrie, Roswell C. Tripp, Charles G. West Jr., David T. Wells, Waldo S. Kendall and William Minot—were made defendants in the suit.

Imbrie & Co. and their attorneys refused to make any comment on the receivership. Pennie, Davis, Marvin & Edmonds, attorneys for the Beaver Board Company, who filed the petition, also refused to make comment.

In Wall Street little could be learned of the transactions leading to the receivership. Last December, it was remembered, Imbrie & Co. had brought out an issue of $5,000,000 twelve-year 8 per cent. sinking fund gold notes of the Beaver Board Company, but it could not be learned whether this transaction in any way was concerned with the present action.

Imbrie & Co. was one of the oldest houses on the Stock Exchange. As William Morris Imbrie & Co., the firm dates back to Oct. 2, 1882. A few years ago its style was changed to Imbrie & Co. The present partnership dates from Aug. 1, 1918.

In 1913 the firm was suspended from the Exchange for a period of six months on charges of having handled the account of a bank employe in violation of the Exchange rules.

U. S. Submarines O-7 and O-8 Run Aground; Radio From Buzzard's Bay for Assistance

Wireless messages, calling for assistance from the United States submarine O-7, in distress about three miles east of Race Rock, Wilerness Point, in Long Island Sound, and the submarine O-8, which ran ashore between Pekinese and Gull Islands in Buzzard's Bay, were received at 10 o'clock last night at the district office of the United States Coast Guard at the Barge Office. The O-7 ran upon a ledge off Wilderness Point, but the damage, if any, was not reported. A message from this boat, which was picked up by local amateur wireless operators, said:

"How long will it take for assistance? We need help at once."

This message was relayed to the destroyer Gresham and by it to the office of the commanding officer of the Coast Guard. Immediately instructions were sent to New London, Conn., the nearest naval base, to render assistance.

Preparations were made at once at New London to dispatch Eagle Boat 33, Submarine O-4 and a tug to go to the aid of the submarines. A tug also was ordered to proceed from this port to give any aid that might be necessary, and word to that effect was dispatched to the vessels in distress.

Soon there came a reply from the O-7 saying that no additional assistance would be required. This was believed to mean that neither the submarine nor her crew were in immediate danger.

The latest information from the O-8 was that a tug was standing by and that the prospects were good for refloating at high tide.

The local Coast Guard officers were informed that heavy weather had been incurred by the submarines while cruising in the waters near New London. The O-8 went ashore about a mile from theh Cuttychunk Coast Guard Station, but it was said that she was in no immediate danger at any time.

The O-8 was bound from Boston to New London, and carried a crew of about fifty men.

Two Fast Airplanes to Deliver The Times In Washington for Inauguration Day

Two airplanes, carrying several thousand copies of the latest city edition of this morning's NEW YORK TIMES, will leave Hazelhurst Field, Mineola, at 5 o'clock this morning and fly to Washington, where they are expected to arrive between 7:15 and 7:30 o'clock, ahead of the copies of New York papers sent nearly four hours earlier in the usual way by train. These copies of THE TIMES will contain the latest news, and, being distributed in Washington hardly more than three hours after the actual printing in New York, will make interesting souvenirs of the day of President Harding's inauguration.

The planes will be piloted by R. H. Depew and C. S. Jones. They are Curtiss planes, of 150 horsepower, capable of a speed of 100 miles an hour. The route will be over Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore to College Park, Md., a distance of 200 miles.

MRS. R. T. WILSON SUMMONED TO COURT

"PEEVISHNESS," SHE SAYS

The story of a dinner party and musicale given by Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, in her studio at 130 West Fifty-seventh Street, will be told in the West Fifty-fourth Street police court this afternoon when Mrs. Wilson answers a summons demanding that she reply to a technical charge of disorderly conduct made by Francis Newton, who occupies the apartment beneath her.

Mrs. Wilson is fond of music and at most of her entertainments has had prominent singers and musicians entertain her guests. Mr. Newton and Childe Hassam, the artist, fellow tenants, have objected to the sound of 'cello and violin after midnight. Mr. Hassam, in particular, has been upset about Mrs. Wilson's musical inclinations, and on several occasions has either sent or caused to be sent by an officer of the co-operative association, which owns the apartment, notes asking Mrs. Wilson not to do it again.

The climax to these complaints came on Sunday, Feb. 20, when in the midst of a musicale attended by socially prominent persons two policemen knocked on the door and announced that they were from the West Forty-seventh Street police station, and that as the result of a complaint the fervor of the musicians must be restrained. They remained for some time, during which the music was subdued to the suggestion of tragedy, and the guests conversed in carefully modulated tones.

Thought Some One was "Peevish."

Mrs. Wilson was both indignant and amused yesterday when she admitted receiving the summons to court, and told of the series of incidents which led up to it. She said that it appeared to her that some one was a bit peevish, and that it hardly seemed necessary to drag a woman into a police court when effective protest could have been made in some other way.

"This is my first Winter in New York for some time," she said. "There seems to be no personal liberty left in this country. I think I will go to Italy by and by and spend my declining years there. How any one could object to the music I have had here is a mystery to me. Some of my neighbors have told me that they could not hear it at all, and one told me that she left her door open so she could hear. Several of them are going to court with me tomorrow to support my contention that there was nothing in any of my entertainments to which any one could take the slightest exception."

The gathering on Feb. 20, which was the night of the severe snowstorm, was a large one. Mrs. Wilson's evenings have been popular among her friends, who include many socially prominent persons. Mrs. Wilson, who was Miss Marion S. Mason of Boston, is related to the Vanderbilts and Goelets through her husband, Richard T. Wilson. He is a brother of M. Orme Wilson, Mrs. Ogden Goelet and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

The list of Mrs. Wilson's guests would not suggest that it was an affair which would call for police intervention. At the dinner which preceded the entertainment were Mrs. Horatio Slater, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Hunt, Mrs. James Lowell Putnam, Albert Morris Bagby, Mrs. Chauncy Olcott, Mrs. James B. Haggin, Mrs. Alfred M. Beadleston, Mrs. Oakleigh Rhinelander, Harris Brown, Chester Allen Arthur, Major F. M. Guardabassi and Robert McKee. Those who arrived after the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Frank A. Munsey and other friends.

Musicale Given in Large Studio.

The studio is a large one on the ninth floor, and it was in this that the musicale was held. Just above it lives Mr. Hassam and just below it Mr. Newton, who made the complaint yesterday. The musicians were Arturo Bonucci, 'cellist, and Guido Agosti, pianist.

They were in full song, when shortly before midnight there came a ring at the door, and to Mrs. Wilson's amazement, she found that two apologetic policemen were there under instructions to stop the "noise." There was nothing to do but invite them in, Mrs. Wilson said, which she did, and asked them to make themselves thoroughly at home. The policemen seemed to be much more put out than did Mrs. Wilson.

"They stayed here," she said, "and after that our music was barely audible. We sat around and talked in low tones until the party broke up. Frank Pollock did a few imitations, which helped pass the time. The policemen who stayed did not seem at all happy, and one of them, I believe, went down and helped some of the guests reach their cars through the snow. It was a miserable night, as you may remember."

Mrs. Wilson was angry at the method taken to protest against her music, and

WILSON AND COLBY TO START LAW FIRM

Announcement a Big Surprise to Washington—Offices to Be There and in New York.

TO APPLY TO HIGH COURT

President Will Seek Admission to Its Bar—Has Not Practiced Since 1885.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Wilson and Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby will form a partnership and begin the practice of law soon after they retire from office tomorrow.

Formal announcement to this effect was made at the White House today. It came as a great surprise to even the closest friends of the President and Mr. Colby.

The White House statement read:

"The President made the announcement today that at the conclusion of his term of office he would resume the practice of law, forming a partnership with the Secretary of State, Bainbridge Colby. The firm will have offices in New York and Washington."

No further details were forthcoming from the White House. Secretary Joseph P. Tumulty, who will also begin the practice of law shortly, said that the announcement spoke for itself. It is the intention of President Wilson and Mr. Colby to open offices in New York and this city as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made. Mr. Colby, it is understood, will be in active charge of the New York offices, making frequent trips to Washington to consult with President Wilson, who will spend most of his time here.

The President's health, of course, will largely control the amount of work he will be able to do in the new venture. It was said at the White House today that he was feeling greatly improved. He has taken an intense interest in the plan for practicing law and is confident that his strength will be sufficient to permit the devotion of much of his time to the work.

Look to International Field.

It was the belief here that the President and Mr. Colby would make a specialty of cases in which international law and relations would play a large part. The President has had a remarkable opportunity to acquaint himself with international relationships, and Secretary Colby, by reason of his work for the Government as a member of the Shipping Board and as Secretary of State, is said to be in a position in this respect second only to that in which the President is placed. Mr. Colby was in Europe for the Shipping Board. He also had an opportunity to study conditions in South and Central America during his recent visit there as the representative of the Government.

The fact that President Wilson, although he was a graduate of the Law School of the University of Virginia in 1881, had devoted but little of his time to the practice of law and turned early from that profession to become a teacher, added to the surprise among his friends. The President has customarily referred to the days when he practiced law as of minor importance in his career. After his graduation from the University of Virginia in 1881 he practiced at Atlanta, Ga., during 1882 and a part of 1883. So far as is known, he was not swamped with business, but he was an eager reader and student and is credited with having laid a firm foundation in the law which at one time or another has aided him materially in his later life.

Gave Up Practice in 1885.

In 1883 Mr. Wilson went to Baltimore and took up post-graduate work at the Johns Hopkins University. He had some cases in the courts of Baltimore, but in 1885 he gave up the law to take the Chair of History and Political Economy at Bryn Mawr College, later becoming a professor and President of Princeton University.

One of the references made by President Wilson to his career as a lawyer was at the conference with the members of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate at the White House on Aug. 19, 1919. The question of the "moral obligation" assumed by the United States under Article X. of the League of Nations covenant was being debated. Discussing the interpretation which might be put on the article, the President said:

"My experience as a lawyer was not very long, but that experience would teach me that the language of a contract is always part of the debatable matter, and I can testify that in our discussion in the commission in the League of Nations we did not discuss ideas half as much as we discussed phraseology."

Secretary Colby was so busy with conferences with the incoming Secretary of State, Charles E. Hughes, and Henry P. Fletcher, the Under Secretary of State in the new Administration, that he had little time today to discuss his plans for the practice of law with President Wilson. As soon as he is able to shake off the responsibilities of office he will begin preparations for opening the law offices.

It was stated at the White House that President Wilson would apply to the

Mr. and Mrs. Harding at White House Have Tea With President and Mrs. Wilson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Harding paid a brief visit of courtesy early this evening at the White House and had tea with President and Mrs. Wilson.

The call lasted twenty minutes. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson received their guests in the Red Room at 6:30 o'clock. At 6:50 the President-elect and Mrs. Harding left the White House and returned to the Hotel Willard.

It was the first meeting between Mr. Harding and President Wilson since the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate paid its famous visit to the White House in August, 1919, and questioned President Wilson at length on the League of Nations covenant. Mr. Harding and the President then had a spirited discussion on the question of obligation imposed on the United States by the covenant to go to war in possible future contingencies.

Since his election as President Mr. Harding has paid a call at the White House and left his card, but had not seen the President. Mrs. Harding, however, called a number of weeks ago and was shown over the White House by Mrs. Wilson.

In announcing in the afternoon that he and Mrs. Harding intended to make the call, Mr. Harding said that he was gladly conforming to a custom. The precedent for a brief visit of courtesy was set by President Wilson, who in 1912 declined an invitation to spend a week-end at the White House, but paid a brief call on President Taft on the eve of the inauguration. Before that time the outgoing President had sometimes dined the incoming one at the White House on the day before the inauguration ceremony.

Fair and Cold Weather For Inauguration Day

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Visitors in Washington for the simple ceremonies attending tomorrow's inauguration of President-elect Harding were assured tonight by the Weather Bureau of favorable weather conditions.

"The weather in Washington on Friday, March 4," said a special forecast issued tonight, "will be fair and cold with fresh northwest winds. The temperature will be near freezing Friday morning."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Crowded hours, a foretaste of the duties that await him in office, were the lot of President-elect Harding today from the time he arrived in Washington in early afternoon until late this evening.

During that period there was hardly a breathing spell between events, which included a visit with Mrs. Harding to the White House, where they had tea with President and Mrs. Wilson; a call of condolence on Mrs. Champ Clark, whose husband died yesterday, and a dinner party given by Carmi Thompson of Ironton, Ohio.

Minor incidents of the day for the incoming Executive were a conference with the Congressional committee on the plans for tomorrow's ceremony and a chat with newspaper correspondents late in the afternoon.

With the President-elect's arrival, gossip about diplomatic and other important appointments took on new fervor, Colonel George Harvey as Ambassador to Great Britain and Myron T. Herrick as Ambassador to France a second time are thought to be probabilities.

The Harding special train from Marion reached the Union Station at 1 P. M., half an hour ahead of its schedule, as a result of a nonstop run from Harrisburg to Baltimore, the first in the history of the Pennsylvania Railroad, it is said. This early arrival disappointed a host of visitors, who went to the station too late to catch a glimpse of the President-elect and Mrs. Harding.

Swift Trip From Harrisburg.

It was at Harrisburg that Mr. Harding said to "Tom" Lipsett, a veteran Pennsylvania Railroad man who has handled many Presidential trips, "How soon can you get us to Washington?"

"Whenever you want to get there, Senator," Mr. Lipsett replied.

"Well, if I could," said Mr. Harding, "I'd like to get into Washington at 1 o'clock, but that's half an hour ahead of our schedule."

"You'll be there," answered Mr. Lipsett, and the special train with its two carloads of Marion friends of the Hardings raced at great speed toward the national capital.

Railroad men lined the tracks in the Washington yards and waved their caps as the train drew in, while several hundred people pressed against the train gates of the Union Station. Their roar of greeting as Mr. and Mrs. Harding appeared on the rear platform of their private car was vociferous.

Vice President-elect Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge met the Hardings at the station, and together they faced the photographers. Messrs. Hendrick, Kutz and Miss Mabel Boardman, Commissioners of the District of Columbia, welcomed the Hardings and conducted them to automobiles which took them to the Willard. Few persons along the route recognized the President-elect, but at the hotel 500 persons on the sidewalk and in the lobby gave him a hearty greeting.

Senators Knox and Lodge of the Congressional Committee on Arrangements were among the first to see Mr. Harding, who left all last-minute plans in their hands. In their conference, which lasted half an hour, nothing but inauguration matters were discussed. One result of their talk was a decision of Mr. Harding to call upon the President and Mrs. Wilson.

At 3 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Harding left the hotel under escort of motorcycle police, and drove to Congress Hall Hotel to call upon Mrs. Champ Clark.

Talks to Fifty Correspondents.

NAVY BILL GIVEN UP, BLOCKED BY BORAH

ARMY CUT FACING A VETO

$18,000,000 Voted for Sick Soldiers—Congress's General Record Scant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Although the Sundry Civil bill, carrying appropriations of $410,000,000, was passed by the Senate at 12:57 o'clock this morning after facing defeat for many hours, the Navy Appropriation bill has been abandoned by its friends.

The Senate and House had been in deadlock for days over the Sundry Civil bill, owing to the House's refusal to accept the Senate amendment appropriating $10,000,000 to continue work on the Government nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala. Tonight the House refused for the second time to concur in the amendment, the vote being 207 to 144.

The House at 12:35 o'clock this morning took a recess until 2 A. M. to wait for the action of the Senate on the bill. The Senate passed the bill a short time later without a rollcall. Through acceptance of the House's refusal to allow the $10,000,000 appropriation for Muscle Shoals to be included, the bill was saved. The Senate then took a recess until 10:30 A. M.

At 2 o'clock this morning the House met again, and upon learning that the Senate had receded from its amendment concerning the Muscle Shoals nitrate plant, which meant an agreement with the position of the House, a further recess was taken until 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Deplore Navy Bill's Failure.

The failure of naval legislation is a bitter pill for a big majority of Senators. Senator Simmons, the ranking Democratic member of the Committee on Finance, voiced on the floor his resentment against the action of "two or three Senators" in setting up their judgment against that of a great majority of the Senators on both sides of the Chamber.

For five hours the Naval bill was debated, but at no time was there even a remote chance of any of the amendments coming to a vote. Finally Senator Poindexter, in charge of the bill, admitted that in his opinion the fight was hopeless and moved that the bill be laid aside in favor of other legislation.

Senator Underwood, the Democratic leader, placed much of the blame for the loss of the Naval bill on the shoulders of Senator Poindexter. Mr. Underwood was one of the most ardent supporters of the bill.

"Candor," said Senator Underwood, "compels me to say that if this great bill fails, its failure lies at the door of the Senator from Washington, because of his inability to properly handle his bill before the Senate of the United States."

Every effort was made both on the floor and in cloak rooms to satisfy the opponents of the bill, particularly Senators Borah and King, who have led the fight from the beginning against the measure. Mr. Borah made it plain that he had no intention of permitting naval legislation at this session. He was willing, he said, to shoulder his part of the blame.

Senator Hale of Maine suggested that it might be possible for the Senate to make important concessions which would reduce the amount carried in the bill by many millions, but Senator Borah replied that even this would not satisfy him in agreeing to its enactment at this time.

Underwood Blames Poindexter.

Senator Underwood's criticism of Senator Poindexter's handling of the bill followed a reference by Mr. Poindexter to the fact that Mr. Underwood had directed the fight for the Muscle Shoals $10,000,000 appropriation in the Sundry Civil bill. He intimated that the Sundry Civil bill would have been enacted long

WILSON TARIFF VETO SUSTAINED BY HOUSE

MESSAGE BROUGHT CHEERS

It Declares This Is Not the Time to Contract Foreign Trade and to Increase Costs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, March 4.—President Wilson's veto of the Fordney Tariff bill was upheld by the House just after midnight this morning. The vote was 201 to 132.

The House thus failed to override the veto by twenty-two votes. The bill is now dead, as a defeat of the veto by the Senate would not affect its fate. Some Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee, including Treadway of Massachusetts, Bacharach of Pennsylvania and Tilson of Connecticut, voted to sustain the veto.

President Wilson's message was read to the House shortly before 6 o'clock last evening, and as the Clerk read it slowly and clearly, the members, irrespective of party, appeared to be greatly impressed. Democrats jumped to their feet and cheered as the final sentence fell from the lips of the Clerk.

While the veto was expected and the Republicans are prepared to consider legislation to take its place in conference with Mr. Harding during the recess, the Republican leaders had not looked for such a strong document, which not only offered reasons for the veto, but predicted the doom of the party which attempts to write a tariff that would increase the high-living costs.

The House listened soberly and attentively to this, the final message of President Wilson. Even Republicans who had opposed everything for which the President has contended appeared to be sympathetic. The jollity and abandon that usually prevails in the House at the end of a session were absent. There was only respect shown by both parties for the message, pronounced by even bitter critics as a statesmanlike and fair discussion of a hastily prepared tariff bill.

"Clearly this is no time for the erection of high tariff barriers," the message concluded. "It would strike a blow at large and successful efforts which have been made by many of our great industries to place themselves on an export basis. It would stand in the way of normal readjustment of business conditions throughout the world which is vital to the welfare of this country as to that of all the other nations. The United States has a duty to itself as well as to the world, and it can discharge this duty by widening, not by contracting, its world markets."

Text of Wilson's Veto Message.

The House of Representatives—I return herewith without my approval H. R. 15,275, an act imposing temporary duties upon certain agricultural products to meet present emergencies, to provide revenue and for other purposes.

The title of this measure indicates that it has several purposes. The report of the Committee on Ways and Means reveals that its principal object is to furnish relief to certain producers in the nation who have been unable to discover satisfactory markets in foreign countries for their products and whose prices have fallen.

Very little reflection would lead any one to conclude that the measure would not furnish in any substantial degree the relief sought by the producers of most of the staple commodities which it covers. This nation has been for very many years a large exporter of agricultural products. For nearly a generation before it entered the European war its exports exceeded its imports of agricultural commodities by from approximately $200,000,000 to more than $500,000,000. In recent years this excess has greatly increased, and in 1919 reached the huge the newspaper men here before I assume the office of President," Mr. Harding said. "As you know, I am just a newspaper man myself, but today I have really nothing to offer other than an invitation for your friendly co-operation to make the incoming Administration a success. And I have no news to give you now, for your energetic colleagues who have been with me for several months have been continuously taking from me everything I have had to offer.

"I might suggest to you this afternoon that I hope as early as possible to make arrangements so that we shall be intimately in touch with one another, and so that you will be in close touch with the executive establishment I promise you, furthermore, every courtesy becoming the office.

"And I assure you that you will be just as welcome at the White House as I would wish to be welcome myself were I in your place. In other words, I wish to do as I would be done by. And if you will do as much for me I shall be happy.

"Nothing has happened that would make a story of any sort today. I suppose you want to know, however, that I satisfied the longing of my own heart by calling upon Mrs. Clark and expressing my sympathy over the loss of Speaker Clark. Mrs. Harding and I will very gladly, following the custom, call at the White House this afternoon before dinner."

When talking with newspapermen in the past it has been Mr. Harding's practice to answer any questions, but as he glanced at the half hundred correspondents today he remarked with a smile:

"You wouldn't want me to run a fire of interrogation tonight, I am sure."

"We can get along without that tonight, Senator," said one.

"Well," replied Mr. Harding, "I know that we are going to get along together. I am sure that I would not want anybody about me not courteous to representatives of the press. Some of you wield partisan pens and if I can't reach you with courtesy I will becomingly defy you."

Confers With Hughes and Davis.

Right after this Mr. Harding had a short conference with Charles E. Hughes, the coming Secretary of State, and Henry P. Fletcher, his prospective assistant.

James J. Davis of Pittsburgh and Indiana, whom Mr. Harding announced this morning as the next Secretary of Labor at the same time that George B. Christian Jr. of Marion was announced as the President's secretary, also saw Mr. Harding for a few minutes.

The dinner given by Carmi Thompson in honor of the Hardings was served in the Cabinet Room of the Willard. These attended:

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gallagher, Mr. and Mrs. Matthews Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Otis, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund S. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. George Martin, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Grasselli, Mrs. Rollin H. White, John L. Sherwin, Leonard C. Hanna Jr., Corliss E. Sullivan and Donald S. Andrews, all of Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean and Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis of Washington, Jess W. Smith, Washington Court House, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Baird R. Tewksbury of Columbus, Mrs. Paul Moore of Convent, N. J., and Mrs. Edward S. Moore of New York.

Will Add to White House Staff.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Following the arrival of President-elect Harding at his hotel a stream of callers, including many members of the Republican National Committee, now in session here, poured in to pay their respects.

Inauguration plans and the legislative situation confronting Congress in its closing hours were discussed by Mr. Harding and Senator Knox, Harry M. Daugherty, who is to be Attorney General; John W. Weeks, selected for Secretary of War, and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts.

It became known during the day that virtually the entire White House staff which is to serve with Mr. Christian, the new President's secretary, had been chosen, although their respective positions are yet to be assigned.

Rudolph Forster, executive clerk since the first Roosevelt Administration, is to retain his place, which ranks next to that of Mr. Christian. Several others who have been in clerical positions for years will also hold over into the Harding Administration.

The secretarial force is to be augmented by the appointment of James Sloan, a former White House Secret Service man; William Hard, former Secretary of the Ohio State Committee, and Judson C. Welliver, formerly a Washington newspaper man. All three have been connected with the Harding headquarters in Marion since the campaign began.

A van load of the belongings of President-elect Harding appeared at the main entrance of the White House within two hours after Mr. Harding's arrival in Washington. It contained an assortment of boxes and bundles shipped from Marion, and tagged variously "President-elect Harding," "Hon. W. G. Harding," and "President Harding." Included were Mr. Harding's golf clubs.

THRONG OF VISITORS FAILS TO ARRIVE

DUE TO SIMPLE CEREMONY

Everything Settled for Today's Event Except the Exact Part That Wilson Will Play.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The expected influx of thousands of visitors to attend the Harding inauguration had not materialized tonight. There was an appearance of nearly normal conditions in the hotel corridors and a complete absence of the crowds which have filled Washington on the eve of other recent inaugurations.

Washingtonians generally attributed the absence of the usual crowds to the desire of President-elect Harding to avoid display and useless expense. If the original program had been carried out, they said, the inauguration would have been one of the most largely attended in the country's history.

Estimates of the number of visitors vary greatly, but there is no evidence that they number more than a few thousand above the number usually here at this time of the year. They may be largely increased by late arrivals tonight. Some good-sized delegations, including clubs from Philadelphia, Chicago, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas and Wisconsin, will arrive tomorrow morning.

The larger hotels like the Willard, Shoreham, Washington and Raleigh are filled, but few guests will sleep on make-shift beds, and the number of those seeking meals is not sufficient to disarrange the restaurant service. The smaller hotels are generally filled, but it was possible late this afternoon to get a room by going some distance from the centre of the city. The throngs that seek the rooming houses and are ordinarily accommodated in spare rooms of private houses at inaugurations are not in evidence.

Observers said today that the persons who were here were mostly of three classes—men on business of the Republican Party, such as the members of the National Committee; men seeking appointments and the friends of those seeking appointments. The mass of spectators, who have crowded hotel corridors and thronged the streets, seem to be absent.

All of the three classes mentioned were in evidence today in the lobby of the Willard, which automatically became the political centre of the country by its selection by Mr. Harding as a stopping place for the period between his arrival and his entrance into the White House.

The Willard not only held the President-elect and his party, but also the suite in which Harry M. Daugherty, Mr. Harding's pre-convention manager, who has been selected for Attorney General, received visitors. Mr. Daugherty was in Room 216, and if there was any doubt that he is to be the "Colonel House" of the Harding Administration, and also unofficial adviser on patronage, it seemed to be dispelled by the steady stream of persons who sought him.

Most of the men prominent in the Republican organization were in touch with Mr. Daugherty during the day, and he made appointments for conferences with many of them.

Prominent arrivals of the day included Governors Sproul of Pennsylvania, Denny of Delaware, who is the guest of Senator Ball; Hartness of Vermont and Bartlett of New Hampshire.

There has been a noticeable absence thus far of men prominent in business and finance, many of whom supported Harding. Practically all who are now here, including a sprinkling of women, belong to the class directly interested in politics.

Ready for Simple Ceremonies.

WASHINGTON, March 3 (Associated Press).—In striking contrast to the usual holiday turmoil of inauguration eve, the streets of the capital reflected only in a mild degree the complete rearrangement about to be made in the National Government. Flags and bunting were broken out in recognition of the coming event, and tonight the dome of the Capitol Building was illuminated for the first time since the celebration of the armistice, but the small crowds which cheered Mr. Harding in his movements about the city had almost deserted the streets by early evening.

In accordance with the desire of the President-elect tomorrow's inaugural ceremonies will be the simplest of recent years. Four troops of cavalry will escort the President and President-elect to the Capitol, but there will be no parade, and little of the panoply of former inaugurations at the taking of the oath on the east portico.

Just what part President Wilson will play in the day's program remained in doubt tonight. Although his broken health makes it difficult for him to move about, he has prevailed upon his family and medical advisers to permit him to follow the custom of riding down Pennsylvania Avenue with his successor. He also hopes to witness the entire ceremony, but it seemed doubtful tonight whether he could do so.

Dr. Cary T. Grayson, his physician, conferred late today with Senator Knox, Chairman of the Congressional Committee, and is understood to have urged that Mr. Wilson's part in the celebration be limited to the ride from the White House to the Capitol. In this stand he is said to have had the backing of Mrs. Wilson, but not of the President himself.

The result was that the officials prepared several plans for the occasion, and will be prepared for whatever part the retiring Chief Executive finds himself able to play.

Program Starts at 10 o'Clock.

Tomorrow's program will begin officially with the call of the Congressional Inaugural Committee on the President-elect and the Vice President-elect at their hotel shortly after 10 o'clock. With the greetings over the entire party will enter automobiles, and, escorted by four troops of cavalry, will proceed to the White House, where it will be joined by the President and Mrs. Wilson.

President Wilson will take a place in the official White House automobile with the President-elect and Senator Knox, Chairman of the Congressional Committee. Immediately behind this car will be that carrying Vice President-elect Coolidge, Vice President Marshall and two members of the Congressional Committee. In the third car will be Mrs. Harding, with whom Mrs. Wilson will ride to the Capitol. The remaining members of the Congressional Committee will be in the car with Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Harding.

Leaving the White House, preceded and flanked by the cavalrymen from Fort Myer, the party will drive to the Capitol, the route being along Pennsylvania Avenue to Fifteenth Street, down that street, where the turn will be made into Pennsylvania Avenue again, and then to the east entrance of the Capitol building.

Pennsylvania Avenue will be roped off to keep back the crowds, and nearly one thousand infantrymen from Camp Meade, Maryland, will be on guard duty. At the Capitol 500 marines from Quantico, in full dress uniform, will form a lane through which the Presidential party will pass on entering the building.

The President-elect will be escorted to a room off the Senate Chamber, where he will remain until the ceremonies in the Senate, inaugurating Vice President-elect Coolidge. It is the plan to have the party arrive at the Capitol soon after 11 o'clock so Mr. Wilson will have ample time to act on measures passed during the closing hours before the inaugural ceremonies start.

The Senate ceremonies are to start immediately after noon and will be attended by the President-elect, the Cabinet officers designate, Justices of the Supreme Court in their flowing black robes, high officers of the army and navy, foreign diplomats in gorgeous court uniforms and other distinguished guests.

Will Swear in New Senators.

The Vice President-elect will be escorted to the rostrum to a seat beside Vice President Marshall, who will administer the oath of office. Mr. Coolidge's inaugural address, and a valedictory by Mr. Marshall, will follow, and the new Vice President then will call the new Senate of the Sixty-Seventh Congress to order and will swear in the new Senators elected with him last November.

Meantime the guests in the Senate Chamber will proceed to the east portico of the Capitol for the inauguration of Mr. Harding. Members of the Senate, the Supreme Court Justices, diplomats and other distinguished guests will take places on the Capitol steps around the inaugural stand, while members of Congress will stand in especially reserved portions of the plaza adjoining the steps.

After the guests are in their places the President-elect will be escorted out of the Capitol and to the inaugural stand by members of the Congressional Committee and Chief Justice White. The Chief Justice will administer the brief oath, and then Mr. Harding will kiss a page of the Bible which was used at the first inauguration of George Washington.

The Bible was brought to Washington Masons in New York which lent it for Masons in New York, which lent it for Washington's Inauguration after it was found that there was no Bible in the New York Federal Building in which the first chief executive took the oath of office.

The Marine Band—The President's Own—will play the Star Spangled Banner and the new President will deliver his inaugural address. That over, the President will drive directy to the White House. The four troops af cavalry from Fort Myer will accompany him.

FEW NEW YORKERS GATHER FOR CEREMONY

Morgan May Be Reappointed Postmaster—Revenue Office Contest Upstate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—A dearth of New York Republicans marked the inaugural eve gathering here tonight. Arrivals from that State during the day included neither Governor Miller nor George A. Glynn, the Republican State Chairman. Republicans from Brooklyn, the Bronx and the other boroughs of New York City, except Manhattan, were missing. Even Charles D. Hilles, Republican Committeeman from New York, was absent. He telegraphed Samuel S. Koenig, New York County Chairman, that he was ill with a cold and probably would not be able to reach here even for the inauguration.

Ex-State Senator Henry M. Sage of Albany was the only prominent Republican from up-State New York who had appeared up to this evening. It was said, however, that a number of New Yorkers would probably start on trains leaving around midnight and would reach here tomorrow morning. Colonel William Hayward, mentioned as a possibility for Ambassador to France; William R. Willcox, former Chairman of the Republican National Committee; Albert Reid, Isaac Ullman and William H. Anderson, New York State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, were among the arrivals.

Among New York City women arriving were Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinsin, sister of the late Theodore Roosevelt; Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, Chairman of the Republican Women's New York State Executive Committee, and Mrs. John T. Pratt of Brooklyn.

Few of the candidates for Federal appointments in New York State are here in person. Thomas W. Whittle of the Bronx was reported to be candidate for Surveyor of the Port of New York to succeed Thomas E. Rush, and it was said that New York influence would probably be exerted to try to obtain the transfer of William J. Flynn from the Secret Service to head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice.

The belief was expressed that Edward M. Morgan, former Postmaster of New York, was likely to be appointed to his old post, to succeed Thomas G. Patten. Mr. Morgan was Postmaster of New York for eight years and in the service for nearly thirty. His appointment, while said to be favored by the New York City leaders, would be considered almost a merit promotion, as he went through the different grades of the service before his appointment as Postmaster.

An interesting situation was said to have developed over the appointment of a Collector of Internal Revenue for up-State New York with an office at Albany. William Barnes, the Albany County leader, was said to have a candidate in Colonel Charles E. Walsh of Albany. Cyrus E. Dury of Johnstown, Fulton County, a former Congressman, is also an aspirant, and is said to have obtained promise of support from nearly all the Republican leaders of the thirty-two counties in the internal revenue district. The contest for this appointment is considered by politicians as of more importance than the place involved, as the result will indicate the strength of Mr. Barnes with the incoming Administration.

WAR LAWS REPEAL SIGNED.

Wilson Also Approves Four Big Appropriation Bills.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Wilson signed today the resolution repealing nearly all of the war laws.

The President also approved four additional appropriation measures—the Indian, Legislative, Executive and Judicial, Agriculture and Fortification bills. The Army bill tonight was the only appropriation measure before him.

The President disposed of a number of miscellaneous legislative measures during the day, including the bills to extend for twenty-five years the oil leases held by the Osage Indians, extending the time permitted for foreigners to file patents in the United States and the amendment to the Water Power act, exempting national parks from water power leases and privileges.

The war law repeal resolution, as approved by the President, repeals practically all of the laws enacted during the war as strictly emergency measures. The acts repealed include the Lever Food and Fuel Control act, a section of which was held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in a decision handed down Monday, and the Espionage act of 1917.

The Trading with the Enemy and Liberty Bond acts and the statute creating the War Finance Corporation are excepted from the repeal. A resolution similar to the one which the President approved today received a pocket veto from him at the end of the last session of Congress.

Other measures before the President, in addition to the army bill, include the measure to restrict immigration and the bill appropriating $18,000,000 for hospital care of former service men.

DROPS ARMISTICE CHARGES.

House Committee Finds No Useless Sacrifice of Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The Graham War Investigating Committee wound up its work today by finally striking from the report of the Johnson sub-committee all charges that there had been useless sacrifices of the lives of American soldiers at the front on Armistice day. The modified report was then filed in the House.

The Johnson charges were thrown out with only one member, Representative Bland, Republican, of Indiana, voting for them. Mr. Johnson, who changed his vote yesterday so as to bring the subject up again today for reconsideration, did not attend.

INAUGURAL SPIRIT PUZZLES MR. GLOOM

MARION NOT DISCOURAGED

Old Hoosier Democrat Has Come to Doubt There Will Be a "Complete Reversal."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Godfrey G. Gloom, the old-time Hoosier Democrat, was encountered today by a TIMES correspondent in the elevator at the Willard Hotel.

"I've been up to Harry Daugherty's smoke-filled room," the veteran explained. "No, I don't expect nothing out of this Republican Administration. Fact is I went up there under a misapprehension. I see the crowd headin' that way, and some whiffs of smoke drift out over the transom, and thinks I, here at last is some excitement, the hotel is on fire. No sooner did I cross the threshhold than I realized my mistake, but so great was the pressure behind me of on-coming Republicans lookin' for jobs that it was three-quarters of an hour before I could get back into the corridor.

"But it was an inspiring sight to see somebody that really took an interest in what was goin' on down here in Washington this fourth of March. They may have been only a little group of wilful men, the delegation that come down from Marion, Ohio, this morning, but at least they injected a little life into the proceedings. I won't say that Washington didn't put a kind of damper on their spirits, I heard one of 'em complain that they had more flags up in Marion the week of the fireman's fair. But they'd come to give their cheers for their fellow citizen and they'd be dinged if they'd be discouraged. Without Marion and the job-hunters this occasion would have been doleful, indeed. Some old Washingtonians of my acquaintance tell me that everything was all set for the greatest inauguration on record and if they only let young Mr. McLean carry out his plan there would have been a celebration that would have made Armistice Day look like a blue-law Sunday. But seems to me no mere expenditure of money could raise the pall of gloom that hangs over this great event.

"Well, I was up to the Capitol a while today, and listened to some statesmen in the House of Representatives talkin' over how many millions they should appropriate for hospitals, or some such worthy purpose. It seemed like a laudable enterprise, but there was only a few millions in it, so I thought I'd go over to the Senate, which body is traditionally concerned with great enterprises. I got there in time to hear some Senator tellin' how ever since he'd gone into public life the press had persistently maligned and misrepresented him, but he was confident that the people had seen through these malicious slanders and appreciated his real worth. Interestin' as was his recital of his own merits, I felt out of place amid them majestic minds, so I go back to the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue to pay a farewell call on Mr. Tumulty.

"Well, Sir, I was surprised at the atmosphere of work, industry and bustle that I find around the White House offices. Here in Washington folks generally seem to feel they can take it easy along toward quittin' time, or any other time for that matter; but these people was all working as busily as if it was 9 o'clock in the morning of their first pay day. The lust for labor seems to have infected them so bad they can't even stop when they lost their jobs. Here's Mr. Tumulty refusin' to be a Judge, and Mr. Wilson making up his mind to get out and practice law. I reckon everybody was kind of surprised at that, but the example of Harry Daugherty has shown us that you don't have to practice much law to be a successful lawyer.

"Curious thing about this here change of Administration—the gentlemen that are takin' over the Government of the United States all seem kind of sad and solemn, whereas those who are givin' it up seem not only resigned but almost gleeful. It may be pure suspicion, but I kind of surmise this frantic activity may be due to get everything in first-rate shape so the next Administration won't have any alibi.

"Mr. Wilson will turn over the machine to Mr. Harding with the engine running and plenty of gas in the tank. If Mr. Harding can't make it go, that's his lookout."

"Then you think that the new Administration will continue some of the present policies?" the correspondent asked. "In other words, that there will be no complete reversal?"

"Of course there won't be no complete reversal. Mr. Harding's got to learn how to make the thing go before he tries to turn it around. Besides, who thought there would be a complete reversal? Who said there was going to be one? Mr. Lodge? No. Mr. Penrose? No. Nobody said that but Harding."

EXPECT COL. HARVEY TO GET LONDON POST

Herrick Would Like to Be Ambassador to Britain, but Is More Likely to Return to Paris.

Munsey and Kellogg Decline to Be Considered for Diplomatic Appointments.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3. — While President-elect Harding does not intend to make any diplomatic appointments immediately, the belief is general that Colonel George Harvey has already been chosen for Ambassador to Great Britain. John W. Davis, the present envoy, is to sail for home in a few days, so it is believed that Mr. Harding will nominate his successor soon after inauguration.

Colonel Myron T. Herrick, who was Ambassador to France under Taft, wants to be Ambassador to London, but as Mr. Harding has other plans for that post it is thought that Mr. Herrick will be asked to return to Paris. Colonel William Hayward, who commanded a regiment of New York negro troops in the war, is mentioned as a candidate for the French mission, and it is likely that he will get a diplomatic post.

Ex-Governor Lowden of Illinois, who declined a place in the Cabinet, has decided that he does not care for any official position. He has recovered his health, but it it understood that he does not care to take any office that will keep him closely confined.

Frank A. Munsey of New York, who stands high with Mr. Harding, has likewise taken himself out of consideration so far as an ambassadorship is concerned. He has told Mr. Harding that he does not care to take a position abroad.

Another prominent Republican who prefers to remain at home is Senator Kellogg of Minnesota. He has been mentioned frequently as one whom Mr. Harding would like to honor, but he has no desire to leave the Senate, where he believes he can be of greater public service.

A. Lawrence Lowell, the President of Harvard University, is said to be on Mr. Harding's tentative slate for consideration for appointment to a diplomatic post.

Several diplomatic posts are likely to be filled fairly soon because of the important issues involved between the United States and other Governments. It is regarded as very desirable that the post of Ambassador to Mexico be filled, although the Government is well satisfied with the way in which George T. Summerlin, the Chargé, has handled matters. Mr. Summerlin ranks only as Counselor of Embassy, and it is felt that our representative at Mexico City should have ambassadorial rank. Henry P. Fletcher, former Ambassador, will be assistant to Secretary Hughes, and it is believed that he will have an important part in the selection of the new envoy. Henry Morgenthau of New York was nominated by President Wilson to succeed Fletcher, but the Senate did not act on the nomination.

Roland S. Morris, Ambassador to Japan, has been in Washington several months assisting Secretary Colby in negotiation with the Japanese Government over the alien land issue and other matters. He is not expected to return to Japan, and it is thought that President Harding will select his successor as soon as possible.

HOUSE PAYS ESCH TRIBUTE.

Cheers Mann, Expressing Hope That He Will Continue to Serve Country.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The House paid unusual tribute today to Chairman Esch of the Interstate Commerce Committee, who retires tomorrow after twenty-two years of service. Republicans and Democrats stood and cheered when Representative Mann, Republican, Illinois, expressed the hope that Mr. Esch be continued in another sphere of Government service.

Mr. Mann had reference to reports that Mr. Harding would appoint Mr. Esch to the Interstate Commerce Commission, largely because of knowledge of railway affairs displayed in helping to frame the Transportation act.

HYLAN SENDS MESSAGE.

New York Police Fliers Also Carry Greeting to Harding From Miller.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—Carrying messages to be delivered to President-elect Harding immediately after his inauguration from Mayor Hylan and Governor Miller of New York, Captain Claude R. Collins, President of the Aviators Club of Pennsylvania and Captain Charles N. Fitzgerald, both of the New York City air police, arrived at Bustleton Flying Field late this afternoon, en route to Washington.

The flyers leave here early tomorrow morning for the capital. Upon completion of their assignment they will attempt a record flight back to New York.

ago but for Senator Underwood's insistence on keeping the Muscle Shoals project in the bill.

Mr. Underwood denied the charge, and said that he had simply insisted that the Senate conferees do all in their power to have the House conferees agree to the appropriation. Should the bill go back to the House and the House again refuse to approve the amendment, he said, he would not insist that the whole bill should go down with Muscle Shoals. Later the House took the second vote against the amendment.

"I am one of the Senators," said Mr. Underwood, "who from the beginning have given their cordial support to this bill and the efforts of the Senator from Washington to pass it. I do not speak in criticism nor do I intend to reflect on the honesty of purpose of the Senator from Washington. Some men are endowed with some characteristics and some with others.

"I have seen great lawyers who were poor judges, and great judges who were poor lawyers; I have seen able statesmen who did not have the tact to handle a bill on the legislative floor. The Senator from Washington when he is further trained as the head of this great committee may acquire those faculties which will enable him to carry his bill through the Senate without difficulty. But the Senator will learn, in the course of experience, that no Chairman can sail a great supply bill through this legislative body by attacking members on the floor, and attempting to place the blame on other men, and, who when a supposed filibuster is in existence occupies more time in debate than the filibusterers do.

"There is an old proverb which says that those whom the gods wish to destroy they first make angry. I fear that the fate of the Naval bill has fallen in line with that proverb.

Senator Hale suggested, when Senator Underwood concluded, that it was entirely possible for the Senate to make important concessions if the bill was permitted to proceed to a vote. Mr. Poindexter then offered a unanimous consent request for a vote on the bill at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

"Well, will you consent to some other hour?" asked Mr. Poindexter.

"No," replied Mr. Borah. "Viewing this matter as I do and taking into consideration the policies involved in the passage of this bill, I do not believe the bill can be properly considered in the few remaining hours of this Congress. The only way this bill could have passed would have been for Senators to close their eyes and their ears and then vote for it, regardless of its merits or demerits."

"I wish to state," interrupted Senator Simmons, "that it is safe to say that Japan has appropriated enough money to carry on her own naval building program. On the other hand, the House of Representatives, in a spasm of economy, or in a desire to create the impression of ecenomy, has appropriated less than is necessary to carry on the American program. I am firmly of the opinion that additions made to the House bill by the Senate committee have been necessary increases.

If this legislation fails, it will mean at least the crippling of the American program. That would be exceedingly unfortunate. I am certain that a large majority of the Senators on both sides favor this bill as amended by the Senate committee, and it is important that the facts in the situation be made plain to the people of the country and the people of the rest of the world. They should know that the failure is not the result of the opposition of the majority of Congress, but is due to the action of two or three Senators setting up their judgment against that of the judgment of the rest of the Senate."

Warren and Swanson Defend Bill.

Senators Warren and Swanson also defended the bill and urged that a last final effort be made to pass it.

Two more hours passed during which everything but the Navy bill was considered. Senator Jones of New Mexico used most of the time discussing soldier legislation. Finally Senator Poindexter moved to lay aside the bill. Then another debate developed, and the deadlock was still on when the Senate at 7 o'clock took a recess until 8:30 P. M.

Senator Borah, while the recess was on, made this statement:

"Not a dollar of this appropriation is to be used until next July, so there has been no interference whatever with the naval building program. That feature of the situation can be dismissed without any tremors for the future.

"The Senate Naval Committee refused to give any sufficient consideration as I view it, to the suspension of building capital ships of the Indiana type under 30 per cent. completed. I think that is a matter demanding consideration involving, as it does, a question of $300,000,000. As to the disarmament proposition the Senate has gone on record unanimously in favor of it. That of itself is of tremendous importance, and the psychological and moral effect of it cannot be overestimated.

"The disarmament program will be urged at the opening of the next session. I think the present situation is satisfactory considering everything."

In anticipation of possible failure of the Sundry Civil bill, the item providing for hospital care of disabled soldiers, carrying $18,000,000, was passed as a separate bill in both houses. The Senate refused to accept the provision that the Federal Government should pay $300,000 a year to the State of New York for the hospital for soldiers suffering from nervous diseases, also for New York soldiers, to be built by New York State on Staten Island. It was said on the Senate floor that this would be taken care of later.

The House agreed to the conference report on the Army bill, and this measure finally went to the President. The belief was strong in White House circles that the President, who vetoed a resolution reducing the size of the army to 175,000, would not approve the bill, which in its final form provides for a reduction of the army by July 1 to 185,000 men and provides for the next fiscal year for an army of not more than 156,666. Those in the confidence of the President predicted that he would veto the bill.

It was announced in White House circles that the defeat of the Immigration bill would come through a pocket veto. If this course is followed the immigration laws would remain unchanged. The bill before the President permits 3 per cent. of the nationals of each country who came into the country before the war to enter in the next fourteen months.

This session of Congress has done very little beyond considering the annual appropriation bills. There has been scant general legislation beyond the passage of the Emergency Tariff bill and the revival of the War Finance Corporation, both of which measures were brought up early in the session. Another bill sought by the farmers, that to regulate the packers, passed the Senate, but was not considered by the House. In brief, this the short session of the Sixty-seventh Congress, from the first Monday in December to March 4, has accomplished nothing in perfecting legislation that might help solve the problems of the readjustment period.

Tariff and revenue revision and all the problems growing out of the failure of the Senate to ratify the Peace Treaty are inherited by the Harding Administration. It is expected that a special session of Congress will be called for April 4, and that before that time a definite domestic and international program will have been agreed upon by the Republican Congressional leaders in conference with President Harding, who has already sent out invitations to the leaders, whom he desires to participate in these conferences.

This session has had a flood of bills and resolutions. There were 16,169 bills introduced in the House, with 479 joint resolutions and 650 House resolutions, or 17,298 measures occupying the attention of the House and committees. In the Senate there were 5,784 measures, of which 5,048 were bills, 264 Senate joint resolutions and 472 Senate resolutions.

Nearly all the nominations sent in by President Wilson, except some army promotions, were held up. Nominations for Postmasters, numbering 3,500, were not acted upon, and 2,500 promotions in the navy met the same fate. There were 175 miscellaneous nominations, which included members of the Shipping Board and the Tariff Commission, that were not confirmed.

total of $1,904,292,000. The excess of exports of staple products is especially marked. In 1913 the nation imported 783,481 bushels of wheat, valued at $670,931 and in 1920 35,848,648 bushels, worth $75,398,834, while it exported in 1913 99,508,968 bushels, worth $95,098,838, and in 1920 218,280,231 bushels, valued at $596,957,796.

In the year 1913 it imported 85,183 barrels of wheat flour valued at $347,877, and in 1920, 800,788 barrels valued at $8,669,300, while it exported in the first year 12,278,206 barrels valued at $56,865,444, and in 1920, 19,853,952 barrels valued at $224,472,448. In 1913 it imported $3,888,604 worth of corn, and in 1920, $9,257,377 worth, while its exports in the first year were valued at $26,515,146 and in 1920 at $26,453,681. Of unmanufactured cotton in 1920 it imported approximately 300,000,000 pounds valued at $138,743,000, while it exported more than 3,179,000,000 pounds worth over $1,136,000,000. Of preserved milk, in the same year, it imported $3,331,812 worth and exported $65,239,020 worth. Its imports in the same year of sugar and wool of course greatly exceeded its exports.

It is obvious that for the commodities, except sugar and wool, mentioned in the measure, actual relief can come only from the adoption of constructive measures of a broader scope, from the restoration of peace everywhere in the world, the resumption of normal industrial pursuits, the recovery particularly of Europe, and the discovery there of additional credit foundations on the basis of which her people may arrange to take from farmers and other producers of this nation a greater part of their surplus production.

One does not pay a compliment to the American farmer who attempts to alarm him by dangers from foreign competition. The American farmers are the most effective agricultural producers in the world. Their production is several times as great for each worker as that of their foreign rivals. This grows out of the intelligence of the American farmer, the nature of his agricultural practices and economy and the fact that he has the assistance of scientific and practical agencies, which in respect to variety of activity, of personnel and of financial support exceed those of any other two or three nations in the world combined. There is little doubt that the farmers of this nation will not only continue mainly to supply the home demand, but will be increasingly called upon to supply a large part of the needs of the rest of the world.

What the farmer now needs is not only a better system of domestic marketing and credit, but especially larger foreign markets for his surplus products.

Calls Policy Inconsistent.

Clearly, measures of this sort will not conduce to an expansion of the foreign market. It is not a little singular that a measure which strikes a blow at our foreign trade should follow so closely upon the action of Congress directing the resumption of certain activities of the War Finance Corporation, especially at the urgent insistence of representatives of the farming interests, who believed that its resumption would improve foreign marketing. Indeed, when one surveys recent activities in the foreign field, and measures enacted affecting the foreign trade, one cannot fail to be impressed with the fact that there is consistency only in their contradictions and inconsistencies.

We have been vigorously building up a great merchant marine and providing for improvement of marketing in foreign countries by the passage of an export trade law and of measures for the promotion of banking agencies in foreign countries. Now it appears that we propose to render these measures abortive in whole or in part.

I imagine there is little doubt that while this measure is temporary, it is intended as a foundation for action of a similar nature of a very general and permanent character. It would seem to be designed to pave the way for such action. If there ever was a time when America had anything to fear from foreign competition, that time has passed. I cannot believe that American producers who in most respects are the most effective in the world can have any dread of competition when they view the fact that their country has come through the great struggle of the last few years, relatively speaking, untouched, while their principal competitors are in varying degrees sadly stricken and laboring under adverse conditions from which they will not recover for many years.

Changes of a very radical character have taken place. The United States has become a great creditor nation. She has lent certain Governments of Europe more than $9,000,000,000, and as a result of the enormous excess of our exports there is an additional commercial indebtedness of foreign nations to our own of perhaps not less than $4,000,000,000. There are only three ways in which Europe can meet her part of her indebtedness, namely, by the establishment of private credits, by the shipment of gold, or of commodities. It is difficult for Europe to discover the requisite securities as a basis for the necessary credits. Europe is not in a position at the present time to send us the amount of gold which would be needed, and we could not view further large imports of gold into this country without concern. The result, to say the least, would be a larger disarrangement of international exchange and disturbance of international trade.

Says We Must Deal With Europe.

If we wish to have Europe settle her debts, Governmental or commercial, we must be prepared to buy from her, and if we wish to assist Europe and ourselves by the export either of food, of raw materials, or finished products, we must be prepared to welcome commodities which we need and which Europe will be prepared, with no little pain, to send us.

Clearly, this is no time for the erection here of high trade barriers. It would strike a blow at the large and successful efforts which have been made by many of our great industries to place themselves on an export basis. It would stand in the way of the normal readjustment of business conditions throughout the world, which is as vital to the welfare of this country as to that of all the other nations. The United States has a duty to itself as well as to the world, and it can discharge this duty by widening, not by contracting, its world markets.

This measure has only slight interest so far as its prospective revenue yields are concerned. It is estimated that the aggregate addition to the nation's income from its operation for ten months would be less than $72,000,000, and of this more than half would arise from the proposed duty on sugar. Obviously this and much more can be secured in ways known to the Congress, which would be vastly less burdensome to the American consumer and American industry.

The rates, however, have a peculiar interest. In practically every case they either equal or exceed those established under the Payne-Aldrich act, in which the principle of protection reached its high water mark, and the enactment of which was followed by an effective exhibition of protest on the part of the majority of the American people. I do not believe that the sober judgment of the masses of the people of the nation, or even of the special class whose interests are immediately affected by this measure, will sanction a return, especially in view of conditions which lend even less justification for such action, to a policy of legislation for selfish interests which will foster monopoly and increase the disposition to look upon the Government as an instrument for private gain instead of an instrument for the promotion of the general well-being.

Such a policy is antagonistic to the fundamental principle of equal and exact justice to all, and can only serve to revive the feeling of irritation on the part of the great masses of the people and of lack of confidence in the motives of rulers and the results of government.

Senator Penrose, Chairman of the Finance Committee, said that the attitude of the Republican Party upon a temporary tariff bill and revenue revision was still unsettled. It is believed that Mr. Penrose was pleased with the veto.

"The whole subject of tariff and revenue will be taken up during the recess with conferences with Mr. Harding," said Mr. Penrose. "A number of Republicans favor revenue revision before the enactment of a tariff bill, but the course of the party on these matters will be decided at the White House conference. Probably the work of revising the tariff and revenue laws could be done simultaneously."

VARIED SIDELIGHTS OF INAUGURAL EVE

Post Office Clerk Displaced Wilson's Picture by Harding's While Hays Was in Building.

FLAG SELLER GETS REBUFF

California Invitation for 1924 Rouses the Republican Committeemen to Enthusiasm.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Chairman Hays, who is to become Postmaster General, told today of an incident of his visit to the Post Office Building yesterday. On his way to the office of Mr. Burleson he passed through a room on the wall of which was a picture of President Wilson, draped with a flag. "On my way out, after a stay of less than an hour," said Mr. Hays, "I passed through the same office. Much to my surprise I discovered that the picture of President Wilson had been displaced by one of President-elect Harding."

A listener recalled the story of a man who held a position in the Post Office Department under Hayes, Garfield and Arthur, and he kept it after the Democrats came into power with Cleveland. A friend asked how he managed to stay in office with a change of Administration.

"It's this way, sir," the official replied. "No Administration can change quicker than my politics."

Mr. Hays thought the clerk responsible for yesterday's change of pictures was in this same class.

On the front of the Riggs National Bank an electrician was putting up this evening a wooden medallion bearing the arms of the United States with the high spots picked out in electric lights. A handsome young woman and her ten-year-old son passing on the street looked up and saw the decoration. "See mamma," said the boy, "that's the flag." His mother peered at it a moment—"No, son, it's a picture of Mr. Harding."

When the rain stopped today and the clouds blew away, a boy peddling flags took courage and concluded to try to start something by selling his wares. But he had little luck. He could find nobody on the block who looked like a prospective purchaser of flags except an old lady from Bound Brook, N. J., who told him that she had come down to visit a sick niece, that she had forgotten there was going to be an inauguration and that she didn't see anything to wave a flag about, anyway.

Wearing a thirty-six-inch sombrero, John M. Taylor of Claremore, Okla., part Cherokee Indian by descent, added a touch of color to the throng in a hotel lobby tonight. Mr. Taylor, who became wealthy by the discovery of oil on his land, said he came to the inauguration of the candidate for whom he helped to carry the usually Democratic State of Oklahoma.

"I was a Government official for twenty-three years, in the Indian Police for twelve and a Deputy United States Marshal for eleven," said Mr. Taylor. "I've been shot five times, half shot a thousand times and have arrested more than five hundred prisoners.

"On my maternal side I'm one of the original Americans. I don't want a thing. It will be satisfaction enough for me to see a Republican President again."

Indifferent to the many inaugural visitors, an artist who is retouching the mural decorations of the Capitol kept on with his work today. He has been brightening up the faded designs on the walls for more than a year, working from illustrated plates. Many of the designs have portraits of distinguished Americans, with birds and animals worked into the patterns, and a careful search for the right colors is an essential.

The greatest enthusiasm yet shown in advance of the actual inauguration came today when William H. Crocker of California invited the Republican National Committee to select San Francisco as the place for the national convention in 1924. "If you are tired, hungry or thirsty during the convention you will be well taken care of in San Francisco," Mr. Crocker assured the members.

"If the Democratic convention was well taken care of in every respect, especially the last respect, there will be no difficulty about the Republican convention."

Mr. Crocker then paused to permit the applause to subside.

Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee, is in Washington for the first time in eight years. "No, I haven't been here since William Howard Taft was President," said Mr. Koenig. "It wasn't that I made a bet that I wouldn't visit Washington until there was a Republican President, or anything like that. I merely had no business to bring me here."

An attractive young person who handles information matters at the Willard Hotel has been kept busy the last two or three days. This afternoon a delegate to the Southern Commercial Congress felt that chivalry required him to express sympathy for the hard work which her position involved.

"Oh, I don't mind that," she said, cheerfully. "I'm on duty, anyway, and it makes the time go faster to spend it working instead of doing nothing."

It is believed by veteran observers that this is the first time such a sentiment was ever expressed in Washington.

Elmer Dover, who is mentioned as possible successor to Will Hays as National Chairman, has found a precedent for Mr. Hays continuing temporarily as head of the party organization after taking office. "A similar question arose soon after President Roosevelt took office and appointed Frank H. Hitchcock, then Chairman of the National Committee, Postmaster General," said Mr. Dover. "President Roosevelt did not wish to place himself in a position of being criticized by having Mr. Hitchcock hold both places. It was explained that the affairs of the committee could not be settled in a day, and Mr. Hitchcock continued as Chairman two months or more after the inauguration."

The oldest man in the House of Representatives is to leave the floor and go into the Press Gallery. General Isaac E. Sherwood of Ohio, aged 86, who was defeated for re-election in November, will take his seat in the Press Gallery tomorrow as a correspondent for The Toledo Blade.

General Sherwood was born in New York and served in the Civil War. He was elected to the Forty-third Congress along with Representative Cannon in 1873, served one term, and did not return until 1907, since which time he has served continuously. He is a Democrat.

Special guests at the inauguration tomorrow will be 150 wounded soldiers from the Walter Reed General Army Hospital. They will not go into the Capitol, but will sit for the most part in wheel chairs to hear the inaugural address.

A secondhand bookstore here is exploiting tomorrow's event with an "Inauguration Sale" of books. Several hundred volumes of "Messages and State Papers of the Presidents" are offered to the public at reduced prices. For some reason or other bookstores, first and secondhand, make a great feature of portraits and speeches of Henry Clay.

Henry Clay's high silk hat, as worn by him in 1850, is on exhibition in a clothing store, together with shining gallon-measure hats of Andrew Johnson and Stephen A. Douglas, as worn by the former when he was impeached and the latter when he debated with Lincoln. Pictures and memorials of Jefferson are scarce in shop windows. Washington merchants have calculated that by wearing homespuns and setting other precedents for what has become known as "Jeffersonian simplicity" has cost the shops of Washington tens of millions of dollars through the century and is doing increasing damage every year.

Veteran dancers were astounded today when they found that tickets for the so-called Inaugural Ball were not only still on sale, but that young women in hotel booths were urging guests to buy them. Before President Wilson dropped this function as an official affair the ticket scramble was one of the chief pre-inauguration features. Dancing men and women begged Justices of the Supreme Court, Senators, Ambassadors and Cabinet members to get tickets, and they soared to great prices in the hands of speculators. The tickets being sold now are for a private function, designed as a substitute for the official function.

Colonel George B. Christian, drummer boy in the Civil War, made an effort to conceal his pride when the selection of his son as secretary to the President was announced on the Harding train near Baltimore this morning.

The Christians and the Hardings have been lifelong friends and neighbors, and Colonel Christian entertained Marion visitors during the campaign with his war experiences. News of this came to Mr. Harding, whose father also is a Civil War veteran.

"See here, Colonel," said the President-elect one morning last Summer. "Your Civil War reminiscences must stop. I grew up in the belief that my father won the war and now you try to spoil the campaign by saying that you did."

When Charles E. Hughes passed through the portals of the office of Secretary of State this afternoon to see Secretary Colby he greeted cordially and shook hands with Edward A. Savoy, chief messenger of the department, who has been on duty with the office more than fifty-one years. Savoy was the department messenger who handed the passports to Sackville-West when the recall of the latter was demanded by President Cleveland.

Prohibition is declared by many to be a leading cause of the falling off in visitors for this year's inauguration. At other inaugurations delegations came with the design of drinking the health of the new President. Drinking is not yet done openly in Washington, as in New York.

EDWARDS GREETS WILSON.

New Jersey Democratic Women Also Send Message.

TRENTON, N. J., March 3.—Expressions of good-will were sent to President Wilson today on the eve of his retirement as Chief Executive of the nation by Governor Edward I. Edwards and the Women's Democratic Committee of New Jersey. In his message to the President, Governor Edwards said:

"May that omnipotent power that has enabled you to guide our country through the most eventful crisis in the world's history be ever with you in your private, as well as public life, is the earnest wish of your sincere friend.

"EDWARD I. EDWARDS, Governor,

"The successor to the office which you filled with so much honor and credit to yourself and the people of our State."

The message from the Democratic women follows:

"The Women's Democratic Committee of New Jersey expresses to President Wilson on the eve of his retirement their deep sense of obligation for his services to the women of the nation and for his leadership in the struggle for true democracy everywhere. They deeply feel his influence in their aspirations for future work and hope that some reflection of his spirit may be found in it. They send heartfelt greetings and best wishes for Mr. Wilson's health and happiness."

HUGHES GETS FACTS ON FOREIGN POLICY

He and Fletcher Have a Three-Hour Conference With Colby and Davis.

DISCUSS PRESENT STATUS

New Administration Must Face Issues Involving All Great Powers and the League.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3. — Charles Evans Hughes, who will be Secretary of State in the Harding Cabinet, took up in earnest today the foreign relations of the United States for the conduct of which he will assume official responsibility at 11 o'clock Saturday morning when he will take the oath of office at the State Department.

By appointment Mr. Hughes visited the office of Secretary of State Colby at 3 o'clock this afternoon for a conference in which America's international problems were considered with a view to acquainting the incoming head of the department with the status of the matters being turned over to him. The conference lasted nearly three hours and was four-cornered, being participated in by Secretary Colby and Under Secretary Norman H. Davis as representatives of the Wilson Administration and by Mr. Hughes and Henry P. Fletcher, who will succeed Mr. Davis on Saturday as Under Secretary of State.

The new Administration's heritage of pending foreign problems is among the greatest in the history of the nation, and it was concerning the intimate details of these that Mr. Hughes and his Under Secretary of State desired information. While nothing was disclosed regarding the phases of the different questions considered, it was learned authoritatively that the conference dealt with all questions requiring action and which had not been completed by the outgoing Administration.

Hughes Asked for Conference.

The conference was arranged at the request of Mr. Hughes and was cordially granted by Mr. Colby and Mr. Davis, who have endeavored to leave foreign problems in the best possible state for consideration and future action by the new Administration. The wish of the Administration has been to take no step that would embarrass the new Administration. For that reason the treaty situation has been left where it stood after the Senate rejected it, but there are many questions of importance pending aside from the relations between this country and the Central Powers or our attitude toward the League which will confront the new Government regardless of the peace policy of Mr. Harding.

In the handling of these questions the outgoing Administration has endeavored to deal with them wholly from the standpoint of protection of American interests without injection of politics, in an effort to keep the record clear up to the transfer of control. Every continent, all the important powers of the world, and even the League of Nations itself are involved in the questions to be turned over to Mr. Hughes.

Pending with the British Government are the question of mandates and the right of the United States to participate in the development of mandate regions, including Mesopotamia. There is also the attitude of the British Government toward the allocation of former German colonies, including Yap in the Pacific, the status of the former German cables, the attitude of the British Government toward the economic development of Persia, toward the contracts obtained by Americans for the erection of a radio station at Shanghai, toward the Armory oil concession in Costa Rica, and toward the question of Panama Canal tolls.

Foreign problems in which France is interested involve the treaty of alliance between the United States and France, still pigeonholed in the Senate, and the attitude of the United States toward the fixing of German reparation, Russia and Poland and the Near East.

French Finances Involved.

France has failed to take what some insist are absolutely necessary steps to improve her fiscal condition, and there is a considerable group in France that is insisting that French liabilities should be offset by the German indemnity and money owed from Russia, all of which has an important bearing on the payment by France of the American loans to that country.

Another question which involves France is the status of the former German cable which was diverted from the English Channel to Brest.

Italy, like France, is involved by reason of war problems, loans and economic necessities, and, in the cable controversy, has been on the side of the United States with respect to the proposal to utilize one of the former German cables in an effort to establish direct cable communication between this country and Italy.

Japan's relations with the United States have assumed increasing importance and involve the status of Yap, allocation of German cables, the California alien land law, restriction of Japanese emigration and the maintenance of the open door in the Orient.

The new Administration must also determine upon a Russian policy, but it is the expectation here, especially in view of reports of possible significant developments in Soviet Russia, that President Harding and Mr. Hughes will hesitate about experimenting with Russian affairs. Few men believe that the new Administration will alter the Wilson policy of non-recognition of the Bolsheviki and refused to have anything to do with the partitioning of Russia. The new Administration, however, will be confronted at the outset with demands for the recognition of new border States, including Lithuania and Esthonia, established in territory which before the war was part of the Russian Empire.

Inherits the Mexican Problem.

The American Government has not yet recognized the new Government of King Constantine in Greece, the new revolutionary régime in Persia and the Obregon Government in Mexico. The probable attitude of the new Administration toward Mexico has been discounted by the report of the Fall committee which investigated the Mexican situation for the Senate, and which opposed the granting of recognition unless treaty guarantees are given concerning the application of Article XXVII. of the Mexican Constitution and reparation for American claims against Mexico for damages and loss of life. It is the consensus of opinion that the Harding Mexican policy will be in line with that of the State Department during the latter part of the Wilson Administration.

The treaty with Colombia, pending before the Senate, is expected to be ratified. It is believed that the new Administration will closely watch the Tacna-Arica situation and use its best efforts to prevent actual war between Panama and Costa Rica over the boundary dispute and be guided very largely by the recommendations of Major General Crowder on conditions.

The attitude of the Republican Administration toward the independence movements in Porto Rico and the Philippines will also have to be considered. President Harding will be strongly in favor of establishing closer political and economic relations with South and Central America, and this will be an important part of the work entrusted to Mr. Hughes.

Most important among all the problems of foreign policy will be the decision of President Harding and his Secretary of State regarding the form and measure of American assumption of responsibility for the maintenance of world peace and the extent to which they will be willing to have this country share in an international concert or association of nations. While it has been intimated quite strongly that Mr. Harding will favor adoption of the Knox resolution for separate peace and call a conference to consider the question of an international court as well as reduction of armaments, it is not definitely known what the attitude of the new Administration will be toward the Versailles Treaty and the League of Nations.

NAMING OF DAVIS FILLS THE CABINET

Mr. Harding Announces His Choice of Moose Leader for Secretary of Labor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The selection of James J. Davis of Indiana as Secretary of Labor was announced by President-elect Harding today while on the way from Marion to Washington. The Cabinet is now complete, as follows:

Secretary of War—JOHN W. WEEKS of Massachusetts.

Secretary of Agriculture—HENRY WALLACE of Iowa.

All of the members of the official family of Mr. Harding were in the city today for the inauguration exercises. Mr. Davis called on Mr. Harding soon after the latter arrived at the Willard Hotel.

It is understood that Mr. Davis was selected by President-elect Harding not solely as a representative of organized labor, but as a Secretary who would understand the struggles of all of the workingmen, both from the national and international viewpoint. It was said that Mr. Harding had received hundreds of telegrams during the last week urging him to name Mr. Davis.

Herbert Hoover, who will be Secretary of Commerce, and Charles E. Hughes, prospective Secretary of State, were at the Shoreham Hotel, and Andrew W. Mellon, the coming Secretary of the Treasury, was at the Washington Hotel. Mr. Hughes and Henry P. Fletcher, who will be Under Secretary of State, spent a part of the day at the State Department and late in the afternoon went to the Willard for a chat with the President-elect.

Harry M. Daugherty, who will be Attorney General in the Harding Cabinet, has quarters at the Willard Hotel. According to reports he is being flooded with applications for jobs. One well-known politician said there were at least 1,000 men, to his knowledge, on the trail of Mr. Daugherty.

Undoubtedly the popularity of Mr. Daugherty in this regard comes as the result of stories published not long after the election that, as an old friend, confidant and political manager of the President-elect, Mr. Daugherty would be consulted where the disposal of patronage was concerned.

Mr. Daugherty secluded himself in the National Committee meeting for the morning and never was much in evidence during the afternoon, when a lot of "chair warmers" in the lobby of the Willard were on the outlook for him.

Mr. Mellon met many friends at the Washington hotel, but spent the day quietly. Few members of the Republican Party know Mr. Mellon and he did not find it difficult to stroll about without being the centre of attraction.

None of the new Cabinet members was willing to discuss policies or programs today. They were simply here to talk with the retiring Cabinet members and take part in the inauguration exercises.

Of the Cabinet members Mr. Hoover and Mr. Hughes attracted the most attention in the hotel lobbies. Mr. Hoover is known by almost every one in Washington and Mr. Hughes is nearly as well known.

"Will Play Straight," Says Davis.

PITTSBURGH, March 3.—When James J. Davis was offered the appointment of Secretary of Labor by President Harding he remarked:

"Employers and employes have their duties one to the other and both to the public as well as their respective rights. I will endeavor to secure a proper recognition from both of their duties as well as their rights. Whatever I do, I'll play the game straight, and expect others to do likewise."

The new Secretary of Labor is still a union man, for he has never relinquished his membership in the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, which he joined when, at 15, he was puddling in an iron and steel works in Sharon, Pa. He is a capitalist in a way, too, for, as Director General of the Loyal Order of Moose and manager of the Moose Home at Mooseheart, he is obliged to employ hundreds of men at various periods.

As head of the Moose home, with more than 1,000 children of dead members to care for, Mr. Davis has been a busy man. He is married and has two children. Mrs. Davis was Miss Jean R. Rodenbaugh of Pittsburgh. The children are James J. Jr., 4 years old, and Jane Elizabeth, 1 year old.

As Secretary of Labor Davis will continue at the head of the Moose Home, directing its activities from Washington.

"It is a very great honor which has been shown my husband by Mr. Harding, but I am confident my husband can fill the position assigned him to the satisfaction of his country," Mrs. Davis said today.

"We will take up our residence in Washington next Fall. Somehow, I always felt my husband would get the appointment. He has had a great deal of experience meeting people, and I am sure Mr. Harding's confidence in him will be warranted."

TARDIEU APPEALS TO NEW PRESIDENT

PLEADS FOR THE TREATY

Ratification With Any Reservations Desired as Our Duty to Ourselves and World Recovery.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, March 3.—The editor of the Illustration has been good enough to hand me a copy of an article he will publish on Saturday from the pen of André Tardieu on "What Is America Going to Do?" Tardieu begins:

"Mr. Harding is in the White House. That means the end of the period of paralysis imposed by the American Constitution between the election of a President and his installation. The whole world turns its eyes toward Washington. What is the United States going to do?"

M. Tardieu then goes on to explain that Mr. Harding takes power without having decided on any definite policy toward Europe, and says the time is ripe for France to say what she would like America to do.

"What is the interest of France in this situation?" he asks. "Having observed scrupulously during the political battle the reserve which she should it is now for her to say to America what she expects and what she hopes from her.

"What France expects and hopes is that America will help France realize in the peace the victory which she helped France to win in the war. How she shall do it is not our business, but the result is our business and it is for us to state it. By American help we don't mean isolated acts, private business deals, material help, negotiations of credit, cancellation of debts—which are all interesting secondary affairs. What we expect is moral and political help which will make the Germans understand that Americans do not disinterest themselves from the results for which they sacrificed the lives of hundreds of thousands of their own and paid $32,000,000,000.

Trouble Over Senate Stand.

"That is the whole difficulty. It is delicate for the United States to cooperate in the execution of the treaty which she has not ratified. It is that which we will ask of them in the clear conscience of our right and the general interest of the world. And why? Because Germany, with her customary perfidy, has founded on the vote of the Senate in March, 1919, the structure of equivocation which must be turned down. In March, 1919, the Senate by a majority of six pronounced against two or three articles of the Treaty of Versailles which Mr. Wilson refused to accompany by certain reserves. Nothing more or less. Germany has, however, attempted to see in this vote the repudiation of the treaty, repudiation of the peace, repudiation of the war. That is a game which must be stopped.

"What France expects of the United States is a step freely taken by them which will make Germany understand that Americans have not changed their opinion either on the responsibilities of Germany in the war nor on her obligations in the peace, a step which will prove to Germany that today, as yesterday, Americans demand respect for national rights, reparations for damages and the hsanctity of treaties; a step which will notify Germany that America of 1921 does not intend her soldiers should have fought and died for nothing. What do I mean by that if not that re-establishment, pure and simple, of a state of peace, such a state of peace as Knox's formula describes, which would be to disavow and abandon.

"The United States has a thousand means of securing the reserves or amendments which they wish. But for the good of humanity and the re-establishment of order in the world it is necessary that the peace they make with Germany, instead of being any peace, should be that which corresponds to the motives for which they entered into the war. That peace, with or without reserves, is the treaty of Versailles."

After pleading for efforts by the French Government to make its aims better understood in America, Tardieu goes on:

"I know Mr. Harding. I met him often during the war. A strong Republican, he was naturally an adversary of Mr. Wilson, a Democratic President. Nevertheless, on vital questions, on the just reasons which led his country to declare war on Germany, on the claims of that war, on the penalties which it entailed, he was, like all his fellow-citizens, in accord with the Democratic Administration. It is that accord which must be revived.

Should Forget Party Strife.

"There should be reborn a great public opinion which will sweep away deformed party prejudices. A formula will not be difficult to find which, without imposing disavowals on any one, will permit America to become associated in the pacific realization of the objects for which she entered the war. Fully conscious of what is owing to the free sovereignty of a great friendly people, France asks of America to recognize that order cannot be re-established except by law and that this law is the Treaty of Peace. France asks of America, under whatever form she pleases, if this form gives no ammunition to Germany, to contribute to the application of a principle which is fundamentally just—reparations, restitution, security. France asks America to understand that that way her duty lies, and, having understood that herself, that she make Germany understand that she must be ready to fulfill her duty.

"Let this manifestation be made. The effects will soon appear. For Germany will not resist in the peace accord of those whose solidarity vanquished her in war. Let this manifestation be delayed or let it not take place. German audacity will grow, and France one day will no longer have her choice as to the means with which to chastise her. That certainly is not what we wish or what America wishes. To prevent this, all that is needed is that Americans should forget their political quarrels; that they should free themselves of party prejudices, and regard Europe as in 1917. Only in order that they should see clear, it is our task to open their eyes—as in 1917."

CLAIMS ON GERMANY NEARLY $300,000,000

American Citizens Still Are Filing Demands for Reparation for Losses Suffered in War.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Claims for war damages filed against Germany by American citizens were reported to the Senate today by President Wilson in response to a resolution of inquiry.

The principal losses enumerated were $60,000,000 for privately owned cargoes lost by submarine warfare, $35,084,613 as losses to insurance companies and the Government's War Risk Bureau, and $191,147,346 for American-owned properties of various descriptions in Germany. One oil company asked $30,000,000 reparation for destruction of its property in Rumania.

The report said that claims still were being received at the State Department, and the final estimate of losses could not be given at this time.

WILSON SPENDS LAST DAY HARD AT WORK

Remains at Desk Until Late in Night to Act on Bills, Commissions and Other Business.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Wilson spent his last day in the White House hard at work. The multitude of bills passed by Congress which were before him for approval, together with a number of commissions of appointments which had to be signed, gave him sufficient work to keep him occupied until well into the night, and it was understood that the overflow would occupy his attention tomorrow morning until the time arrives for his trip to the Capitol for the inauguration of his successor.

The routine of work was broken twice in the latter part of the day. When the rain of early afternoon had ceased the President went out for a short automobile ride. On the trip he stopped at his home, 2,340 S Street N. W., and was joined by Mrs. Wilson, who was superintending the arrangement of the family belongings in the residence to which the Wilsons will move tomorrow afternoon. The President returned from his drive at 6 o'clock, and at 6:30 Mr. and Mrs. Harding came in for tea. After dinner the President once more settled down to work.

The principal item of the day's business, of course, was the veto of the Emergency Tariff bill. Besides the legislation to be considered, the President also had to give attention to a number of other matters, such as the announcement of his partnership with Bainbridge Colby and the Executive order putting flags on public buildings at half mast on the day of Champ Clark's funeral. Delegates of a women's organization in support of the League of Nations had hoped to call on the President in the afternoon, but he was too busy to see visitors today.

This desperate activity was shared by all members of the White House executive staff. The stenographers, clerks and other employes worked late tonight and expected to have a busy morning tomorrow with the last work of the Wilson Administration.

Joseph P. Tumulty, who finished off his eight years' tenure of office as Secretary to the President by the refusal, almost unprecedented in Washington official history, of two lucrative, dignified and anything but burdensome offices within the last few days, was kept busy all day receiving farewell calls from public officials, newspaper men, Democratic leaders and others who had had dealings with him during the Wilson Administration.

With Mr. Tumulty goes Warren Johnson, his secretary, who will enter Mr. Tumulty's law office. Charles Swem, the President's confidential stenographer, left yesterday to take charge of a shorthand magazine in Chicago. One or two other minor members of the staff will also leave with the end of the Wilson Administration.

VOICES DEVOTION TO WILSON

CHICAGO, March 3.—In behalf of the Iroquois Club, O. G. Williams, its President, has sent to President Wilson the following letter:

"To the Honorable Woodrow Wilson,

"President of the United States:

"On the occasion of your retirement from the exalted office, which duties you are about to relinquish, the Iroquois Club of Chicago asks you to accept this assurance of its great admiration and respect, its deep personal regard and devotion, its prayer that your precious and valuable life may long be spared to this, your people, and its sincere wish that health, vigor and strength may be vouchsafed you, for many years to come.

"In nowise derogating from the honor and veneration justly due the illustrious men who have preceded you in the Presidential office, we nevertheless feel and express the profound conviction that none of them had to deal with problems of such colossal magnitude, the correct solution of which was fraught with so much of weal or woe, not only for our own country, but for the whole world; none of them was beset with the perplexities and difficulties which were your almost daily portion; none brought to the performance of unparalleled tasks a greater measure of wisdom, initiative, vision, courage, strength, resolution, steadfastness, exalted personal character and high patriotic and humanitarian purpose; none made greater personal sacrifices upon the altar of devotion to his people, and none excelled your record of monumental achievement.

"We cannot refrain from giving expression to the infinite pride which fills us as we contemplate the glorious chapter written into the history of our country during the past eight years by a President who was the leader as well of all his people as of our great, historic Democratic Party, and whom, we believe, history will record as the foremost man who lived in the world during those years.

"Cordially and sincerely yours,

"ORVA G. WILLIAMS."

WILL PRAY FOR HARDING.

Churches on New Haven's Historic Green Hold Services Today.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 3.—A call to prayer during the inauguration ceremonies in Washington tomorrow was issued today by the three churches on New Haven's historic green.

The call sets forth that President-elect Harding has asked for the prayers of the people and that the residents of the city should respond.

Supreme Court for admission to practice. Rear Admiral Grayson, who has been Mr. Wilson's physician, said that he would be able to appear occasionally before that court. It is assumed that his chief function in the firm will be that of a counselor.

The field for the practice of international law has been widened by recent world developments. Among those active in such practice are former Secretary of State Robert Lansing and former Under Secretary of State Frank L. Polk.

RECORDED 'TOMMY' AS LAWYER

Princeton Class Publication Told of His Work in Atlanta.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 3.—In the first "Record of the Class of '79 of Princeton College," published in 1882, a paragraph referring to his law practice is found after President Wilson's name. He was then called "Tommy" Wilson, the name by which he is still known to his classmates. The paragraph reads:

"Wilson, Thomas W., has hung his 'shingle' on the 'outer walls' at Atlanta, Ga., and reports his business prospects as excellent. After graduation, studied law from October to January, 1881, at University of Virginia, when he was compelled to leave on account of ill-health. Since then he has been hammering away at it at home. While in the University of Virginia he easily captured the oratory medal in the Jeffersonian Society.

"Tommy has also from time to time written letters on the condition of the South, which have been published in The Evening Post and very highly commended. Is neither married nor engaged."

In the second "Record" of his class at Princeton, published in 1885, the following is found:

"Wilson, Woodrow, 'Tommy,' has rigidly carried out the plan of study which he mapped out while in college and is already reaping the rewards of his ability and faithfulness. After studying law at the University of Virginia for two years and distinguishing himself as a speaker and writer, he went to Atlanta, Ga., and there practiced his profession (1882-83). Finding that the drudgery of the law interfered with the thorough and extended study of political science and history, which had always been his ambition, he relinquished his practice and determined upon a two years' course of special study at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. He went to that institution in September, 1883, and soon made his mark among the men of ability gathered there. At the end of the year he was made Fellow in History, and held the honors and emolument of that position during the academic year of 1884-85."

After listing a number of the future President's successes in the literary field and his acceptance of a professorship at Bryn Mawr in 1885, the record closes with these lines:

"To crown the year of success, he was married June 24, at Savannah, Ga., to Miss Ellen L. Axson, and spent the Summer months in the 'Land of the Sky,' North Carolina. Here's good health to you, Tommy, and the best wishes of '79."

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 3.—In view of the announcement that President Wilson will return to the practice of law, a paragraph that appears in the official biography of him when he was Governor of New Jersey is of interest. This biography is contained in the State Legislative Manual for the years during which he was the New Jersey Executive. It says that he was graduated in 1881 from the University of Virginia as a law student, and continues:

"For the two years that followed he practiced law at Atlanta, Ga., and in that time he found that, while the principles of the law and its study interested him, the practical business side of it did not. This may be said to have been the turning point in his career and decided his future sphere of work."

T. F. Fitzgerald, who was the publisher of the manual when Mr. Wilson was Governor, is dead, and it is not known where he obtained the quoted information, but it may be assumed that he received it first hand, as was the case with most of the information contained in the book.

A BLEND

No two violins are tuned exactly alike, which is a decided advantage in orchestration.

For it results in a pleasing breadth of tone when these instruments are played in unison.

Nor have any two oranges identically the same flavor, which also has an advantage.

HAYS MAKES REPORT ON HARDING VICTORY

Daugherty and Weeks Also Speak at Meeting of National Committee.

PLEA OF WOMEN HEEDED

Action on Reform in Southern Representation Deferred—Members Greet President-Elect.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The Republican National Committee met here today but did not act on the proposed reforms in Southern representation at the next National Convention, although that was supposedly the object of the meeting. The sub-committee in charge of the subject asked for further time, and this was granted, the committee being increased from five to seven, and ordered to visit Southern States in search of data on the subject in hand.

Chairman Will H. Hays, who will probably retain the reins until the committee has solved the Southern representation problem, as well as that of the campaign deficit of $1,500,000, presided, and Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton of Chicago, Vice Chairman of the Executive Committee, played a prominent part in the proceedings.

Charles D. Hilles, National Committeeman from New York, did not appear. His proxy was held by former Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, who will be Secretary of War in the Harding Cabinet. Harry M. Daugherty, Mr. Harding's choice for Attorney General, also attended the session, and Chairman Hays paid a tribute to him. He spoke of Daugherty's "great assistance during the campaign, his willingness to do any task, and his general helpfulness at all times."

Chairman Hays made a characteristic report on the victory last Fall. He praised everybody, and had a nice word for the work done by the women. One point he noted was that Governor Cox received only 13,170 more votes than Woodrow Wilson polled in 1916, despite the fact that the nation-wide enfranchisement of women added millions of voters to the total.

"The figures," said Mr. Hays, "show a vote of confidence in the Republican Party, and the people of the country will not be disappointed in the new Administration.

"President-elect Harding possesses just these vital qualities of mind and heart, an appreciation of the country's position and a grasp of large affairs that qualify him to an exceptional degree for the responsibilities which tomorrow will be his. The country will follow him in his work just as we who know him best will follow and give the same measure of affectionate and loyal support to his program."

Mr. Hays had a kindly word also for the Vice President-elect, Mr. Coolidge.

In speaking of the deficit faced by the party, Mr. Hays said that New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and other States had contributed loyally to help wipe it out. It had, he added, "been already substantially reduced, though not altogether made up."

Mrs. Upton read a resolution asking for the establishment of a permanent women's headquarters in the National Committee organization and a general extension of the work of the new voters. It was adopted by the committee. The committee offered a formal vote of thanks to the women for their work in the campaign. Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, sister of the late Theodore Roosevelt, reciprocated by moving a vote of thanks for the work done by Mr. Hays as Chairman of the committee.

A. T. Hert, National Committeeman for Kentucky, suggested that the committee call on President Harding at the White House to express its continued support and loyalty. This was approved, and the visit probably will be made on Saturday.

Messrs. Daugherty and Weeks made brief speeches.

California put in a bid for the next National Convention of the Republican Party through William H. Crocker, the State's National Committeeman. Mr. Crocker said his proposal was supported by every committeeman west of the Mississippi. No vote was taken.

James A. Harris of Wagoner was seated as National Committeeman from Oklahoma, succeeding the late Jake Harmon.

There was some gossip about who would succeed Chairman Hays when he resigns, late in May, but nothing definite developed. It is probable that President Harding will decide the dispute over the post. Friends of John T. Adams of Iowa and Elmer Dover of Washington are at work. It is the general belief that Dover is in the lead at this time.

The committee adjourned hurriedly, so as to pay its respects to President-elect Harding on his arrival at the Willard Hotel.

BURNS NOT CONVICTED.

Detective Never Found Guilty of Breaking Into Law Offices.

THE TIMES erroneously stated yesterday in a report of the dismissal of charges filed with the State Controller in 1917 against the William J. Burns International Detective Agency that Edward W. Edwards, Secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council, had sought to prove that Mr. Burns was convicted in General Sessions of breaking into the office of Seymour & Seymour, lawyers, and taking private papers belonging to the firm.

Mr. Burns never was convicted in General Sessions. A technical information was lodged against him in Special Sessions, charging him with unlawfully displaying a letter from the office of the lawyers. He was convicted on the charge, but the conviction was reversed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. Mr. Edwards's charges were dismissed several days ago by Controller James A. Wendell after a protracted inquiry.

VOLSTEAD OPPOSES LANDIS IMPEACHMENT

Presents Minority Report Upholding Judge's Acceptance of Office of Baseball Arbiter.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Dissenting from the action of the House Judiciary Committee in recommending investigation by the next Congress of impeachment charges against Federal Judge Landis, Chairman Volstead, in a minority report today, declared postponement tended only to discredit the Judge and weaken him in the administration of justice.

Representative Volstead expressed the belief that not one member of the committee would vote for impeachment of Judge Landis because of his acceptance of the office of baseball arbiter while serving on the bench, nor would any considerable number of House members vote to sustain the charges.

"No violation of law on the part of Judge Landis was called to the attention of the committee," the Chairman declared, "Nor is it believed that the Judge is guilty of any act that would establish moral turpitude. One or both grounds would have to be established before impeachment proceedings could be maintained."

CHICAGO, March 3.—Judge Kenesaw M. Landis said today he would have nothing to say concerning impeachment proceedings threatened against him in the House of Representatives until he had received official word of what the House committee had been told.

"I have asked the committee to send me a copy of the charges, evidence, arguments and reports, if their rules permit me to have this information," he said. "Until I know what the committee was told, I shall have nothing whatever to say."

The jurist indicated that his attitude on the ultimate outcome of the controversy over his acceptance of the post of National Baseball Commissioner had not changed since his declaration on the subject at St. Louis before the Missouri Bar Association last December. In that address he said:

"I realize that men may disagree respecting a Federal judge being also a baseball commissioner. The Constitution provides a way to get rid of a judicial officer, that is, by impeachment. But this is a very cumbersome process, and it does not accord with my idea at all for a Federal judge to avail himself of this shield.

"For my own part, and speaking to you gentlemen with all deliberation, I say that if either house of Congress should pass a resolution hostile to my present situation my resignation immediately would go to Washington."

DAVIS WILL REMAIN AS UNDER SECRETARY

Senate Confirms His Nomination—Agrees to Promotions of Many Army Officers.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The nomination of Norman H. Davis of Tennessee to be Under Secretary of State was unanimously confirmed late today by the Senate, acting in open executive session.

The confirmation was requested by Chairman Lodge of the Foreign Relations Committee, who intimated that it was desired by the Republicans because of Mr. Davis's work on the International Communications Council. It also was intimated that he would be retained by the Republican Administration to continue that work.

Unsuccessful attempts were made to obtain the confirmation of Finnis J. Garrett to be Judge of the Western District of Tennessee by Senators Underwood, Alabama; Robinson, Arkansas, and Shields and McKellar, Tennessee, all Democrats. Senator Lodge contended that offices of Federal judges ought to be reserved for the incoming Administration and objected to Mr. Garrett's confirmation on that ground.

Chairman Wadsworth of the Military Affairs Committee reported the nominations of several hundred army officers, including promotions and transfers in grades below that of Brigadier General, and at his request the Senate unanimously confirmed them. More than a thousand army officers, including Lieutenants and Captains, failed to be confirmed, however, because of objections by Senator McKellar.

Another unsuccessful effort was made by Senator Kellogg of Minnesota to obtain the confirmation of Fred K. Neilson as Solicitor of the State Department.

HARDING TO HONOR PILGRIMS

BOSTON, March 3.—The Mayflower will sail into Plymouth Harbor again on Aug. 1, next, this time with President Harding as the principal figure in the celebration to commemorate the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims. The Tercentenary Commission announced today the acceptance by President-elect Harding of an invitation to make an official visit to Plymouth on that date. He will come in the Presidential yacht Mayflower, namesake of the little ship on which the Pilgrims sailed.

The celebration, which was begun with formal exercises on the actual anniversary of the landing last December, will extend through the Summer, but with President-elect Harding's acceptance today of the invitation extended by the commission, Aug. 1, was made the big day.

A naval demonstration with a review of the fleet in Massachusets Bay by the President is proposed, and on that evening the pageant being prepared by Professor George P. Baker of Harvard will be presented on the shore where the Mayflower's passengers first trod.

wondered why the one who complained to the police did not take the matter up with her husband instead of forcing her to bear the brunt of what she called "peevishness." But she thought the police call ended the incident, until yesterday when she received a summons.

Said It Was "Great Annoyance."

The summons was issued by Magistrate Max Levine at the instance of Mr. Newton, who went to the court accompanied by Childe Hassam. They told Magistrate Levine that Mrs. Wilson's affairs had been a great annoyance to them, and the technical charge of disorderly conduct was made by Mr. Newton. He refused to discuss his complaint last night. After the summons had been served Mrs. Wilson got in touch with Lyttleton Fox, her attorney.

Mr. Fox quickly found a large number of persons who said they would gladly appear in court in Mrs. Wilson's behalf, and the gathering in the West Side Court today promises to be one of the most impressive socially that unimpressive edifice has ever housed. Mr. Bagby, Mr. Munsey and Oliver Harriman said they would be on hand, as did Miss Elsie Lenssen of 30 East Fiftieth Street, who occupied Mrs. Wilson's apartment last Winter and offended Mr. Hassam by her music.

"Miss Lenssen is an excellent musician," said Mrs. Wilson, "and a friend of mine. She is almost a professional, her singing is of such high quality, and naturally she sings a good deal. Mr. Hassam protested against music in the daytime, I believe, because he paints then and it disturbed him, but there did not seem to be any reason why there should not be music at night. I have been told that he used to jump up and down on the floor when he was disturbed. At any rate, he made it known to Miss Lenssen that he did not appreciate her music.

Received Note of Complaint.

"There was another occasion when I had a small orchestra here when I entertained a distinguished Englishman, and I received a note that the music had caused annoyance to some of those in the house. Since then I have not had an orchestra, and I do not see what ojection there could have been to the 'cello and piano. If it is impossible to have music after midnight there is not much use in giving entertainments nor in having an apartment of this kind. What other use can I put the studio to?

"I have had some very excellent musicians and friends who sing this Winter. There was Mme. Namara, who was with Mary Garden; Helene Marsh, Kitty Vito, Mr. Leopold, the brother of Mrs. Newton D. Baker; Miss Fellowes Gordon, Paul Rheimers and others. Certainly they would not produce the kind of music which would displease any one who was not unduly sensitive."

Mr. Newton said last night that he preferred not to discuss the charge he had made against Mrs. Wilson. Lyttleton Fox, her attorney, would not discuss the case either, except to say:

"Mrs. Wilson has a neighbor who seems to dislike music, that is all there is to it. The character of Mrs. Wilson's guests is sufficient guarantee, if any were necessary, that nothing disorderly could have occurred in her apartment. She will be on hand with plenty of witnesses."

At the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station it was said that there was no record on the blotter of any policeman having been sent to Mrs. Wilson's apartment, but that men might have been summoned there from their posts, which would explain the lack of a blotter entry.

PARIS PRESS PAYS TRIBUTE TO WILSON

EXPRESS FRENCH GRATITUDE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 3.—The picture of Woodrow Wilson broken in health and authority but game withal as he quits the Presidency of the United States appears strongly to the sentiments of the sentimental French people. Stephané Lauzanne's declaration that even if he lost the peace he won the war and thus Europe owes him an enternal debt finds ready acceptance on all sides. French writers agree that history will write Wilson's name in big letters as the apostle of ideals which he did not achieve but the spirit of which will live when he is gone.

M. Herbette, the distinguished editor of the Temps, has written an appreciation for tomorrow's paper which says in part:

"Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, leaves the White House today. There is in his going a moving simplicity which does not lack grandeur. This man, aged and broken, who abandons the highest office of his State as a figure lone and sad as if he felt himself already forgotten was the idol of the world. Just two years ago London, Paris and Rome saluted in him the arbiter of the world. He knew ovations such as no sovereign ever knew; all the old world proclaimed the splendor of his policies; he symbolized the fruitful energy of the American people which across the Atlantic had built upon such solid bases the life of the New World. It was he who had ranged the United States by the side of Europe in the war for liberty and right; it was he who sent to the western front 2,000,000 soldiers whose mass shut Germany off from the hope of final recovery. Having decided the war he wished to decide the peace. What good was omnipotence if it did not permit its apostle to realize all his dream, all his ideal.

"And Mr. Wilson is an apostle. He has the spirit, mentality and temperament of an apostle. He believes in principles and formulas, he believes in God with passionate fervor, he was convinced he embodied truth, that truth lived in him so luminous and so triumphant, and we placed him against all realities of the hour. He had conceived a generous dream of imposing on the world a peace which would abolish forever hates and passions of men, abolish forever the political principles on which for centuries untold, nations had been built, a peace which would kill even the idea of war. He wished not only to mark the dawn of a new era, he wished by the mere prestige of his words to create an international society and regenerate the world filling it with his high ideal of justice, truth and goodness.

Least Understood at Home.

"Mr. Wilson succumbed in his noble effort as always have succumbed those who sought to act without regard to human nature as it is. He had the unhappiness to see that it was his compatriots more than any who understood least his thought and who with stubbornness opposed his proudest efforts. In believing himself the arbiter of the world he forgot he was the chief and servant of a democracy which would not permit that any one act beyond the rules and laws which it placed upon him to limit his efforts and limit his destiny. The mistake of Mr. Wilson was in not understanding that one can impose upon the crowd only those ideas of which the crowds have clear conception and which the crowds believe spring from themselves. And so his great dream was ruined in the wind of political tempests. The apostle used his genius and his heart in mediocre fights over texts and formulas. The same words which had once roused the world in enthusiasm fell in silence and then there comes the solitary sortie from the White House, poignant as a gesture of supreme resignation.

"But it nevertheless remains and will remain that Mr. Wilson was the man who understood that youthful America ought to fight by the side of the Allies. It was he who dared draw the sword to defend the right of liberty. And that is why he will always appear in history as a great American."

Alfred Capus's Criticisms.

Alfred Capus writes in the Gaulois:

"Mr. Wilson ceases to be President of the United States. Among the great figures of the war it is his which history will have the most difficulty in fixing. The destiny of Mr. Wilson presents the singularity that while with so many men the power of realization is inferior to thought, with him the thought was greater than the act. He moved the world, he transported from one continent to another millions of men and in this prodigious effort his thought remained obscure. One might have believed that he was caught between the suggestion of German culture, which had shaped his spirit, and the revolt of his conscience when he saw the workings of that culture. That would explain his ideas and proposals of double meaning.

"There resulted the equivocal armistice. Then peace was made in an atmosphere of contradictions. Wilson was always moved by the risks which French civilization had run, and we should never forget that, but he considered it sacrilege to impose on Germany a burden of misery and humiliation and, above all, to touch her unity. He threw himself into the dream of universal democracy by means of a League of Nations without seeing that this grandiose conception could be realized only on the day when men reached that high moral state which would make the League unnecessary.

"These striking prophecies on the goodness of mankind earned for Wilson a popularity which it was impossible to resist. I know today it is the style to forget the illusions he brought us. But they nevertheless are the source of most of our present deceptions. But it is unjust to attribute to him all responsibility. An important part of the responsibility falls upon ourselves, to the predominance we give to sentiment in the days we should have been dealing in realities. President Wilson leaves to France a memory bitter and sweet, and clouded, as of a fanatic being which she had met in a dream and which was gone when she woke up."

Warm Tribute to Wilson.

"Mr. Wilson," it says, "retires in broken health with the bitterness of having seen his work disavowed by the American Congress and a large part of the American people.

"Let him, nevertheless, be assured that he takes with him to his retreat the profound gratitude of the vast majority of French people. France will never forget that in the great American Republic, where there are so many Germans, naturally prejudiced to their native country; so many Irish blinded by hate of England, so many men indifferent to European affairs, it was he who decided the intervention of his people in the war in appealing to all that was best in American idealism. She will never forget that during the laborious negotiations of the Peace Conference it was he who among the allied chiefs was really the apostle of the League of Nations. He was the statesman of largest view, who, to prevent a repetition of atrocities, calls on the whole world to form a league of justice. To be sure, he did not dare to follow France to the end when she asked that the League be armed against any Government which disturbed the peace of the world. But he knew what opposition would be aroused against the idea of enrolling the American people in an international gendarmerie destined above all to police Europe.

"Some people may joke about President Wilson, but he will be large on the pages of history for having been the noble soldier of idealism and of humanity."

Gustave Hervé, in the Liberté, praises Wilson at the expense of the American people. He writes:

"It is not to be denied that the regrettable abstention of the United States in the last two years and its lack of friendly help have been possible only because the American people have not the same understanding of international solidarity as Wilson has, and that if we are left by the roadside by our American friends it is simply because most of the American people are half a century more behind the great statesman whose Presidency will some day be considered as the most glorious page in the history of the United States."

BRIAND PRAISES WILSON.

Knows That Harding Will Be as Good a Friend of France.

LONDON, March 3.—M. Briand, the French Premier, commenting on the retirement of Woodrow Wilson from the Presidency, said today:

"France will cherish eternal gratitude to the United States for having so powerfully contributed to the victory of right and justice in the world. The name of the eminent statesman who took the responsibility for the intervention of America in the great war is inseparable from the victory and will remain equally engraved upon French hearts.

"We know the generous idealism which animates the American policy and which has always inspired the high personages called to the supreme magistracy. I know that President Harding will be for the sister republic a friend as sure, as large in spirit and as devoted to the triumph of right as his illustrious predecessor."

HOSPITAL CUTS WAGES; MANY EMPLOYES QUIT

The New York Post Graduate Hospital, Second Avenue and Twentieth Street, has reduced the salaries of its 250 employes from $5 to $40 a month, approximately 20 per cent., and as a result from 75 to 100 employes have resigned. The following notice was sent to the employes several days ago:

"The Directors of the institution have just finished a study of the wages paid here as compared with other institutions of a similar character and find them to be higher.

"In view of the fact that the hospital is being run at a great loss, we are obliged to reduce the wages to a point which will conform favorably with those paid in similar institutions, and this notice is to inform you that beginning with March 1 your monthly wages will be reduced.

"We regret the necessity of such action, but there is no other course to pursue if the hospital is to continue to operate on a capacity basis and give free hospital care and treatment to patients unable to pay.

"Although living expenses during the last few months have been reduced, the Directors feel that the time has come when conditions make it necessary for the benefit of the hospital."

The salaries of the maids have been reduced from $35 to $31; porters from $55 to $47; elevator operators from [illegible] to $60. The wages of the scrubwomen have been cut $8. It was said that the saving to the institution by the salary decreases would be about $1,000 a month. It was said that six internes have also been dropped. The internes received no salary, but merely board and lodging. At the hospital it was said that no difficulty was expected in filling the positions because of the present unemployment situation.

MORE INDICTMENTS FILED.

20 Individuals, 30 Corporations Named—Grand Jury Lauds De Ford.

The January Grand Jury filed two indictments yesterday with Supreme Court Justice McAvoy against individual and corporate members of a trade group in connection with the building investigation. It is believed the indictments contain the names of twenty individuals and thirty corporations. Pleas will be entered on March 9.

"Resolved, That in view of the attack made by certain interests involved in a case which has been acted upon by this Grand Jury, upon William A. De Ford, Special Deputy Attorney General, the jury desires by this resolution to express its entire confidence in Mr. De Ford and in his denial of the allegations made, and to express its appreciation of the able manner in which the evidence has been presented."

FOR TAX ON OUTDOOR ADS.

Curran Says It Would Help Restrict Billboards and Aid Revenue.

Henry H. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan, advocated a tax on outdoor advertising at the annual dinner last night of the National Academy of Design, held in the Academy Building at 215 West Fifty-seventh Street. Mr. Curran said that he thought it would be a good restrictive influence, as well as a means of increasing the city's revenue. He also said that war memorials which may be erected should neither be political nor utilitarian.

Cass Gilbert, the architect, said that he believed a number of small parks should be laid out in cities throughout the country, in which small war memorials could be placed. Other speakers were Edwin Blashfield, President of the academy; Leon Benedite, Director of the Luxembourg in Paris, and Maurice Gray, Director of the Boston Museum.

HIT EXCESS PROFITS TAX.

Opposition to the excess profits tax, and feeling in favor of a general sales tax were expressed at an unofficial meeting of business men in the Astor Hotel yesterday. The meeting was called by Lew Hahn, Director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association; A. L. Vile, Manager of the Rubber Association of America, and Fletcher L. Dodge of the Toy Manufacturers' Association.

A vote taken at the close of the discussion showed that a majority favored a general sales tax. Representatives of the automobile industry expressed themselves in favor of a tax on retail sales alone.

A vast nation of free people today rises to this stirring occasion in extending to the new Executive its greetings—moved by no thought save that of loyalty, no motive save that of honor, expressing by its very mien its supreme confidence in the man.

A people blessed by Providence with a generous share of happiness and prosperity, having passed, victorious, through a period fraught with uncertain dangers, having mastered, and, in a measure, adjusted itself to unusual economic conditions, stands today a united people, a happy people, a prosperous people—a nation determined and in the right, a country entering, optimistically, upon a period that cannot but be one of greater and lasting prosperity.

With confidence, born of supreme faith in our country, we, the people of the United States, greet whole-heartedly the new occupant of the chair of Washington and Lincoln, and pledge to him our loyalty, our unqualified support, and express unreservedly our faith in his leadership. Realizing, with the knowledge that comes from experience, that complete readjustment of a great war's aftermath cannot come in a day, but willing and eager, both as a nation and as individuals, to work for those things that shall be of greatest benefit to all.

Commercially, we can see only a brilliant future of national prosperity brought about by the judicious enactment of just laws and furthered by the aggressive policies of the country's business leaders.

Looking onward into the future, we cannot but prophesy for America, in her honorable place among the nations of the earth, an era of righteous leadership in world affairs.

MAY SEAL BUILDING WHERE RUM IS SOLD

IS TEST FOR 800 SUITS

Arrest Man After Still Is Found—Local Agents Doubt Efficacy of Boston Men's Raids.

United States Attorney Leroy W. Ross of Brooklyn brought injunction proceedings yesterday in the Federal District Court in that borough against the Ritz Restaurant, one of the best known cabarets in Brooklyn, and the Livingston Realty Company, which owns the building at 8, 10 and 12 Nevins Street, to bar the use of the property for any purpose for twelve months, contending that under the provisions of the Volstead act the restaurant is a nuisance.

This is the first action brought in this city seeking to close premises to all business because of alleged violations of the prohibition law.

Henry Fink, manager of the restaurant, was convicted on April 16, 1920, on a charge of selling liquor, and two additional cases are pending against him. The restaurant and realty companies have twenty days in which to answer the complaint.

Mr. Ross said that twenty additional injunction suits would be brought within the next few days. A total of between 800 and 1,000 suits, he said, will be brought as a result of Volstead act convictions already obtained.

Bart Faronita of 58 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday by Detectives John Fitzgerald and Thomas Cassidy, who said they found in the apartment house where Faronita lives a still in operation, with four barrels of liquor, bran, yeast and other materials.

Only a few Boston prohibition agents remain in the city. Dennis Hurley, who heads the squad still at work here, said last night that no additional search warrants would be served by the Boston agents, who expect to leave by the last of the week. He denied that the work of the Boston agents here had cost the Government $25,000, as alleged by some local agents. The amount of whisky seized in Saturday night's raids is valued at between $5,000 and $10,000, he said.

Local enforcement agents are inclined to make light of the work of the Boston agents. One said yesterday that it was very doubtful if any of the arrests for selling will result in convictions. He said that local agents had had many stronger cases than these thrown out of court for lack of evidence.

David O'Dowd, 29 years old, of 332 Pearl Street, Brooklyn, twice convicted of violating the Volstead act, was given his final papers admitting him to United States citizenship by Judge Edwin L. Garvin in the United States Court in Brooklyn yesterday. O'Dowd said he never intended to deal in liquors again and Judge Garvin interpreted his two convictions as misdemeanors.

FINDS NO "WET" BRIBERY.

Grand Jury in Boston Discredits Dry Agent's Story of $1,000,000 Offers.

BOSTON, March 3.—The Federal Grand Jury reported today that it had no grounds whatever for believing that any attempt had been made to bribe or corruptly influence William J. McCarthy, supervising prohibition enforcement officer for this district, or any of his agents in the discharge of their duties.

The report said the Grand Jury had taken cognizance of certain newspaper interviews in which McCarthy was represented as telling of rejection of bribes amounting to more than a million dollars offered on condition that he would permit violations of the Volstead act, that the United States Marshal's office was unable to find McCarthy and that the jury heard the testimony of Frank Lanagan, assistant to McCarthy.

"Mr. Lanagan," says the report, "furnished no evidence of any attempt to bribe Mr. McCarthy and states that he had never heard from McCarthy about any such attempts having been made upon him; that he had been McCarthy's assistant for the last seven months and prior to that was office man on McCarthy's staff."

The Grand Jury said it had also made inquiry into a public allegation by Lanagan that a certain case of bribery of an agent had been previously presented to United States Attorney Daniel J. Gallagher, but that the United States Attorney had taken no action. The jury found that this case was submitted to the Grand Jury sitting in October, 1920, and that it returned a "no bill."

WHOLE TOWN AGREES ON SUNDAY CLOSING

Churches and Storekeepers in Beaver, Pa., Settle Blue Law Enforcement Problem Amicably.

Special to The New York Times.

BEAVER, Pa., March 3.—Enforcement of the blue laws in this county seat seems to have been settled, according to reports made last night at a meeting of the Executive Committee of Ministers and Laymen of the four Protestant churches—Methodist, Episcopal, Presbyterian, United Presbyterian and Baptist—appointed last week to make a canvass of the stores in regard to their attitude on Sunday closing.

Each church appointed four laymen with the minister as a general committee to start the agitation for Sunday closing, their motto being to go about it quietly without any sensationalism or threats of prosecution. In fact, the Police Department was not notified of the movement. Every storekeeper was seen last week and this, and at last night's meeting the results reported led the Executive Committee to believe that all the stores will be closed voluntarily next Sunday.

The committee reported that the four drug store keepers had agreed to close their soda water fountains and not to sell ice cream, candies, &c., and were willing to take their turns of remaining open for the sale of medicines only, one drug store to be kept open each Sunday. All the miscellaneous storekeepers sent word that they were desirous of closing, providing it became general, and this also has been satisfactorily arranged.

Proprietors of garages agreed to remain open only to take care of cars needed in business that could not be postponed. Proprietors of tobacco stands at the hotels agreed to close.

The Rev. Sanford Corcoran, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, said today that there had not been a single instance of friction in the campaign, and that the great majority of storekeepers were only too glad to close their establishments on Sunday.

"Many of these merchants are members of our churches," said Mr. Corcoran, "and would rather be in their pews on the Sabbath Day than behind the counter. We are glad to send out the news that the so-called blue laws will be lived up to in this town without anybody getting hurt and without any radical methods being used in their enforcement."

Mrs. Juilliard's Estate $1,408,000.

An accounting filed in the Surrogates Court yesterday in the estate of Mrs. Helen O. Juilliard, who died in 1916, and was the wife of the late Augustus D. Juilliard, shows that the executors now hold $355,000 of personal property and $1,053,000 of real estate. The estate invested $300,000 in United States certificates of indebtedness. Parcels of realty on the lower west side were sold at auction for $1,447,500, and the estate got $124,980 from the city for property taken for the Varick Street improvement.

Women Asked to Aid Miller Bill.

At the luncheon of the Women's Harding and Coolidge Club at the Hotel Marie Antoinette yesterday, Job E. Hedges, receiver for the New York Railways Company, urged the members to interest themselves in the traction situation and to support the Governor's measures by making known their stand to their representatives at Albany.

ALMOST all mechanical progress and invention is dependent upon the facilties of the machine shop for its development. The accuracy and efficiency that is required of the lathe and of welding in this class of work has been increased, together with production, by the dependability of electric motor drive.

The large number of machine shops in Manhattan whose equipment is largely of the alternating current motor type places an important obligation for continuous Electric Service upon this Company. An ever increasing demand upon us for power service from these plants is a gracious and gratifying acknowledgment of the dependability of our supply to them.

—very reluctantly—to the conclusion that Germany does not realize in the least the true character of the demands made upon her. I followed these very closely. The German people are under the impression that the demands of the Allies are designed to destroy their great people. Let me say at once that we regard a free, contented and prosperous Germany as essential to civilization and that we regard a discontented and enslaved Germany as a menace and a burden to European civilization. We have no desire to oppress Germany. We simply ask that she should discharge obligations she has entered into and repair injuries inflicted by the war which her Imperial Government was responsible for provoking.

Germany Set Precedent Herself.

"Under the Treaty of Frankfort she laid down the principle and acted upon it that the nation that was responsible for provoking a war ought to pay the costs of the war. We are not asking the costs of the war, not a penny. We are not going as far as the principle of the Treaty of Frankfort. The war charges of the allied countries in the aggregate are so enormous that it would be quite impossible to ask any country, any single country, to bear them. That we realize. In fact, we are each of us groaning under the load of taxation to pay the debts which each of us incurred to defend ourselves in this war, and to place the whole of them upon one country, we fully realize, would be an impossible proposition. We have, therefore deliberately in the Treaty of Versailles not asked Germany to pay one single paper mark for the cost incurred by the allied countries in defending themselves in this war.

"What have we asked, then, of Germany? I think it is important that the German public should thoroughly understand the character of the demand, because I am certain that they are not appreciating it. We have simply insisted that Germany shall pay reparation in respect of the charges cast upon our respective countries by material damages to property and by injuries inflicted upon the lives and limbs of inhabitants. We have asked for no more and we can take no less.

Burden France Has to Bear.

"These are not imaginary wrongs; they are injuries the reparation of which is imposing a crushing burden at this moment upon the resources of the allied countries. Take France—France has this year to arrange in her budget for an expenditure of 12,000,000,000 francs toward restoring her devastated areas. This is apart from the gigantic sum she has to provide for pensions. This provision will have to be made year by year for at least ten years. What charge is there in the German budget comparable to this?

"I feel certain that the people of Germany have no notion of the devastation wrought in the allied countries as the result of the action of the Imperial Government in August, 1914.

"Having regard to the incalculable importance of coming to a real understanding I think it is vital that the German public should be informed as to the character and extent of the devastation wrought. I cannot help thinking that when they realize it their attitude of mind will change. They are under the impression that the Allies are seeking to extort money out of them beyond their needs, and I am quite sure that they have not the least notion of the terrible extent of the ravages inflicted by the war in the allied countries. I will give a few figures which will indicate the extent of the injuries inflicted in France.

"Nearly 21,000 factories have been destroyed. The mines in Northern France have been destroyed and it will take ten years or more to re-establish them. The whole of the metallurgical, electrical and mechanical factories in the devastated area have been wiped out. Four thousand textile factories and 4,000 alimentary factories have been destroyed or stripped of their equipment, which was either taken away to Germany or destroyed on the spot.

"One thousand six hundred and fifty-nine communes or townships have been completely destroyed. Of 707 townships three-quarters have ben destroyed. Of 1,656 at least 50 per cent. have been destroyed.

630,000 Houses Gone or Damaged.

"Three hundred and nineteen thousand two hundred and sixty-nine houses have been completely destroyed and 313,675 partially destroyed; that is, 630,000 houses were either completely destroyed or partially destroyed. Twenty thousand six hundred and three factories have been destroyed, 8,000 kilometers of railway, nearly 5,000 bridges, 52,000 kilometers of road and 3,800,000 hectares of soil which must be restored to condition, of which 1,740,000 is cultivated soil.

"There is a reduction of 50 per cent. of the total coal production of France, 21,000,000 tons instead of 42,000,000, and these figures are the minimum.

"I have passed through this devastated area pretty well from one end to the other, and it is perfectly appalling. The very soil is churned up and destroyed. A good deal of this devastation was wrought through bombardments and movements of war, but an incredible amount of damage was done deliberately with a view to destroy essential means of production.

"This is true both of France and of Belgium."

Mr. Lloyd George then quoted General von Bissing's statement at the first meeting of the German Economic Mission to Belgium on June 19, 1915, the "object being to provide that Belgium's recovering industry should not prejudice German industry," and told how great factories were wantonly destroyed, the mechanism taken to Germany and apparatus destroyed by oxyhydrogen flames in order to cripple French and Belgian industries and to make it impossible for them to compete with German industries when the war was over. Mr. Lloyd George continued:

"There is a very numerous class of cases where machinery and equipment was broken up in order to furnish Germany with metal. Many of the mines in the North of France were deliberately destroyed with a view to making it impossible to work them for years, not by bombardment, but by deliberate acts of destruction. Machinery in many of the textile and other factories was either destroyed or essential equipment taken away.

"Take the case of the French flax industry, a most important industry in France. This was practically wiped out by a process of destroying all machinery, so that Germany, which supplied France before the war to the extent of 8.5 per cent., now supplies 50 per cent. of flax products. Take the case of the blast furnaces and rolling mills in Belgium. They were deliberately blown up by dynamite and the places left in ruins so that when the war was over Belgian industry would take years to be in a position to compete with Germany. I can supply many other cases where factories in Belgium and France, which constituted a menace to their competitors in Germany, were deliberately put out of action.

German Factories All Intact.

"On the other hand, the houses of Germany with comparatively few exceptions in East Prussia have sustained no damage. The factories of Germany are quite intact. The moment the war was over they were free to manufacture their fabrics and to sell them to the world, while their rivals had their factories and workshops destroyed and their machinery removed or broken up. Therefore unless reparation is made by Germany it means that the victors will pay the price of defeat and the vanquished will reap the fruits of victory.

"I have been informed by the Belgian Ministers who are present that the destruction of Belgian factories and machinery proceeded to such an extent that the German Army in Belgium deported 150,000 Belgian workmen to Germany on the ground that they were unemployed, but this does not represent the whole of the devastation wrought as a result of the war provoked by the German Imperial Government. I have not given the figures for Italy. I have not given the whole of the figures for Great Britain. I have simply taken these as samples of destruction which took place. There is destruction of millions of tons of mercantile shipping. Great Britain, a country more dependent on its shipping than any other, had 8,000,000 tons sent to the bottom of the sea.

"But this summary is incomplete without reference to the still more poignant and devastating loss inflicted upon the allied countries by the killing and crippling of multitudes of their young and vigorous men in the prime of their strength. France lost 1,400,000 in killed, and has to pay pensions to 3,500,000 people. The British Empire lost 1,000,000 in killed, and the crippled who are drawing pensions number about 1,700,000. I have not by me the figures for Italy and Belgium.

"These casualties represent not merely loss in a country of real strength and capacity for wealth production, but a heavy annual burden upon the resources of a country to maintain the dependents and crippled and maimed who cannot earn a living for themselves. France alone, and Great Britain alone, in this respect each bears an annual burden which is almost three times the amount of the whole annual payment now offered by Germany to meet the claim for damages of all kinds.

"Germany, no doubt, has suffered from the war, but in the loss of life it is not comparable in proportion to the population to that sustained by France, and as to material damage, that in East Prussia is trivial compared with that which has been inflicted on France.

"With all this gigantic injury, what is now offered to France, staggering under the load of expenditure cast upon her by war debt and by this wanton destruction which made of her richest province a hideous wilderness of ruin and despair, with the urgent need that she should rebuild the shattered homes and restore the factories which are the sole means of livelihood for the poor people who had endured for five years the horrors of war in their devastated provinces, and with her enormous pension liabilities added on the rest?

What Germany Offers.

"What is offered to Great Britain, with her gigantic debt and pension list incurred in enforcing a treaty which her King signed with the King of Prussia, but which was broken by the latter's dependents?

"What is offered to Italy and to Belgium to relieve their burdens?

"What is offered? Not one-fourth of the sum required to repair the damage, and that only on conditions that those who need it most find it out of their own pockets first, on highly privileged terms, when they can with difficulty raise the money in their own markets to carry on the essential work of government. That is the offer.

"I cannot understand a psychology which permits the representatives of a country whose Government was responsible for the most devastating war the world has ever seen to come solemnly with such terms to a conference with the representatives of the countries that have been the victims of that devastation.

"Had the German Government come here with some proposal which indicated a sincere desire to discharge its obligations, we should have given it the fairest and most patient consideration. If they had said 'Forty-two years is too lengthy a period,' if they had said 'The levy of 12 per cent. upon our exports is not the best method of meeting our liabilities or of ascertaining the amount Germany is at a given moment capable of paying, we have other ways which while they suit us better will equally meet the case,' we should have sat down at these conference tables with the German delegation to examine in perfect good faith their counter-proposals, with a view to arriving at a reasonable accord. These differences perpetuate an atmosphere of disaccord and distrust, and that is fatal to the peace which is so essential to enable the world to renew its normal tasks.

"We know that we were prepared to make all legitimate allowances for the real difficulties under which the German and all other people labor as a result of the war, but these proposals are, frankly, an offense and an exasperation. And as one who is anxious that real peace should be restored in Europe between all its peoples, I deeply deplore that such proposals should ever have been put forward, for they indicate a desire not to perform but to evade the obligations which Germany has incurred, obligations which are far short of those which, according to the precedent she herself set in 1871, we might have imposed.

German Taxation Inadequate.

"Had the German Government imposed taxation on their people comparable to the taxes laid by the allied countries on their citizens they would be in a better position to confront us at the conference table. But here again the vanquished insist upon being let off more lightly than the victor. The German debt, nominally high, is not even nominally as heavy in percentage to the population as that of Great Britain. Britain during the war raised £3,000,000,000 in taxation toward the cost of carrying on the war. Germany made no such effort.

"Today her apparently gigantic debt has been reduced almost to the amount of her pre-war liabilities by a process of depreciating her currency. She has nominally imposed very heavy direct taxes on wealth, but every one knows that they are not fully collected. Her indirect taxes, which are taxes which affect the bulk of the population, are ridiculously low compared with Great Britain's."

Mr. Lloyd George then gave the figures from which he deduced that Germany's failure to bring up her taxation to the level of the taxes in the allied countries constituted in itself an infringement of the Treaty of Versailles, adding that until she imposed at least an equal taxation she was not in position to plead that she was unable to meet the demands of the Paris proposals. Continuing, the British Premier said:

"Now I come to the conclusion of this statement. As I indicated in a short statement I made on Tuesday as President of this conference the counter-proposals do not even afford a basis for examination or discussion. They are simply provocative. Further reflection confirms our first impression. It would therefore be a sheer waste of time to devote any sittings to their consideration. Allies have been conferring upon the whole position and I am now authorized to make this declaration on their behalf:

Breaches of the Peace Treaty.

"The Treaty of Versailles was signed less than two years ago. The German Government has already defaulted in respect of some of its most important provisions—delivery for trial of criminals who have offended against the laws of war, disarmament, payment in cash or in kind of 20,000,000,000 of gold marks, these are some of the provisions.

"The Allies have displayed no harsh insistence upon the letter of their bond. They have extended time. They have even modified the character of their demands. But each time the German Government failed them. In spite of the Treaty and of the honorable undertaking given at Spa, the criminals have not yet been tried, let alone punished, although the evidence has been in the hands of the German Government for months. Military organizations, some of them open, some clandestine, have been allowed to spring up all over the country equipped with arms that ought to have been surrendered.

"If the German Government had shown in respect of reparations a sincere desire to help the Allies to repair the terrible losses inflicted upon them by the act of aggression, of which the German Imperialist Government was guilty, we should still have been ready, as before, to make all allowances for the legitimate difficulties of Germany. But the proposals put forward have reluctantly convinced the Allies either that the German Government does not intend to carry out its treaty obligations or that it has not strength to insist in face of selfish and short-sighted opposition upon the necessary sacrifices being made.

"If that is due to the fact that German opinion will not permit it, that makes the situation still more serious and renders it all the more necessary that the Allies should bring the leaders of public opinion once more face to face with the facts.

"The first essential fact for them to realize is this, that the Allies, while prepared to listen to every reasonable plea arising out of Germany's difficulties, cannot allow any further paltering with the treaty. We have therefore decided, having regard to the infractions already committed and to the determination indicated in these proposals that Germany means still further to defy and explain away the treaty and to the challenge issued not merely in these proposals but in official statements made in Germany by the German Government, that we must act upon the assumption that the German Government are not merely in default, but deliberately in default; and unless we hear by Monday that Germany is either prepared to accept the Paris decisions or to submit proposals which will in other ways are equally satisfactory discharge her obligations under the Treaty of Versailles, subject to the concessions made in the Paris proposals, we shall as from that date take the following course under the Treaty of Versailles."

The Premier then listed the penalties as described.

Protest by Dr. Simons.

LONDON, March 3 (Associated Press).—While Premier Lloyd George was delivering his speech at the conference this morning the German delegates sat very rigid and gave no expression to their feelings throughout the speech. Dr. Simons was extremely pale.

The British version of Dr. Simons's reply quotes him as saying that the Germans would examine the Prime Minister's speech, that their intention had been mistaken and that no occasion would arise for employment of the measures outlined by the Allies.

According to the German text, however, the Foreign Secretary protested against "penalties without legal foundation." This, of course, is based on the Treaty of Versailles, which provides that penalties cannot be enforced until after May 1, but ignores the Allies' contention that the Germans have failed to comply with the conditions of the treaty.

BRITISH PRESS FOR ACTION.

Peril of Allowing Germany Further to Delay Is Pointed Out.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, March 4.—Commenting on Mr. Lloyd George's "masterly indictment of Germany's disloyalty to the Versailles Treaty," The Daily Chronicle says:

"The essence of German tactics is procrastination. They argue to themselves that the longer they can put off carrying out the provisions of the treaty the harder it will be for any one to compel them to do so, and if only they can dally long enough the whole fabric of settlement will crumble to pieces and leave them virtual victors.

"This argument finds abundant warrant in past history, and the Allies must recognize the force of it no less clearly than the Germans do. We cannot allow procrastination to last any longer. Already the reactionary organs of the German press are gleefully proclaiming that if the Allies resort to sanctions before May 1 they will be annulling the treaty and placing Germany in a position as advantageous as if she had never signed it.

"We shall have to explode that notion of advantage and show Germany unequivocally that we are not to be paltered with and that even if in order to enforce the original treaty we have to impose another and more severe treaty upon her with more drastic material guarantees, we shall not shrink from the necessity, onerous as it may be. We must face it now if we are not eventually to lose the whole game."

ARMY READY TO MARCH.

PARIS, March 3.—Minister of War Barthou returned to Paris on a special train this evening in readiness to order the commencement of military operations on Monday if Germany fails to bow before the Allies' ultimatum and accept the Paris accord as a base for reparations payments.

M. Barthou motored immediately to the Ministry of War Building on the Rue Saint Dominique, where a late conference was called with General Buat, Chief of Staff of the French Army. M. Barthou handed General Buat the new plans elaborated at London by Marshal Foch and Sir Henry Wilson after the conference at Premier Lloyd George's country home, Chequers Court, last Sunday.

The additional revised plans provide for British participation in the enterprise and one British battalion will enter Ruhrort, Duisberg and Düsseldorf with the French brigades. English whippet tanks and the English aviation service will also be utilized.

Other German Delegates Criticise Simons As They Start Work on New Set of Proposals

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 3.—After Premier Lloyd George's speech this morning the German delegates returned to the Savoy Hotel, had a substantial luncheon and settled down to the task of formulating new proposals.

According to the latest information available, between now and Monday a quite different proposition will be put forward by the German delegation.

Dr. Simons is being charged with having blundered in the presentation of the German case and with having offered much less than Germany was really prepared to pay. Echoes of the wireless messages which are tonight being exchanged between London and Berlin encourage the belief that another set of proposals will be put forward by the German delegates before Monday next.

It is probable that the German delegation will make the point that their own particular reading of the Versailles Treaty shall be adhered to in the matter of the date of enforcement of penalties. The Germans claim that these cannot be applied till May 1. They base their position on the claim that so far Germany has carried out all her obligations under the Treaty of Versailles.

The French declare that Germany has far from fulfilled her treaty obligations, and while there is some dispute among the juridical experts, particularly on the British and the Italian side, the balance of opinion is strongly against the Teutonic contention.

GERMANS SHAKEN BY ALLIED UNITY

Berlin Financial Circles Optimistic.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 3.—Despite the ultimatum there is restrained optimism in financial circles regarding the London conference. In certain quarters it is believed the German delegates will make new proposals or present the existing ones in a form more favorable to the Allies. The democratic organs, too, are urging the Government to neglect no opportunity to save the situation at the last moment, though still affirming that Paris proposals are impossible.

On the other hand, the extremists are getting more extreme than ever. The Lokal-Anzeiger goes so far as to say that if the penalties are enforced the first reply of Germany will be to present passports to all Entente diplomats and members of missions on the assumption that the Versailles Treaty is nullified and "Germany freed of all its obligations."

Berlin Cabinet in Late Session.

BERLIN, March 3 (Associated Press).—The Cabinet sat until 9 o'clock tonight discussing the report sent by Foreign Minister Simons on the day's events at London. The Ministers are reported to have expressed regret over the threat of penalties, which they considered would find Germany defenseless, and which they believed would constitute an infringement of the Versailles Treaty.

The Acht Uhr Blatt hints at the possibility of a "third proposal, perhaps from a third side, which would either constitute a fresh basis or would do justice to the substance of the proposals of both sides."

Banking circles gave no indication of apprehension regarding the further progress of the Reparations Conference in London, nor was there any apparent uneasiness in the Bourse. In both quarters there was a prevalent feeling that Germany's counter-proposals were not fully understood by the Entente leaders upon their first presentation by Dr. Simons.

Quotations on the Boerse were remarkably firm in the face of a flood of alarming reports from London and Paris, and there was lively speculation in foreign exchange, the demand for American dollars predominating. The manner in which the German counter-proposals were formulated came in for a measure of criticism, notwithstanding the fact that experts of the Foreign, Financial and Economic Departments had been engaged with the Cabinet for a week or more before the German reply was drafted.

The claim was advanced in banking circles that an unbiased perusal of the German reply did not warrant hasty adverse judgments, such as were reported from London and Paris. It was declared the German proposals represented a liberal reparation settlement. There was official denial today of reports that the German counter-offers were represented as an equivalent of the 226,000,000,000 marks demanded in the Paris terms, but that this sum, rediscounted, represented the present capital of 50,000,000,000 marks. The latter sum was made a basis for the present German offer, it was said. Carl Bergmann, financial expert with the German representatives in London, has pointed out that 50,000,000,000 gold marks paid in thirty years would be the sum Germany was willing to acknowledge as her reparation obligation.

It was said the total represented more than one-half of the forty-two annuities demanded in the Paris program, but was payable in a considerably shorter period. Germany's ability to pay this total was largely dependent upon the revival of her export activities, and, as this revival was likely to be slow, the German schedule of payments provided for a gradually ascending scale.

MASON'S WAR VIEWS SCORED BY KINGSLEY

GERMAN PROPAGANDA IS HIT

State Chamber of Commerce Adopts Resolution Aimed at Protest Meeting in the Garden.

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York unanimously adopted a resolution yesterday opposing all propaganda in the United States by the Central Powers or their sympathizers and applauded Major Alfred Wendt, who offered the resolution and launched a sharp attack against the committee which organized the Madison Square Garden protest meeting on Monday evening.

"I do not want to take up too much time," said Major Wendt, "and will merely offer the folowing resolution:

"'Resolved, that this Chamber is opposed to all propaganda now being spread by the Central Powers, or by their agents or by their sympathizers, tending to spread distrust against our Allies and separate us from them in thought or action.'

"In presenting this resolution I refer particularly to the meeting held this week which hardly needs comment, as I believe it has been commented upon by every patriotic society and protested against by everyone.

"I believe one of our daily papers claimed that every man associated with the organizing of this meeting had been or was disloyal to this country. I am also informed that the committee claimed that every member, to the knowledge of the committee, was a loyal American citizen. I do not think any of us know who the Committee of 100 are. It would be very interesting to get the names of the committee because, if they are loyal citizens. I know that none of us would oppose them; but if they are not loyal, or their actions during the war, or subsequently, have not been loyal or have been disloyal, it would be well to know that committee. I don't know whether the committee is willing to give those names, but in view of this I thought it pertinent to have the Chamber act on the question."

A member of the Chamber suggested that the proper procedure would be to refer such a resolution to the Executive Committee, but withdrew his suggestion after Captain John B. Trevor told the members that time "is the essence of a resolution of this character and it seems to me it should be acted upon at once if it is to have any moral effect on the public."

Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life Insurance Company and head of the Chamber, who presided, added the following comment:

"I might remark in addition to what the resolution said, that I attended a meeting last evening in this city where a more or less distinguished member of Congress announced unequivocally that, in spending $35,000,000,000 and 100,000 lives in the war, we made an enormous mistake and we ought never to have done it. I was not altogether surprised, after reading a report of what happened in Madison Square Garden the other night."

At the office of Mr. Kingsley it was said that his reference to a Congressman who called our entry into the war a mistake was meant for Representative William E. Mason of Illinois, who spoke in the Town Hall on Wednesday night at a meeting under the auspices of the Friends of Korea.

CROWDER WARNS CUBAN ELECTORS

Consequences of Failure to Respect Laws Would Be Grave, American Adviser Says.

QUOTES STATE DEPARTMENT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, March 3.—Major Gen. Enoch H. Crowder delivered tonight to the foreign correspondents and to the Havana newspapers a message upon the coming Cuban by-elections. The General stated to the newspaper men that he had no remarks to make beyond those enclosed in the text of his prepared typewritten statement. That portion of the statement quoting the American State Department had been received by General Crowder with the privilege of use at his discretion. He did not state the exact date of receipt.

Since the establishment this week of the " entente cordiale " between leaders of the Liberals and the National League by President Menocal, by which pledges were exchanged for safeguarding the elections, optimism prevails regarding the elections on March 10. But General Crowder gave no intimation as to whether he was optimistic or pessimistic.

Major Gen. Crowder's statement addressed to the American and Cuban peoples is as follows:

" It is a mere truism to say that respect and confidence are the indestructible foundation on which rest all durable popular governments; that the binding force of the decision of the body politic, rendered and registered by means of the franchise and upon which depends the perpetuity of representative free governments, is measured by those qualities, and the structural forms of republican government, however imposing, avail nothing and impart nothing of vitality or stability to a people's political institutions; and that the durability of these depends upon the immutable faith of the people in the capacity and fairness of the collective mind in the making of a choice of public servants, high and low, expressed periodically by the popular vote.

" The extent to which faith in the collective mind and in the binding force of its solemn decisions exists in the Cuban body politic is about to be placed on trial. The forthcoming special elections and the sequence of events they will usher in will furnish the irrevocable answer, and by that answer the Cuban people will be judged in the forum of world public opinion.

The Wonderful Young Brazilian Pianiste

GUIOMAR NOVAES

Gives a Recital at Aeolian Hall
Tomorrow afternoon, March 5th

THERE is no more delightful pianist before the public today than Guiomar Novaes. Her performances, resplendent with exquisite and subtle tone-colorings, filled with the unmistakable fire of natural genius, are alike a joy to the mature critic and concert-goer, and an inspiration and incentive to the student of music

Mlle. Novaes records her art exclusively for

The DUO ART
Reproducing Piano

She says of its ability to reproduce her art:

"I consider the Duo-Art Piano the only reproducing instrument capable of reflecting the subtler characteristics of my playing. It sends my message of music exactly as I speak it to thousands of people who, but for the Duo-Art, would never be able to hear me play.

"When I sit down to make a record for the Duo-Art Piano, I feel that I have before me a palette, with the whole range of musical color, with every tonal shade and tint, ready for my brush—and I know that the colors will not fade.

"The Duo-Art Reproducing Piano is, in my opinion, by far the greatest instrument of its kind—there is nothing, pianistically speaking, that the Duo-Art cannot do"

Guiomar Novaes

You are invited to hear the Duo-Art at any time. Or a written request will bring you the beautifully illustrated Duo-Art Portfolio

MILLER TO APPROVE MOVIE CENSORSHIP

Will Appoint Woman Member of Regulatory Board if Pending Bill Passes.

CALLS FOR THREE CENSORS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 3.—The creation of a Motion Picture Censorship Board, provided for in a bill now before the Legislature, to bar from display in this State salacious films and advertisements, was practically assured today when Governor Miller announced he would favor strict censorship over all "movies."

If a measure is passed by the Legislature giving the Governor power to appoint a censorship commission of three, as proposed in a bill introduced by Assemblyman Clayton of Kings, one of the members will be a woman, Governor Miller said this afternoon, following a long conference with Mrs. Clarence Waterman of Brooklyn, Head of the Better Motion Picture Alliance. Mrs. Waterman favors the Clayton measure. She showed the Governor "lurid" advertisements of picture shows which the alliance contends should be suppressed. Later the Governor said:

"Mrs. Waterman showed me a picture in an advertisement that made me think I must have been living in the woods. It was a surprise to me that any newspaper or other publication would publish such a picture in connection with such an advertisement or that any institution would seek to make money out of such an appeal to the passions. I am in favor of anything that will put an end to that sort of thing, and you can't quote me too strongly."

Assemblyman Clayton had a conference with the Governor today, and following it announced that the Governor would surely sign his bill if it were passed.

Amendments are to be made to the Clayton measure by which the word "censorship" will be eliminated for "regulation." It provides for a commission of three to prohibit the showing of films that are "obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman or sacrilegious." The measure would also prohibit the showing of films of prizefights and films of "such ad character as to corrupt the morals or incite to crime."

Under its terms a fee of $5 would be charged for every thousand feet of film. The commission would be self-sustaining and it is believed would add from $500,000 to $1,000,000 a year to the State's Treasury.

BARRYMORES IN NEW PLAY.

John and Ethel Barrymore, as announced in THE TIMES several weeks ago, will appear together in New York this Spring in "Clair de Lune," a play written by Mr. Barrymore's wife. The formal announcement of this project, made yesterday, declares that the two Barrymores will be seen only in New York. The play will open here next month, probably at the Empire Theatre.

The joint appearance of the Barrymores, who have not acted together for many years, has been made possible in a degree by Miss Barrymore's recent illness. Miss Barrymore's physicians have cautioned her against further touring this year, and accordingly the remainder of the "Declassee" bookings have been abandoned. Mr. Barrymore, with the exception of some motion-picture work in which he has been engaged, has been resting since his breakdown of a year ago. The appearance of brother and sister in "Clair de Lune" will be for a strictly limited period, and they will go their separate artistic ways again at the beginning of next season.

"Clair de Lune" bears the pen name of Michael Strange, over which signature the former Mrs. Leonard Thomas has written for many years. The production will be directed by E. Lyall Swete, and the costumes have been designed by Helen Dryden. A number of well-known players are being engaged for the cast.

Miss Martha Baird's Recital.

Miss Martha Baird gave her second recital last evening in Aeolian Hall before a good-sized audience. The played with technical fluency, but with not much more than a superficial conception, the two most significant pieces on her program, Beethoven's "Waldstein" sonata (which Miss Baird called "L'Aurore," a name not known to the composer) and César Franck's "Prelude, Chorale and Fugue." She followed these with some unfamiliar pieces: a "Novelett in the Style of Schumann," by Morton F. Mason, "Gnossienne," by Erik Satie," and "Two Skatches," by Edward Burlingame Hill after free verses by Stephen X. Crane.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Good Old Days," by Caesar Dunn, will be produced in Chicago during the Summer by H. H. Frazee, and will come to New York in September.

"Smooth As Silk," instead of moving to the Park next week, will remain at the Lexington.

"The Man Within," by Abraham Schomer, will be produced by the Jewish Art Theatre tonight, with Rudolph Schildkraut in the leading role.

The cast which will appear with Margaret Anglin in "Iphigenia in Aulis," at the Manhattan Opera House on April 4, will include Eugene Powers, Harry Barfoot, Sidney Mather, Ralph Roeder, Mary Fowler and Moroni Olsen. The solos will be sung by Merle Alcock, and the dancing led by Anita Day. There will be more than 200 people concerned in the production.

A performance in aid of the Adirondack Fund for Tuberculosis will take place at the Lexington on Sunday night, April 17.

Ethel Levey will play three more weeks in Keith vaudeville before returning to England. Her only Greater New York appearance will be at the Orpheum in Brooklyn.

A program of three short plays by Harold Chapin will be given at the Little Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, March 15, in aid of the charities of All Souls' Church. They will be under the direction of the playwright's mother, Mrs. Alice Chapin.

"Stop Thief!" and "Nance Oldfield," the latter a one-act play, will be acted by the students of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts at the Lyceum a week from Friday.

CARUSO'S FEVER GONE, AWAITS BROTHER TODAY

The favorable progress of Caruso, following the third operation, continued yesterday, and his physicians for the first time reported the tenor as without fever. The operation which was performed on Tuesday to withdraw a secondary accumulation of pus to which his continued feverishness was ascribed, therefore appeared to have accomplished its object. He was able to sit up in bed for several hours at a stretch, said Bruno Zirato, his secretary.

According to word from his suite in the Hotel Vanderbilt, Caruso is looking forward to the arrival of his brother, Giovanni Caruso, who is due today on the Cunarder Caronia from Naples. He is coming to take the tenor back to Italy to recuperate, and the original plan was to leave here about the middle of the month. It was said yesterday, however, that allowing for a short trip to Atlantic City and the retarding effects of the third operation, it would probably be next month before Caruso departs for Italy.

He had a good night and ate a fair breakfast. At luncheon and dinner his appetite was better and he went back to the diet of chicken breast and toast. Several times during the day he drank whisky and milk.

RAISA'S FAREWELL TONIGHT.

Chicago Star Takes Leave in 'Otello'—Mary Garden Sings 'The Juggler.'

Farewells will be sung by the Chicago stars at the Manhattan tonight and tomorrow after six weeks in New York. The house is virtually sold out for "Otello" this evening, when Rosa Raisa takes her leave with Marshall and others, as well as for tomorrow's matiness, the only performance of "Hamlet," with Ruffo, and a final "Carmen" at full opera prices for Saturday night, with Garden, Muratore and Baklanoff.

Miss Garden last evening reappeared in "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame," assisted by Dufranne and the others previously engaged in Massenet's quaint miracle play, performed on this occasion to the largest audience probably that has ever heard it in America. There was genuine pleasure in the unusual opera and much enthusiasm for all concerned in what was only the twentieth representation of it here in a dozen years since its production by Oscar Hammerstein.

Miss Margaret Wilson, who has been a guest at several of the Chicago company's performances here, sent from Washington to Miss Garden last evening a bouquet of roses from the conservatories of the White House.

MUSIC NOTES.

Lieutenant John Philip Sousa's latest march, "Keeping Step With the Union," is announced to be played in Washington today at the inauguration of President Harding. The music is dedicated to Mrs. Harding.

Dr. Fridtjof Nansen's daughter, Miss Liv Nansen, who came to New York with the Norwegian explorer in 1917 and has studied music here since, has won a $1,000 fellowship given by the American Scandinavian Foundation.

Dr. Frank Damrosch and the students of the Institute of Musical Art are to repeat at Washington Irving High School on Saturday night the fine Beethoven program for chorus and orchestra heard at Aeolian Hall recently.

THRONG HEARS 'LOHENGRIN'

Miss Easton Elsa and Harrold in Title Role at Metropolitan.

Wagner's "Lohengrin," which has proved perhaps the most distinguished among the Metropolitan's revivals in English, and certainly most popular, as it is most recent, of the three so presented here, was sung for the third time last evening to a great audience on Broadway. To Miss Easton, an Elsa challenging the high traditions of this stage, the house paid that rapt attention which her sympathetic delineation of the character, no less than her crystal-clear enunciation of the text, entitled her.

Orville Harrold at short notice sang Lohengrin, and he, too, had the advantage of admirable diction, as the American tenor had before shown in both "Parsifal" and "Tristan." Mme. Claussen, a competent artist, appeared in place of another absentee as Ortrud, while Mr. Whitehill was the Telramund, Mr. Gustafson the King, Mr. Leonhardt the Herald, and Mr. Bodanzky conducted.

The Metropolitan's special matinee of "Madama Butterfly" yesterday afternoon was given as a benefit for the Neighborhood Music School, in East 104th Street. There was a large audience and the institution received about $5,000 from the performance, in which the leading artists were Miss Farrar. Messrs. Crimi and Scotti.

PLAYS WITH PHILHARMONIC.

Alexander Schmuller, Violinist, in Mendelssohn's Concerto.

The Philharmonic Society, which will give its 1,500th concert before the present month brings to an end the veteran organization's seventy-ninth season, presented a program of the imposing number 1,492 last evening before a house sold out at Carnegie Hall. Bach's suite in D major was the classic opening, followed by Mendelssohn's violin concerto, with Alexander Schmuller.

In sharp contrast, after an intermission, were three ultra-modern works of Richard Strauss, including his early "Don Juan," the still earlier "Serenade" for wind instruments and the love scene from the opera, "Feuersnot," which has failed to reach the local stage, though composed before "Salome" and "Elektra." The audience was cordial in its reception of so varied musical fare under the baton of Mr. Stransky.

This afternoon's complete change of program will include a performance from manuscript of Reginald Sweet's "Riders to the Sea."

Juan Reyes, Pianist, Plays Again.

Juan Reyes, a Chilean pianist whose recent first appearance in New York, in spite of illness, won for him serious consideration as an artist, gave a second program at Aeolian Hall yesterday, when he surprised a matinee audience into frank enjoyment of a sonata of Brahms. The work was the composer's opus 5 in F minor, its five movements most notably characterized in that of the andante bearing a poet's motto of "pale moonlight," and "hearts in ecstasy."

This was Brahms in a mood that matinee audiences are scarcely prone to remember, and the surprise was reflected in the player's well-earned applause. He gave an interesting "Flammes de Mer" by Sauer, among lesser pieces, with Chopin's "Barcarolle," Sgambati's version of a Beethoven minuet and two of Liszt's paraphrases on Wagner's spinning chorus from "Flying Dutchman" and on Bellini's airs from "Norma."

PERSONAL.

I deeply regret, for personal as well as business reasons, that Mr. George McAneny is retiring from active connection with The New York Times. Mr. McAneny will give his attention to other business engagements that, incidentally, will permit him to devote a substantial part of his time to certain measures of large importance for scientific city planning and co-ordinated social work. He carries with him the high regard and sincere good wishes of those with whom he has been associated in the management of The Times.

Adolph S. Ochs,

MR. HARDING'S ADMINISTRATION.

Three undertakings, above all others in importance, await the new Administration. They are of a magnitude sufficient, if successfully achieved, to confer distinction upon any Administration. First, the attitude and relation of the United States to other nations, which are the same as its relation to the League of Nations, must be determined. Second, it will be necessary to revise, and promptly, the Federal revenue laws. Third, and on this the welfare and prosperity of the country depend, measures must be taken for the readjustment and development of our foreign trade. In these undertakings, and in all its tasks and problems, the new Administration will have the good-will and co-operation, in so far as co-operation is needed and can be given, of the whole country. As members of his Cabinet Mr. Harding has chosen men of ability and wide experience. He will find in them a helpful body of counselors.

In view of the importance of the policies to be formulated and the decisions to be taken, it is fortunate that he has a man of Mr. Hughes's judicial mind as his Secretary of State. It is known that Mr. Hughes understands the importance of reaching an early agreement with the other nations concerning the international pact to renounce war and set up the rule of right and law and justice as a means of adjusting differences between nations. It may be said that the majorities by which Mr. Harding was raised to his place of authority give him freedom to approach and solve these problems in his own way. It may be said with even greater force that he is in a position of entire freedom from campaign prepossessions, that in any steps he may take to place the United States side by side with the other nations he is free to consider only the interests of the people of the United States and of the world. No nation is entirely independent which must take into account the views of half a hundred other nations, each one equally independent. Mr. Harding will be quite free in respect to but one choice—the choice to stay out. If there were not a multitude of other good reasons for going in, the question of the mandates which has arisen because we were not at the council table would be a sufficiently grave warning against the policy of standing aloof.

It is no longer disputed that the tax laws must be revised. The income taxes, disclosing the vices of their origin and nature, have come to the point where they are insufficient for the support of the Treasury. More than that, the excess profits tax and the higher surtaxes have become not merely odious to the people, but harmful and dangerous to the industries of the country. Mr. Harding will be sure of a favorable reception of his recommendations to Congress for a revision of these laws. The only doubtful point is as to the substitutes provided. The danger is obvious that outworn theories of the party in power may prevail. However, if any considerable dependence is placed upon higher tariff duties, their disappointing yield will very soon compel a resort to other sources of revenue.

The need of immediate measures to safeguard and extend the foreign trade of the United States is plain. That will be one of the most urgent, and at the same time one of the most difficult, of the tasks of the new Administration. Capacity production in this country, and our capacity has been enormously increased, cannot be maintained unless we bestir ourselves to find an outlet for our goods in foreign markets. Rivalry will be intense, and our competitors have resources and knowledge and experience far beyond ours. We are in a critical period of our commercial history. For the first time we are a creditor nation and we cannot without great injury to ourselves and to other nations maintain a policy of exclusion. To shut out goods of foreigners would tend inevitably to close their markets to our own. Upon the trade policy of the new Administration and of the new Congress the country's prosperity will very largely depend. Few of our Presidents have found so many momentous matters awaiting their attention when they took office.

THE LABOR PARTY LOSES.

If the by-election in Cardiganshire was a marked victory for Lloyd George, that in Woolwich is a heavy defeat for the Labor Party. It had put up one of its ablest men in a distinctly working-class constituency. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald was a candidate to succeed Mr. Will Crooks, who had been returned for the Labor Party from Woolwich unopposed in 1918. But Mr. MacDonald was beaten by an ex-soldier, Captain Gee, who made it his chief election appeal that this is no time to strike a blow at the Government which is endeavoring to make Germany pay a just war reparation. The majority against Mr. MacDonald, which was nearly 700, meant that thousands of workingmen and workingwomen voted against him on account of his sympathetic attitude toward Germany, during the war and since.

The loss of Woolwich is only one of many signs that the power of the Labor Party in England is waning. As Mr. J. H. Thomas has bitterly complained, it cannot longer command the loyalty of its own members. The result is to make an end of the confident predictions of two years ago that a Labor Government would soon be in power in England. Mr. Henderson was to be Prime Minister, Mr. MacDonald Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Snowden Foreign Secretary, and so on. But if even Woolwich will not stand by Mr. MacDonald, it is hard to see how he can get into Parliament at all, or what good it would do him if he could.

GERMANY "MISUNDERSTOOD."

Berlin dispatches report that the Germans are again deeply pained at not being understood in foreign countries. This was a grief that pursued them all through the war; it is now freshly stirred by the proceedings at the London conference. There the purity and nobility of German motives are not accepted with the simple faith which Germany feels is her due. Even as to the financial details of the German counter-proposals, the head of Germany's delegation, Dr. Simons, laments that the English and the French have failed to grasp the true significance of the German figures. Apparently, the basis of this complaint is that the slow-witted British did not perceive that the "fixed prices" of Germany's offer really meant willingness to do the necessary bargaining.

The real offense of the Allies, in Germany's eyes, is that of having understood her only too well. They have followed her manoeuvres since the Supreme Council decided at Paris on the amount of the German reparation. At first the German press and Government declared that the sum was flatly impossible. They would not even discuss it. No German delegates would be sent to London. Later it appeared that delegates would go, but only to announce Germany's refusal. Presently it came out that they would like to talk the whole thing over and make some offers of their own. These were rejected by Lloyd George on sight, and now Dr. Simons admits that Germany will try again, and announces that, in his opinion, there will be "no occasion" for the Allies to carry out their ultimatum which expires next Monday. This can only mean that misunderstood Germany intends to climb down.

The Allies, it is plain, do not intend to be themselves misunderstood. Their threat of military and naval action is too plain and precise to be mistaken. Germany must agree or take the consequences. Yet the door is left open for her to debate ways and means and time of paying her war reparation. One alteration of the German offer is at once made possible, or necessary, by the finding of the Reparation Commission in regard to the cash value of the restorations and surrenders of property already made by Germany. Dr. Simons confidently estimated this at 20,000,000,000 marks. The commission decides that it is only 8,000,000,000. So that the Germans are bound in consistency to raise their bid by at least the difference, 12,000,000,000 marks. In other ways, too, there can be little doubt that the German delegates will discover a method of submitting to the demands of the Allies in time to prevent the execution of the ultimatum. Germany may be the great misunderstood, but at all events she is beginning to understand.

SPOILSMEN IN THE POST OFFICE.

Republican devotees of the spoils system are spreading reports that Mr. Harding is going to rescind Mr. Wilson's executive order of March 31, 1917, making appointments to Presidential Post Offices dependent upon competitive examination. Mr. Harding is pledged to the extension of the merit system. Mr. Hays, the next Postmaster General, has declared himself in favor of "taking the Post "Office Department out of politics "from top to bottom." So the heathen rage in vain, for it must be a quibble of the spoilsman, insulting to Mr. Hays's good faith and contrary to the fact, to assume that politics is now in the department; that the merit system has not been fairly applied; and that a lot of Democrats must be driven out and a lot of Republicans let in before politics will be really excluded.

Postmaster General Burleson has been attacked frequently and viciously by the spoilsmen of his own party and by the Republicans in the Senate. Whatever the general efficiency or inefficiency of his administration of his department, he has been faithful to the merit system. He has disproved by the records all the attacks that have been made upon him in regard to civil service appointments. The charge that the President's order in regard to Presidential Postmasters has not been carried out and that Democrats have been unduly favored is refuted by the replies of 2,103 Postmasters to whom the Postmaster General sent a letter asking them to give their "political affiliation." Of these 2,103 the Democrats were 1,012, the Republican's 907, the Independents 32, Prohibitionists 10, Socialists 3. Ten didn't give their politics and 29 belonged to no party. The replies of the Postmasters come from all the States. Taking out the 11 Southern States, mostly Democratic, of the Presidential Postmasters from the rest of the country 598 are Democrats, 846 Republicans, 26 Independents, 9 Prohibitionists, and so forth. Even in the 11 Southern States there are 61 Republican Postmasters.

In States where political opinion is more evenly divided, often more Republicans than Democrats have been appointed. Thus in Michigan there are 46 Republicans and 16 Democrats, in California 33 Republicans and 14 Democrats, in Nebraska 55 Republicans and 21 Democrats, in New York 40 Republicans and 36 Democrats, in Wisconsin 54 Republicans and 7 Democrats, in Illinois 62 Republicans and 33 Democrats, in Iowa 63 Republicans and 19 Democrats. Several Postmasters were Republican County Chairmen. Without any more illustrative figures, though there are plenty of them, it is clear that President Wilson's executive order has been followed in the letter and the spirit and that the highest qualified names on the eligible list have been submitted by the Postmaster General to the President. In short, the merit system has been enforced fairly. Mr. Harding and Mr. Hays must in good faith continue so to enforce it and let the Republican spoilsmen howl as vainly as their Democratic brethren have been howling.

TIME FOR ACTION.

Presumably the last word has been said on the traction troubles and the time has come for action. More talk would be futile, for there are no signs that millions of words have altered any opinions, even of the talkers themselves. Senator Johnson is still proud of the part he took in solving the railway troubles of California by an appointive commission, but nobody can convince him that his way is suited to New York. He has much to say about the differences between the commissions, but nothing to say about the differences in the conditions which make Governor Miller's commission as well suited to New York as Senator Johnson's was suited to California. Mayor Hylan thought in 1917 that the Board of Estimate should be deprived of power in the matter of the west side improvement, but thinks now that it is an infringement of home rule to take similar action in the traction business after the Board of Estimate has done nothing for years.

The opposition has sought in vain to arouse fifty-nine cities of the State to their danger from State tyranny. Twenty-five cities were not interested enough to enlist in the home rule army and thirteen favored what they were asked to oppose. So far as the poll of the cities goes the sentiment seems to be languid, with a disposition to leave New York City to extricate itself from the troubles resulting from putting its affairs into the hands of officials who have obstructed everything and accomplished nothing. Exception should be made of the budget. That is an accomplishment the City Administration does not boast of at a time when it is free with criticism of the finances of the tractions. The critics of the Governor's proposal would dearly love to be re-elected on the home rule issue, in the hope that city finances would be overlooked in the campaign as remarkably as the traction finances are overlooked in the debate on the Constitution.

The Interborough deficit for January of $225,841 was announced during the free-for-all talk festival in which the Interborough was represented as basing its riches on the spoliation of the city. For the seven months ending with January the deficit was $2,908,602. There is nothing novel about the figures. The singular thing is that the city officials are rather pleased with them than otherwise. The securities of the Interborough have shrunk in the market from $259,000,000 to $126,000,000 and the surface lines from $39,000,000 to $11,000,000. They carry more passengers for longer and faster rides than when they were at the top of their prosperity, and give more for a nickel than can be bought anywhere else in the world. The idea seems to be that this can continue indefinitely. It is a demagogue's promise, as full of guile and deceit in Manhattan as in Brooklyn. There insistence upon the sacredness of the traction contracts has reduced the transfer points from more than a thousand to nearly a hundred, and the nickel payers pay some $10,000,000 more a year for accommodations growing worse daily.

KILLING TIME IN THE SENATE.

If time were endlessly long and wide, there still wouldn't be enough of it for the United States Senate. Having spent much of the session in futile dawdling, digression and controversy, it is using its last hours for the same want of purpose. The Navy Appropriation bill may fail to pass. It was so unimportant compared with the necessary business of trying to humbug the farmers that the Senate dropped it to spend an hour on and to pass by a great majority the ridiculous provision in the Agricultural Appropriation bill wasting $360,000 for free seeds that nobody wants and that will never come up. The Senate joyously reversed itself. Both parties were eager for the continuation of this ancient humbug. The Democrats sacrificed to the great god Buncombe even more piously than the Republicans. The Sundry Civil bill, including an appropriation of $18,000,000 for absolutely necessary hospital care and treatment of sick and wounded veterans, has stuck in conference for nearly three weeks, grounded on Muscle Shoals.

See these solemn wasters of time and the people's money practice their art. After free seeds have been gulped down, Senator Calder consumes an hour with remarks on the industrial situation in the country. Anything to eat up the dying hours. Senator Jones of New Mexico goes through the form of making an effort to bring the Bonus bill before the Senate, though he and everybody else knows it can't be done. Senator Smith of South Carolina amuses himself by asking unanimous consent for the consideration of a bill to bridge the Savannah River. Senator Poindexter, after an adjournment of ten minutes on his motion, stirs the laughter of his leisurely associates by making a mistake about the time. He can't read the Senate clock correctly. Of course not. What is time or its register among those careless spirits? The adjournment had been made necessary by an hour given to formal "eulogies," in the old Congressional style, of two deceased members of the House. No matter how much unfinished business there may be, there must be no suppressed rhetoric. So the Senate had earned its ten minutes of adjournment.

Then the rested Senators resumed their noble intellectual task of calling up picayune bills and making points of order. Senator Lodge vainly tried to have the reading of the journal suspended. Senator Borah objected, and thirty-five minutes were given to the droning out of the proceedings of the Senate, beginning more than a week back. Then the Senate found it couldn't stand any more of this cruel punishment. Senator King started a longitudinous speech in opposition to the Navy Appropriation bill. And so on. Let us hope that the Senate of the Sixty-seventh Congress will attend to business a little more strictly. Sometimes it seems as if a certain inherent arrogance were characteristic of the Senatorial mind. This trifling with public business is not pleasant at any time. In the last moments of the session it is especially unedifying and irritating.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Transformed Without Any Shocks.

So often, now, has there been made in perfect quietness what is called a "change of Administration" at Washington that nothing like surprise will be felt anywhere in the country at the repetition of the familiar scene today. But though so familiar, it still is interesting and still is important as demonstrating that the United States is a true democracy.

Political controversies here are often hot, and they are sometimes bitter. A foreign visitor, not well versed in the history of the country, might have his doubts, as he listens to the speeches made during a Presidential campaign, as to the willingness of the millions whom election day proves to be a defeated minority to accept the verdict as conclusive. He might expect, or fear, resentment, resistance or even revolution. That would be because he did not know in just what way, and to just what degree, we believe the accusations made against each other by the rival candidates and their supporters while the campaign is on, or what weight we ascribe to campaign predictions of national calamity if the party that is "in" does not remain in or if the one that is "out" does not succeed in its efforts to enter.

All this talk is sincere enough at the time of saying, but back in every American mind is the remembrance that, no matter who is elected, life will remain something more than fairly tolerable, even for the vanquished, and that we shall escape either ruin or the millennium—the two dreadful things that so often have been prophesied without the arrival of either of them.

Thousands Come and Depart.

Little as is the disturbance, visible or audible, that accompanies a change in the Federal Administration, it is yet a serious thing for two large groups of people—for the thousands for whom it means loss of office and employment, and of the salaries that go therewith, and for the other thousands who take their places and the pay thereof.

Nowadays, of course, there is no such wholesale immigration and emigration as there used to be. The level of official stability has been rising steadily for years past, and at present it is not far below departmental heads. The "permanent officials" go on doing the work they have learned to do, in practical safety amid the political mutations. They are not yet as many as they should be—the surviving spoilsmen have seen to that—but the old waste and inefficiency due to ignorance and inexperience among minor officials have vastly decreased. The once scorned "Mugwump," his obloquious name now almost forgotten, wanders, a happy shade, through city halls, court houses and all sorts of bureaus, his work, if not done, at least much more than well begun.

And on inauguration day no American is afraid; and of the few who are angry, most of them have the good sense and the good taste to be silent. All of the real Americans accept the situation, hope for the best, and promise help and good-will.

A Quarrel Happily Was Avoided.

Something that would have been decidedly unpleasant came near happening Wednesday evening when the Belgian billiard player, Horemans, disputed the assertion of the referee, Hauser, as to the position of two of the balls. The referee said that the balls were "frozen," while the player insisted that they were not, and when a reversal of the decision was refused he went and sat down in seeming determination to end the match.

In doing that Horemans was quite wrong, of course, whether right or wrong as to the point at issue, as a referee is expected to be honest and fair, not to be infallible, and his decisions should be accepted as final. But Hauser did not stand on his technical rights; instead, he asked the opinions of Schaefer, the other player, and of the scorekeeper, and, as both were against him, he reversed his decision and the game went on. After it was over for the evening, however, Hauser resigned the position of referee on the ground that he could not fill it with satisfaction to himself with power limited by the appeal from his judgment for which the conditions of this match provide. In taking that course he seems to have been super-sensitive, for agreed conditions, whatever they may be, are fair, and to abide by them involves no loss of dignity.

What is more important, however, and highly satisfactory, is the fact that Schaefer agreed with his antagonist, though to do so was disadvantageous to him. That showed generosity and good sportsmanship—both qualities particularly admirable when displayed in an international competition, just as their opposites, in such circumstances, are particularly disgraceful.

Feminine Earnings Are Large.

It hardly would have been expected, even in these days, that the average incomes of the single women making separate returns for the State tax should come within a few dollars of equaling the average income of the single men. Such was the case, however, in 1920, the figures for the two classes being $2,459 and $2,394.

But the incomes of the men paying the tax as heads of families averaged only $2,851, which shows that, as usual, not much is to be learned from averages. They tell nothing except as to totals, and as they are derived from totals, what they tell is rarely of any real consequence. Of course, no such number of "single" women make income returns as of men similarly unaccompanied, while great numbers of both make no returns at all. Exemptions, too, must be considered in attempting to draw conclusions from such statistics as these.

For Full Production.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Production" solution is easy! Put to work all parasites: Kings, queens, princes, potentates, lords, dukes, counts, brokers, bandits, grafters, 95 per cent. of all officials, 98 per cent. of all editors, newspaper men and correspondents, 99 per cent. of authors and writers, merchants, clerks, bookkeepers and salesmen. Nine-tenths of all these are useless. World would be better off without us. Then we could produce!

JUST SPARROWS.

City sparrows, aggressive and arrogant—
Arguing noisily and profanely
On the lowest branch of a stunted sapling
That grew unhappily out of the pavement
On an east side street.

But presently another sparrow—
An earnest, hard-working fellow,
With serious business on his mind,
And no time to spare for argument (Probably with a home to furnish
And a family to provide for)—
Spied, in the wind-swept gutter,
A bit of bright, soft plumage
It was just the right size and shape
For beautifying a new nest,
And it had an opulent look
That was bound to appeal
To a sparrow of cultivated taste;
So he seized it joyfully in his bill,
When—

The argumentative sparrows
Happened to glance that way,
And—for once in perfect accord—
Pounced upon the unlucky capitalist
And tore his treasure from him.
He made a valiant defense,
But it was one against five,
And futile from the beginning;
And so, his little breast heaving,
And his feathers ruffled and ragged,
He watched the marauders destroy
The pretty thing he loved.

For they fought one another for it
As viciously as they had fought him;
And between them the bit of gay plumage
Was torn to infinitesimal shreds
That the wind carried away. . . .

NEW MEN AND MEASURES.

By POLLIO.

Will H. Hays, as Postmaster General, has taken a newspaper man with him as First Assistant Postmaster General, Courtland Smith, President of the American Press Association.

Mr. Smith's particular work will be to bring to the Harding Administration the good-will and friendship of the newspapers and magazines that Mr. Burleson lost for Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Smith has a wide acquaintance with the press of the country, is a fluent writer and speaker, and should undo much of the harm of the Texan's policy.

It is twenty-four years ago that Lyman J. Gage left his comfortable $25,000 position as President of the First National Bank of Chicago to accept the $8,000 Treasury portfolio that Mr. Mellon, also a bank President, assumes in the Harding Cabinet.

Mr. Gage soon found it was a different proposition to keep a borrower on the tenter-hook than to sit on that sharp point himself. It is one thing to tell a man what he must do to get credit and another to have a Senator or Congressman hold up a bond refunding plan because he was dissatisfied when he could not get a constituent placed on the Government payroll.

Mr. Gage had no experience with the ways of a politician, but was fortunate in having as private secretary Frank A. Vanderlip, who resigned his position as financial reporter on The Chicago Tribune to accompany Mr. Gage to Washington.

Mr. Vanderlip had gone through a schooling as a cub reporter that enabled him to handle the recalcitrant Congressman. He was soon advanced to the position of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and took the unpleasant political work off Mr. Gage's shoulders.

Mr. Mellon will need a good secretary more than most men, as he, like Mr. Gage, has had no political experience, nor has he had any experience with Washington newspaper correspondents, the men who make or break a Cabinet officer.

Mr. Gage appointed another newspaper man, George E. Roberts, as Director of the Mint. Mr. Roberts worked on a Western Iowa paper during the critical free silver campaign of 1896. His clear-headed arguments for the gold standard attracted Mr. Gage's attention and when Senator Allison recommended Mr. Roberts as Director of the Mint the appointment was made at once.

It is a coincidence that two of Mr. Gage's newspaper finds rose to eminence in the financial world, Mr. Vanderlip to the Presidency of the National City Bank and Mr. Roberts to the Vice Presidency of the same institution.

Probably one of Mr. Harding's first acts will be the appointment of a commission to go to Europe to bring about an association of nations.

During the campaign he promised the country he would do so, and those who know Mr. Harding best say he considers he has a mandate from the people to carry out his promise at once. If he does appoint such a commission, it is probable the Knox resolution declaring peace with Germany will wait until Mr. Harding has a chance to try his plan. The present crisis of the London Conference over the amount of the German indemnity may delay the program for a short time, but April 1 will probably see the commission in Europe.

Friends of Mr. Hoover say one of the compelling reasons he accepted a Cabinet office was that in appointing him Mr. Harding defied the wrath of Senators Penrose, Johnson and Reed, and if the President would go that far for him, he would not let President Harding fall between two stools by declining his offer.

The appointment of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt has not brought the favorable comment that was expected.

General Wood's friends feel that he should have gone into the Cabinet—that the placing of young Roosevelt in the Navy Department is a sop to the Wood followers for failure to recognize the General.

Many of Colonel Roosevelt's friends think he should have remained in the State Legislature until he had a chance to make good, as hardly any of the measures he advocated were acted upon favorably.

It is doubtful if General Wood will accept President Harding's appointment to the Philippines. The General is a poor man and must put in the few years of active life left to him in accumulating something for his family and old age.

IRELAND AND WEST INDIES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The National Council of the Friends of Irish Freedom, according to The Times of Feb. 26, urges the incoming Administration to demand from Great Britain and France the surrender as part payment of their indebtedness to us of the American islands and territory on the mainland now held by these powers. Mindful of the lofty purposes of the proponents of this solution of the allied debt problem, fully aware of their noble aspirations and not ignorant of their labors in the past, one is impelled to ask how this proposal squares with the principle of self-determination. In accordance with this principle, which the Friends of Irish Freedom have always professed to uphold, could France and Great Britain surrender the territories in question and the inhabitants thereof without consulting them and at the demand of another Government as compensation in whole or in part of a debt contracted by the French and British Governments acting in the name of the entire people?

The proponents of the scheme doubtless had this question raised when discussing their plan. They were very likely able to reconcile what on the face of it seems a contradiction. Surely they cannot be willing under the circumstances to keep that to themselves, but prompted by those characteristically generous impulses be gracious enough to divulge to the world how the surrender can be effected and the principle remain intact.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Appeals are being made to this society for baby clothes by young mothers whose husbands are unemployed or who have been obliged to go to a hospital on account of accident or disease. Any articles in good condition, however much service they have seen, will be more than welcome.

ART NOTES.

The American Art Galleries are filled with pictures, furniture and antiquarian reminiscences. The old Shippen-Burd family of Philadelphia were notable for public spirit and charitable impulse. When all had died except Mrs. Burd she devoted her last years to founding the Burd School for Orphan Girls. The school was furnished from Mrs. Burd's collection of antique objects, and in one of the rooms was a suite that had belonged to Marie Antoinette. The pupils of the school were taught to regard this suite with the reverence due its age and history, and one of the pupils writes that they never understood why, as much of the other furniture seemed to them prettier. But its green and white and gold, its Beauvais tapestry with classical designs on a rose du Barry ground, its charming carvings of laurel leaves and berries, look very pretty indeed to the modern collector.

The Marie Antoinette suite is on exhibition with the rest of the Burd collection prior to its sale for the benefit of the school, the Board of Trustees not unwisely considering that the higher education of some of the pupils of the school would justify the dispersal of the collection. One can but hope that the education will be high enough to pay for the sacrifice, for there is ample material for education in standards of craftsmanship provided by these dining tables by Duncan Phyfe in their untortured original condition, these magnificent chests and sideboards and chairs, this old Sheffield plate with the silver and copper united in the early honest fashion, this glass with its rich color and variety.

In the same galleries is the exhibition of artistic treasures removed from the Westover Mansion in Virginia, the American country house of Lord Delaware, headquarters of General McClellan and General Fitz-John Porter. It was purchased by Mrs. C. Sears Ramsay, who added to the old furniture already in the house, other pieces harmonious in style and of about the same dates. Highboys and lowboys, desks, four-post bedsteads, wardrobes and dining-room furniture include beautiful specimens of eighteenth century workmanship, many with historic associations. There are good rugs, entertaining samplers and embroideries, a few old engravings and a few paintings, among them a pair of opulent decorative compositions by Charles LeBrun, director of Gobelins in the seventeenth century.

In the upper galleries is a small collection of pictures by old and modern artists, belonging to estates and private owners. It includes no very salient examples, but "A Dutch Corner" by George Hendrick Breitner, which was given by the artist to William M. Chase, is a delightful piece of painting by an underestimated painter.

Drawings on Exhibition.

The Touchstone Galleries are given up to drawings until March 12. In the inner gallery W. Reinecke shows figure drawings and John Liello Spanish and French subjects, for the most part architectural. Mr. Reinecke oils his paper as Degas did and makes the tricky little device serve a legitimate and esthetic end. And, again as Degas did, he tells truth by telling untruth. He exaggerates forms not to the point of deformity, but just to the point where they get themselves seen in their most characteristic character. He knows form, human form, extremely well, and when he is taking most liberties with his knowledge he is taking none at all with his subject, but is bringing out all there is in it of beauty and significance, a very genuine talent, capable of going very far, but showing in one little foolish "Blue Lady" a dangerous tendency toward breaking down into commonplace. If he is being commercially successful he should stop it at once and go on doing such things as "Madame Bacchus."

Mr. Liello has a talent for seeing clearly and keeping the dew on his work. Nothing could be fresher and more blithe than his little "Street of Sainte Maxime" with its grapevine on the wall, or his "Old Roman Aqueduct" with its tiled roofs, or his poplars on the road to Frijus. He works with a brush and Japanese ink, and, in such subjects as the "Italian Lumber Ships" draws his rigging with a line as fine as a Japanese line, and as vigorous. The "Blacksmith Shop at Les Martigues" is perhaps the most accomplished drawing, a lovely play of vivid detail against a background of rather severe architecture. There are several paintings by the same artist in the gallery, strong studies in color of Spanish landscape. In "The Little Black Goat" he adds to the effect of blazing sunlight on nearby fields the interest of animal character, the goat having a well-defined personality sketchily presented.

The outer gallery is occupied by portrait drawings by Ruth Thomas, sincere and careful, and showing a real insight into character, but built upon a somewhat light foundation of draftsmanship and anatomical fact. Among the sitters are Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott, Mrs. E. Ridgely Simpson, Lieutenant Clarence Townsley and Lieutenant William Coogan.

HARVARD RAISES TUITION.

Increase Is Made Necessary by Deficit This Year of $300,000.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 3.—An increase in tuition fees at Harvard University, made necessary by an advance in expenses and an estimated deficit for this year of more than $300,000, was announced by the corporation and the Board of Overseers today.

In Harvard College, the Engineering School, the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, the School of Architecture, the School of Landscape Architecture and the Bussey Institution, the tuition fee is raised from $200 to $250 a year. This becomes effective next September.

Stipends of scholarships will be increased at the same time so as to impose no extra hardship on needy students. The amount available in scholarships and other aids in the college alone will thus be raised to more than $150,000 a year.

In the Medical School an increase from $225 to $300 will become effective with those entering next year, but will not apply to those already in the school. All students in the Dental School must pay a $200 annual fee. The Law School rate remains stationary, as a raise was put into effect last year. The Graduate School of Education and Divinity School are not affected.

RIIS PARK GIFT POSTPONED.

City to Let Harding Administration Express Its Wishes.

After a long argument on the question, the Sinking Fund Commission yesterday postponed for three months decision on turning over a part of Jacob Riis Park, at Rockaway Beach, to the Navy Department for a naval air station. This was to permit the incoming Federal Administration to express its wishes in the matter. In the meantime, the present station will be continued. Rear Admiral J. H. Glennon, retired, said this disposition of the matter was entirely satisfactory.

Petitions were presented from citizens of Rockaway requesting that the commission give the department what it desired. The whole matter now hinges on a question of necessity.

Controller Craig reported an offer of the Realty Associates to take back the park property which they sold to the city at the price they received, $1,300,000. The Controller said he personally opposed the donation of the property to the Federal Government or its abandonment as a public park. The Controller thought the offer of the realty company should receive prompt consideration. His report was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

DAYLIGHT SAVING NOW UP TO GOVERNOR

PROTEST SENT TO MILLER

ALBANY, March 3.—New York City and other cities of the State will have to decide for themselves soon whether they want daylight saving, for Governor Miller has pledged himself to sign the Betts bill, now before him, repealing the Daylight Saving act and giving cities local option.

The repeal bill went to the Governor today after the Senate had passed it by a vote of 27 to 22, only one more vote than was necessary. The bill had already received Assembly approval.

Ten Republicans, all from New York City and its vicinity, refused to heed the party whip and voted with the Democrats against the measure.

Attacks on the repeal bill came first from Senator Duell, Westchester Republican. He asserted 90 per cent. of the voters of his district were opposed to taking the daylight saving statute off the books and expressed the belief that the same proportion all through the State was against repeal.

"The principle of this bill is to kill daylight saving," he said. "The local option feature of it does not mean anything, and this measure does not reflect what was in the daylight saving plank of the Republican platform.

Senator Smith, Republican, of Rockland County, opposed the measure, saying that the farmers of the State did not want it, and that farmers in his district favored the present law and had never suffered any hardships under it.

Downing Attacks Repeal.

The action of the Republicans in repealing the statute, according to Senator Bernard Downing, New York Democrat, was not in the interest of the people. The workers, he said, demanded retention of the law.

This brought a retort from Clayton R. Lusk, majority leader, who charged that "some people profess to represent the cause of the working people when they have no right to. The only time labor went on record on daylight saving was when the American Federation of Labor at Atlantic City in 1919 voted against it," he said.

The Merchants' Association, through its President, William Fellowes Morgan, sent a telegram last night to Governor Miller urging him not to approve the Daylight Saving repeal bill passed by the Senate during the afternoon. The message to the Governor read:

"We respectfully but strongly protest against the approval by you of the Daylight Saving repeal bill just passed by the Senate and now before you.

"Careful inquiry by us throughout the State warrants the assertion that this measure is opposed by a large majority of the people, and to give it effect will be to subordinate the rights of the majority to the demand of the minority. The reason for and the beneficial effects of daylight saving have been made known to you and are clearly evident. The additional period of leisure time which daylight saving affords is not only a great boon to the vast population of the cities, but is likewise a potent influence in protecting and promoting the health of city dwellers.

Calls Local Option Insufficient.

"The local option feature of the bill is not a sufficient nor tenable alternative, for the reason that it will subject the entire population of the State to extreme inconvenience and annoyance by practically destroying the standard of time and substituting a great diversity of time in various communities.

"We further protest that the bill as passed does not reflect the sincere convictions of some of those who voted for it. Those votes were cast under political pressure against the personal beliefs of the Senators in question and in defiance of an overwhelming demand from their constituents that they oppose daylight saving repeal.

"We do not believe that legislation opposed and resented by a large majority of the people of the State should be enacted by the votes of a small number of reluctant Senators coerced into voting against their convictions and against the wishes of their constituents. We urge, therefore, that before acting on this measure you give us an opportunity to present to you our objections."

"The same machine methods that were used to force the bill through the Assembly have proved successful in the Senate," he said. "In the lower branch of the Legislature the opponents of daylight saving had two votes to spare. In the Senate they had only one. These votes are only another proof of the tremendous sentiment throughout the State in behalf of daylight saving. With the largest majority they have had in the Legislature for years, the party in control, using all its authority, is barely successful. We have appealed to the Governor to veto the bill, out of deference to the sentiment in opposition to it. If that fails, we shall try to have it recalled by the Legislature for amendment.

"There is no excuse for the bill in its present form. It does not carry out the promise made in the Republican State platform, and in operation it would be certain to cause confusion from one end of the State to the other."

Regardless of the Senate's action the Aldermen at their next meeting will seek to frame a daylight saving ordinance. The present ordinance, operating under the home rule provision, which the city had last year, will probably be amended to provide for the cutting off of a month at each end of the season. The proposed amendment provides that the ordinance shall take effect on the last Sunday in April and end on the last Sunday in September. Last year the ordinance went into effect on the last Sunday in March and ended on the last Sunday in October. The daylight saving plan was continued too long last year, according to Alderman Friedman, who is responsible for the pending amendment.

President La Guardia of the Board said he would consult with Mayor Hylan to the end that the subject be taken up with the authorities of the municipalities within the commuting district of New York City so that some uniform law be adopted.

AID CLEAN BASEBALL BILL.

Assembly Advances Measure Passed by Senate to Final Passage.

ALBANY, March 3.—The Kavanaugh-Merrigan bill, which the introducers say is drawn in the interests of "clean baseball," was advanced to the order of final passage in the Assembly today. The measure has passed the Senate.

Under its provisions, players accepting a bribe to try to lose a baseball game and persons offering such bribes, would be guilty of a felony.

Minimum Wage Bill for Women.

ALBANY, March 3.—A bill designed to confer power on the State Industrial Commission to investigate and fix a minimum wage scale for women workers in the State was introduced in the Legislature today by Senator Schuyler M. Meyer. Under the bill ten women workers in any place of employment can request the Industrial Commission to investigate the wage scale. If the commission finds the minimum wage paid inadequate, it would be empowered to order a readjustment.

PRINCESS RADZIWILL QUIZZED AT LECTURE

CREATES STIR AT ASTOR

A private lecture given by Princess Catherine Radziwill on the origin of the so-called Jewish protocols in the Hotel Astor last evening ended in rather lively fashion after some man who refused to give his name had attacked the legitimacy of the Princess's claim to a Russian title. In an instant the room was in an uproar, and the stranger fled to the elevator.

The interruption came at the end of the lecture in which the Princess had told of seeing the protocols in Paris in the hands of Mathew Golowinsky in 1904, when Golowinsky and Manasewitch-Maniuloff were working on their preparation, she said. The protocols after being forgotten in Russia were brought to this country a year and a half ago, she said, by a man who had been in the Russian diplomatic service until dismissed for undiplomatic conduct, and who at the present time, she declared, was an adviser in the office of Hugo Stinnes.

When she had finished Princess Radziwill said she was willing to answer questions, and had disposed of one or two when a tall man in a gray suit, rather thin face and hair tinged with gray, arose in the back of the room, and asked how Princess Radziwill could say that none of the Czars had been murdered by Jews when Edgar Saltus had declared to the contrary in one of his novels. She answered that the work in question was filled with lies, and that she knew of her own knowledge that the charge was false.

Stranger Quizzes Princess.

The stranger then asked Princess Radziwill's maiden name. She told him. Then he asked if she were Russian, and she said she was. He said there were three branches of the house of Radziwill—Austrian, Polish and Russian—and asked to which she belonged. The Russian, she said.

"Are you prepared to prove that?" inquired the stranger. "I certainly am," she declared with asperity.

A man who said his name was Dr. Maurice Fishberg of 170 West Fifty-ninth Street, who had previously asked some questions of the Princess, jumped up and shouted:

"This is the kind of a scoundrel who gets up to attack a lady's antecedents."

"Once a woman goes into public life," said the Princess, her voice rising above the colloquy going on below her, "she must expect this sort of thing. I expected this."

"What is the name of this gentleman?" inquired some one with deliberation. "Let him give his name."

The stranger did not reply. Several persons near him rose to their feet, shouting: "Who is this scoundrel who attacks a lady without giving his name?" and a few women could be heard calling "Coward."

The man finally departed after pausing at the door to shout back that he could prove everything he said.

"I expected this attack," said Princess Radziwill. "I expected some one would say that the Jews had bought me for doing what I believe to be my duty in making known the origin of these protocols."

Corroborates Mme. Radziwill.

Substantiation of the statement recently made by the Princess Radziwill that the so-called "Protocols of the Elders of Zion" were a deliberate forgery is given by Mrs. Henrietta Hurlbut in The American Hebrew published today. Mrs. Hurlbut is "the American woman now in this country" referred to by the Princess Radziwill. She is descended from a French mother and an English father. Her husband is an American. The article from The American Hebrew follows:

"Mrs. Henrietta Hurlbut is 'the American woman now in this country' mentioned by Princess Radziwill in her startling interview with The American Hebrew last week who saw an drear part of the manuscript of the forged 'Protocols of the Elders of Zion' while they were being manufactured in Paris for confessed anti-Semitic purposes in the Russian Empire.

"The Princess Radziwill, as told exclusively to readers of this publication, explained how the manuscript of 'the Protocols' was compiled by three Russian Secret Service agents, Rachkowsky, Manasewitch-Maniuloff and Mathew Golowinsky. The fraud was perpetrated for the purpose of blinding poor Nicholas II. to conditions prevailing in Russia following the Russo-Japanese War, and for the still more important purpose of making the Jews the scapegoat for the threatened revolution in 1905.

"In the course of the interview the Princess traced the history of this forged document back to 1884, when the first draft of it was made under the inspiration of General Orgewsky, then head of the famous Third Section of Police. The earlier or original forgery was framed in an endeavor to convince Alexander III. that the assassination of his father was accomplished through the machinations of Jews. Of course, it was known that his death was brought about through Russians belonging to the best class of the empire. This fact naturally worried the Czar greatly and his minions attempted to lighten his dread by shifting the crime onto the shoulders of the Jews.

Never Reached Alexander III.

"The Princess related how the manuscript never reached the eyes of Alexander III. because General Tcherewine, then head of the Akhrana, refused to take part in so fraudulent a plot.

"How the Orgewsky document, stored in the archives of the Third Section, was brought forth by secret agents after the Russo-Japanese War to confound Nicholas II.; how it was revised and enlarged by Rachkowsky, Maniuloff and Golowinsky in Paris; how Golowinsky brought it to the home of Princess Radziwill and displayed it there; how Mme. Radziwill and her friends, among them 'an American lady now in this country,' handled the manuscript and laughed at Golowinsky's proud achievement; how it found its way into Nilus's book, and what became of the three forgers—all this was told in detail in The American Hebrew last week.

"Now comes complete corroboration of Princess Radziwill's story from the lips of Mrs. Hurlbut, who is the American lady of the Radziwill interview.

The Corroboration.

"Mrs. Hurlbut was not as willing to discuss the subject as was the Princess Radziwill. Mrs. Hurlbut is confessedly an anti-Semite. She is anti a lot of things, she told the interviewer, but principally she is anti-Semitic.

"Her home is adorned with pictures and paintings of many notables; among them there is a large photograph of Count Spiridovitch, the Russian anti-Semite who recently has come to America.

"Mrs. Hurlbut is descended from a French mother and an English father. Her late husband was a full-fledged American. She attained the quality of anti-Semitism not in America, but during a long residence abroad. Her husband, she admitted, was in no wise an anti-Semite.

"Feeling as she does, Mrs. Hurlbut was not too communicative. But finding herself in a position to shed light on the origin of a base forgery, she would not withhold her corroboration of the truth.

"'Yes,' said Mrs. Hurlbut, after the facts disclosed by Princess Radziwill had been communicated to her, 'I recall the incident perfectly. I have known for some time that the Protocols and the Orgewsky manuscript are one and the same, and I can substantiate Princess Radziwill's account in every detail.'

"Pressed to state the details as she knew them, Mrs. Hurlbut smiled on recalling the picture of the Russian Secret Service agent, proudly parading in the homes of the nobility as the hero of a cleverly devised plot, calculated to deceive his Emperor and destroy the Jews.

Says Orgewsky Was Proud of Work.

"'Orgewsky was very proud of his work,' said Mrs. Hurlbut. 'He never hesitated to boast about it. He would come to the home of Mme. Radziwill in the Champs Elysés, from the Bibliotheque Nationale, where the compilation was being made, carrying the sheets of the manuscript with him.

"'I remember when he called with the completed document. It was written in French, but in different handwritings. It was on a yellowish paper and bound with a white ribbon. There was a big blue ink spot on the first page.

"'I am anti-Semitic, you know. When I heard and read about "The Protocols of the Elders of Zion" I got a copy at the time. I had not connected this book with my friends in Paris. But the minute I opened the book—"Ha, ha!" I said, "here is my old friend Golowinsky."

"'There is no doubt about the identity of the Golowinsky document and the Protocols,' concluded Mrs. Hurlbut."

POTTER SAYS FORD HAD HIM KIDNAPPED

TORONTO, March 3.—Henry Potter, editor of the Philadelphia paper Facts, which has been attacking Henry Ford for alleged anti-Semitism, and who recently was reported to have disappeared mysteriously while seeking to interview the manufacturer, arrived at Police Headquarters here today with a story of having been kidnapped by three men on Mr. Ford's estate near Detroit.

He told police and newspaper men that on the night of Feb. 13, after two ineffectual attempts to see Mr. Ford, he visited his estate and was seized by the three men; that he was driven away in an automobile and threatened with death after making several attempts to escape; that he was taken from Detroit across the border into Windsor; that he was informed he was being taken to Cochrane, "never to go back to the States again," and that finally he escaped from his captors at West Toronto station.

He declares that in Windsor he was forced to register as "Jim Davis," and the following day he was taken by train to Owen Sound, where he was kept under guard at a farmhouse for several days. When the party left for Toronto last Saturday, he said he left a letter with a note asking the occupants of the house to mail it to Philadelphia.

"One of the men always remained with me, slept with me, ate with me," he said, "and went everywhere I went."

This morning, he asserts, he was taken in a taxicab to the West Toronto station, his captors telling him, he declared that he was on the way to Cochrane. Arriving at the station, he made the excuse of going to the washroom, he says, where he escaped. He managed to elude his pursuers, he said, and found a policeman who took him to a police station.

Toronto police tonight discredited Potter's story. Not impressed by his account of his disappearance from Detroit and his subsequent escape from his alleged captors, the police refused to have anything further to do with his story.

ALL LEADERS MOURN DEATH OF CLARK

EULOGIZED IN THE HOUSE

Final Preparations Made for Funeral in the Chamber Tomorrow Morning.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President-elect Harding in person and President Wilson, through a written message today extended their sympathy to Mrs. Champ Clark on the death yesterday of her husband, the Democratic leader and former Speaker of the House of Representatives.

President-elect Harding, accompanied by Mrs. Harding, leaving their hotel for the first time after their arrival in Washington shortly after noon, called on Mrs. Clark late in the day. They spent about a quarter of an hour with Bennett Clark, son of the dead House leader, and Mrs. Clark. The President-elect had previously extended his sympathy to Mrs. Clark in a telegram sent last night.

President and Mrs. Wilson tendered their sympathy earlier in the day in a note, written by the President and delivered by a White House messenger. As another mark of respect to Mr. Clark's memory, the President issued orders for the lowering to half-mast of all flags on Government buildings during the funeral service here in the chamber of the House on Saturday and at Bowling Green, the former Speaker's home, on Monday.

The expressions of sympathy from the President and President-elect, however, were but two among hundreds that poured in all last night, all of today and were continuing tonight to tell the bereaved family of the great place the dead leader had made for himself in the hearts of his countrymen.

The proceedings of the House, in which Mr. Clark served for more than a score of years, continued under the shadow cast by his death. Final preparations were made for the funeral services to be held on Saturday forenoon in the House chamber and tonight the House laid aside the rush of last minute legislation for an hour to pay tribute to its former presiding officer and leader. Members vied with one another in eulogizing the virtues and qualities of Champ Clark as displayed on House floor and in committee room.

The eulogies to the late minority leader were delivered to packed galleries with Representative Rucker, dean of the Missouri delegation, presiding. "Uncle Joe" Cannon, who preceded Mr. Clark as Speaker, was among the foremost of those who paid tribute to the dead leader.

"None mourns the loss of Champ Clark more keenly than I," Mr. Cannon told his colleagues. "He had the one quality which has developed leadership at all times—confidence in his cause and confidence in himself. He had the courage of his convictions."

Declaring that the early life and career of Mr. Clark was very similar to his own, Mr. Cannon added:

"Our experiences were those of the average American citizen. We were both defeated after service here, but we came back, as I believe he would have again come back to the House had he lived."

"To know him well was to be his friend," declared Representative Mondell, Wyoming, Republican House leader. "He exemplified to the fullest in his life and character the personal and civic virtues which we are pleased to believe reach their most perfect development under the conditions of American life."

"He was great in victory and greater in defeat," said Representative Mann, Illinois, who was Republican House leader when Mr. Clark was Speaker. "In all the contests and bitter fights we learned not merely to respect each other, but to love as two brothers might."

No man ever appeared on the floor of the House who was Mr. Clark's superior in a parliamentary fight, Mr. Mann continued, "and he left the Speaker's chair with the admiration, affection and regard of every member without regard to party."

Mr. Mann held in his right hand as he spoke a gavel made of Georgia hickory, which was to have been presented by the Georgia delegation to Mr. Clark had he lived to complete his service in Congress tomorrow.

"He literally fought his way into leadership here," said Speaker Gillett. "As a Speaker, Mr. Clark was pre-eminent, for he set aside partisanship and was the impartial judge."

BETHANY, W. Va., March 3.—Bethany College today paid tribute to the memory of Champ Clark, who graduated from that institution in 1873 with class honors, by holding memorial services.

GEN. AUGUSTE MERCIER DIES IN PARIS AT 87

PARIS, March 3.—General Auguste Mercier, former French Minister of War, died here today. General Mercier was War Minister at the beginning of the trial of Captain Dreyfus, instituting the proceedings which brought Dreyfus before the Council of War in 1894, the trial resulting in the condemnation of Dreyfus to lifelong penal servitude and public degradation, this sentence afterward being reversed and Captain Dreyfus exonerated on his retrial.

It was charged by the Dreyfusards that Mercier had secured the conviction of Dreyfus in order to protect himself from the attacks of the radical and clerical press. In 1899, before the Cour de Cassation, and later, also, at the Rennes court-martial, it was clearly shown that, when Minister of War, he had permitted the presentation of evidence before the first court-martial, of which both Dreyfus and his counsel were ignorant; that one of the most important pieces of this evidence did not concern the defendant and that Mercier had deliberately lied to his colleagues concerning it. On account of these revelations a bill was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies to bring Mercier before the Senatorial High Court, but the bill was laid aside and not recalled.

The Ministry of Premier Dupuy, of which General Mercier was a member, was overthrown in January, 1895, and General Mercier was appointed to command the Fourth Army Corps at Le Mans.

General Mercier appeared as a witness against Captain Dreyfus in the latter's second trial in 1899, which resulted in a second conviction but with "extenuating circumstances." Soon after Dreyfus was pardoned and finally secured rehabilitation. In 1900, General Mercier was elected to the Senate. He was born at Arras on Dec. 8, 1833, and fought with distinction in the campaign of Maximilian in Mexico and in the Franco-Prussian war.

First Vice President, Miss Anne Morgan

16 East 39th St., New York.

Dear friend of France:

I have told you a little about our work in France and am still hoping to hear from you before I return there.

May I remind you that none of the Hoover fund goes into France and that thousands of her children yet suffer the effects of privation endured under German domination?

We go beyond caring for their little bodies, and teach them—what they had forgotten—how to smile again.

Help us to stand by them until they are strong and on the road to happy, useful citizenship. Believing that you are only waiting for this reminder,

Sincerely yours,
ANNE MORGAN.

GIANTS HOLD FIRST PRACTICE IN MUD

HEAR BANCROFT IS ILL

Recruit Brings Word That Star Shortstop Has Slight Attack of Heart Trouble.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 3.—It will be recorded in future revised editions of H. G. Wells's "History of the Universe" that on Thursday, March 3, in the City of the Alamo, the New York Giants began preparation for their 1921 campaign of conquest. Yes, they got away today, under a dazzling sun but on a soggy field, on that six-week session of training work and of exhibition games which is expected to land them in Manhatten later on fit to fight for a crown or a queen's ransom, or even a pennant.

In this first scene of the first act the hero made no appearance whatever. There was no visible sign of Manager McGraw, but a faint rumble in the distance betokens his approach. A telegram received this morning by Eddie Brannick, more accurately known as Brannigan, scoutmaster of this camp, announced that Mr. and Mrs. McGraw and Mr. and Mrs. George Burns would reach this city tomorrow morning.

George Kelly, the quondam holdout, reached San Antonio early today and was on the field in uniform at the morning practice. His brother, Reynolds, a practice. His brother, Reynolds, a young twirler, who was with the San Antonio Bears last season and was tested for speed and accuracy by McGraw, but found not yet ready, came with him from the Pacific Coast for another going over at the hands of the Giants' manager.

Worried Over Bancroft.

A bit of news which caused some consternation in the camp was brought here from Hot Springs by a San Antonio recruit. It was to the effect that Dave Bancroft, the gilt-edged shortstop of the Giants, who went to the Arkansas resort a fortnight ago for conditioning, is ill with a touch of heart trouble there. The matter is not now believed to be serious, but the arrival of Bancroft at this place may be delayed.

The Giant regulars and hopefuls had two sessions of muscle-loosening and muscle-building work today.

The playing surface was second cousin to a quagmire. The athletes slipped and slid around on the circumference like a mule on roller skates, as they tried out their wind by a preliminary canter. That is to say, they performed as one might expect a mule on roller skates to act.

The morning workout consisted purely of cantering about and catching, or chasing fly balls. It lasted for about an hour and a half, and Hugh Jennings, who presided, with a bat in his trusty right hand, saw to it that muscles still soft from the comparative disuse of Wintertime were not unduly exerted.

Diamond Rain-Soaked.

After a high noon luncheon and an hour's ensuing rest the visiting players from Manhattan and way stations bussed and trolleyed their way to the stadium, a mile away, for another ninety-minute session of conditioning toil.

The diamond, drenched by yesterday's prolonged downpour, was still hors du combat, despite the effort of Groundkeeper Henry Fabian and his corps of local assistants, and the green plain of the outfield, which had responded a bit to the solidifying rays of the sun, again served as the stage for the Giants' activities. In the afternoon the pitchers got under way, each of them tossing in a few to the regular and recruit backstops at about the average speed of a caterpillar leaping a hurdle. Although some of the arms and shoulders felt good, Assistant Manager Jennings refused to stand for anything in the way of fast work yet. All of the boys had a chance to swing at a few slow balls, too. But most of the time was given over to galloping around and seeking to nab the unwary fly in its lair.

Manager Tyrus Raymond Cobb of the Detroit Tigers reached town early today and was escorted to the St. Anthony Hotel, where he was properly breakfasted. Ty and his merry men are to train at Brackenridge Park in this city, where a diamond has been especially laid for the purpose. The local Chamber of Commerce is to give a luncheon in the Gunter Hotel next Tuesday for Cobb, McGraw and Jennings.

ARE ON YALE COMMITTEE.

Murphy and Owsley Added to Gridiron Executive Staff.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 3.—Yale's football executive staff, including the members, the resident coaching squad and the Graduate Committee, was announced here tonight by Captain Aldrich of the 1921 eleven. The committee had been before tentatively given as Foster Rockwell, '06; Clarence F. Alcott, '08; Theodore Lilley, '10; H. Ray Paige, '08, and Major Louis E. Stoddard, '99, Chairman. Tonight it was announced that two members had been added to the committee, including Dr. Frederick Towsley Murphy, '97, and John E. Owsley, '05.

Owsley was head coach of Tom Shevlin's eleven in '05, and Dr. Murphy was Captain of the Yale eleven in '96 and also a baseball star. He is a member of the Yale Corporation and was spoken of for the Presidency. He resides in St. Louis, Mo. Major Stoddard, the new Chairman, is a sportsman of international fame, having been a member of the American polo team which played against the English team.

The following executive staff of resident football coaches, picked by Major Stoddard, Tad Jones and Captain Aldrich, was announced: Dr. William T. Bull, '87; Charles Phelps Taft 2d, '18, and Charles A. Comerford, '18. Dr. Bull has been backfield coach for more than a quarter century. Taft, son of the ex-President, is a former Yale tackle and halfback. He is now practicing law in Waterbury, Conn. He and Dr. Bull are assisting Head Coach Jones in coaching the rushline and the backfield squads at their Winter practice.

Dr. Arthur Brides, Johnny Field and Harry Vaughan, resident coaches last Fall, will be unable to accept regular resident staff positions the coming Fall, but the executive staff is trying to induce them to devote part of the season to helping to build up the new Yale system.

FOOTBALL HOPEFULS OUT.

Eighty Princeton Candidates Addressed by Coach Roper.

PRINCETON, March 3.—Nearly eighty prospective candidates for Princeton's 1921 varsity football team turned out last night to hear Coach Bill Roper address them prior to the opening of the Spring practice. The men were also addressed by Dean Howard McClenahan, head of the Discipline Committee. Princeton's new ineligibility rules will make it harder for the athletes to keep up in their work.

"Hack" McGraw will handle the work of the linemen during the Spring gridiron work, which will commence next week, weather permitting.

Bobby Byrne to Manage Club.

ST. LOUIS, March 3.—Bobby Byrne, former third baseman for Pittsburgh and St. Louis in the National League, has signed as manager of the Miami (Okla.) team in the new Southwestern League.

Metropolitan Golfers Score Two Aces in Pinehurst Golf

PINEHURST, N. C., March 3.—Within ten minutes of each other, on the same course, and for the first time in the history of Pinehurst, two holes in one were recorded here today. The first ace was negotiated at the fifteenth hole of the championship course by E. H. Wiswell of the Montclair Golf Club. The distance is 212 yards. The second one was made a few minutes later by John M. Haffen of Siwanoy, nephew of the former Borough President of the Bronx. Haffen sank his mashie drive for the ninth hole, 140 yards, in a match with Sam A. Scribner, the well-known theatrical man, and others.

AKRON FRANCHISE VOTED TO NEWARK

The circuit of the International League was completed yesterday when the club owners in a meeting at the Commodore Hotel awarded the Akron, Ohio, franchise to Newark, N. J. The purchase price was $25,000, it was announced by John Conway Toole, President of the league.

The meeting had been called for the purpose of having the club owners vote on the award, as both Newark and Montreal were bidders for the franchise. The decision in favor of Newark was finally reached when it was shown that the New Jersey city would make the circuit more compact and do away with a long jump necessary in the case of Montreal. The Canadian city had made a generous bid, which was said to be $41,000.

The new club at Newark will be headed by Roy Mack, son of Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics, who will be associated with Dave Driscoll of Jersey City. It was said that Charles Herzog would probably be made manager of the Newark Club.

President Toole said that the International League schedule, which had been prepared with dates for Akron, would be revised immediately and would probably be ready for publication early next week. The league will open the season April 20.

STATE GOLF DATES FIXED.

The amateur championships of the New Jersey Golf Association will be determined on June 2, 3 and 4 over the Canoe Brook course, according to action taken by the Executive Committee of the association at its first meeting held at the Princeton Club yesterday.

Other dates settled at the meeting include the Junior State Championship which will be played at the Upper Montclair Golf Club on June 23-24 and the Caddie Championship event, which will be held at Shackamaxon some time in August.

The invitation of the Westchester County Golf Association to play the annual New Jersey-Westchester team match on May 28 at the Century Country Club was also accepted and Charles P. Eddy, Secretary and Treasurer of the New Jersey Association, was appointed to act as captain of the team which will be selected by the Executive Committee.

Following the suggestion made by the association members at their annual meeting in January, the Executive Committee also voted to raise the dues from $10 to $25 a year and to place the entry fee to the amateur State championship at $5 and to the handicap at $3.

This action will result in providing ample funds for the fulfillment of the plans of the committee to allow the association to conduct a New Jersey State professional golf championship. The details and date for this event will be announced later. Present plans call for a one-day tourney of thirty-six holes. Only professionals, professionals' assistants, and caddie masters in the employ of clubs belonging to the association will be eligible to compete. The committee will consult with the Professional Golfers' Association with the view of establishing a professional association in New Jersey to co-operate with the amateur association in running off the proposed tournament.

ANSWERS WOMEN'S CLAIMS.

Golf Official Maintains That They Are Fairly Represented.

The recent agitation by members of the Women's Western Golf Association for a place on the U. S. G. A. Executive Committee has caused considerable stir among local golfers and W. D. Vanderpool, Secretary of the parent organization, yesterday issued the following statement:

"I have received no word from Chicago or anywhere else on the matter, and fail to see the need for any such talk. The Women's Golf Committee, of which Mrs. Hathaway Watson of Chicago, was the Chairman last season, has practically the entire management of the women's national championship. The members of this committee select the courses they prefer, and also decide on conditions of play. The U. S. G. A. does all it can in the way of running the tournament, in addition to giving the entertaining club $1,000 for expenses.

"There is no woman member of the national association's Executive Committee now and the chances are that even if it were possible to have it so, a woman would not care to attend the meetings of the board. I do not see what more the women could have in the way of representation than they have at present. The Chairman of the committee each year is from the locality holding the championship. As a result, Miss Marion Hollins of Westbrook will head the board this season."

MISS SELLICK IS WINNER.

Glen Ridge Player Leads First Eight in Ormond Tourney.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., March 3.—With the thermometer standing at 80, and a good breeze blowing off the Atlantic, conditions for the closing day of the invitation golf tournament for women were about as perfect as could be. The winner of the first eight was Miss Elsie Sellick of Glen Ridge, N. J., 1 up, 19 holes. Her score was 91. The runner-up was Miss Claire Mattack, Wyoming Golf Club.

The winner of the second eight was Mrs. Charles Longenecker, Roslyn, L. I., and the runner-up Mrs. W. O. Come, Bristol Country Club.

In the third eight, Miss M. G. Haines, New York, won, and Miss Marion Davis, Ormond, Fla., was runner-up.

CANADA TO ENTER TEAM.

TORONTO, March 3.—The Royal Canadian Golf Association decided today to hold the open championship of Canada over the course of the Toronto Golf Club, June 23 and 24.

It was voted not to hold an international match between Canada and the United States this year, as a large number of American players are expected to visit England for the British championships, and the United States has issued an invitation to all nations to compete in an international team match at Southampton, L. I., in September, in which Canada will enter a team.

YOUTHFUL YANKEES IN FAST WORKOUT

SHREVEPORT, La., March 3.—The case of Miller Huggins and his Yankees today remained in status quo, as the legal experts say. There were no new arrivals in camp, no word concerning the quartet of holdouts and nothing sensational in the single workout which Huggins ordered for his troupe.

The morning session was called off in order to allow plumbers to install a hot water heater at the club house. This important item had been overlooked in the preparedness campaign for the training season.

It develops that Ray French, the young shortstop from Des Moines, who joined the Yankees late last season, is dissatisfied with the figures written into his contract.

The drill this afternoon was longer than on days when a morning session is held. The day was ideal for training, with the thermometer around 80 degrees. Little or no breeze, and not a cloud to deaden the sun's rays. The players are now able to cut loose with something like speed and the finish of the workout this afternoon showed an infield practice entirely devoid of arched throws. It was a snappy infield, with "Chicken" Hawks on first base, Chick Fewster on second, Johnny Mitchell at short and Norman McMillan at third. The juveniles seem to have passed safely beyond the sore arm stage without any players being put out of commission, even temporarily. Steady work for four successive days has fitted up arms and legs for the more strenuous days ahead.

A six-inning practice game is on the program for tomorrow unless Huggins changes his plans overnight. There are only three infielders in camp, but there are so many extra batterymen that Huggins will be able to equip two infields for a game.

Huggins is paying particular attention to the pitchers in camp. He reduced his veteran squad during the off-season to four boxmen—Shawkey, Mays, Quinn and Collins—but added two experienced pitchers in Harper and Hoyt. This leaves two or three vacancies in the pitching staff and twelve flingers are now working to win recognition. All the recruit boxmen are in camp, so "Hug" must make his pick from those now under observation.

The most likely looking of the juveniles are Tom Sheehan and Bill Piercy, both of wide experience in the minors and each with some little experience in the majors. Sheehan comes from the Atlanta club of the Southern Association, to which club he was shunted by Connie Mack after a trial with the Athletics.

Sheehan pitched in forty-eight games last season, thereby proving himself a horse for work, and he was credited with twenty-six victories for a percentage of .605. Bob Gilks, veteran scout, classes Sheehan as a sure sticker with the Yankees.

Piercy, like Alex Ferguson, who will also bear considerable watching, has made two previous training trips with the Yankees, and now seems about ready to string along past the first two weeks of the championship campaign. Both Piercy and Ferguson did good work last season. Jess Doyle, who won twenty-five games for the Greenville club of the South Atlantic League, is another who will get much consideration, although he lacks experience.

YANKEE ROSTER COMPLETE.

Peck and Meusel, Last of Recalcitrants, Due at Camp Sunday.

Fourteen of the Yankee regulars, including those who are now at Hot Springs, Ark., are due to leave for the training camp at Shreveport, La., so as to arrive there some time Sunday, according to the announcement made yesterday by Business Manager Edward Barrow. As this list includes the names of Roger Peckinpaugh and Bob Meusel, who were the only recalcitrants remaining, the club has now apparently come to terms with all of its players and nothing remains but the perfunctory signing of the contracts when the players reach Shreveport.

Ping Bodie, who has been working in Hoboken all Winter, and Mike McNally will entrain from here this afternoon, and at Philadelphia they will be joined by Bob Shawkey and Wallie Schang. The other players will go direct from their ohmes to the camp. Aron Ward, who has been a reader in the Arkansas Legislature, will leave from Little Rock; Peckinpaugh will go from his home in Cleveland. Walter Pipp from Grand Rapids, Bobby Roth from Burlington, Wis.; Collins from Austin, Texas, and Meusel from Los Angeles. Babe Ruth and Pitchers Hoyt, Harper and Mays, who are now at Hot Springs, will leave there Sunday morning to join Manager Huggins at Shreveport.

Colonel T. L. Huston started for Shreveport yesterday, where he expects to spend a week or ten days looking at the youngsters of his club.

Peter Billiken, Veteran Trotting Stallion, Sold

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 3.—Ned McCarr, local trainer and driver, announced today that he had sold the veteran trotting stallion Peter Billiken, 2:05¼, to C. H. Claypool of Muncie, Ind., and that he would be shifted west immediately. The price paid for the son of Peter the Great was not announced, but it is known that McCarr got a good sum for him. Peter Billiken, which formerly held the local track trotting record, broke a leg in the 2:10 trot at the Washington Fair races last Fall. His owner, W. A. Pickering of Pittsburgh, gave him to Driver McCarr, hoping the latter might shape him up for future racing, but, although the leg bone knitted, the big trotter has apparently lost his speed and is to be retired by Mr. Claypool to the stud. He is between 11 and 12 years old and has been one of the most consistent trotters in the country.

SWIMMING TITLE IS CAPTURED BY ROSS

Illinois A. C. Star Wins National 100-Yard Indoor Championship at Boston.

BOSTON, March 3.—Norman Ross of the Illinois A. C. won the national 100-yard swimming championship here tonight from a field consisting of Davey Jones, the Brown University freshman, also representing the Illinois A. C., who was second; Gordon Smith, another Brown man, who was third, and Lee Handy of Brookline, unattached, who was fourth. The time was 0:58 1-5.

Ross won by a powerful spurt in the last five yards, when he overcame a lead which Jones had established in the stretch following the last turn and was a hand ahead at the finish. A blanket could have covered all four swimmers at any time during the race, so close were they bunched.

Ross got a slight lead at the start, hitting the water after the gun slightly in advance of the other three, but his advantage was short-lived, for the rest pulled up and it was an even race until going into the final turn when Jones shot ahead and was a couple of yards ahead of Ross going down the final length. Ross uncorked a sprint that carried him ahead of Jones to win by an eyelash.

Gordon Smith and Handy had a pretty battle for third place. The diminutive Handy was using a long stroke which went down to defeat before the faster splashing of Smith, but the margin was only a hand.

C. H. Lawton of Brown University lost his New England diving championship to A. E. Church of the Brookline Swimming Club. Ferdinand of Tech was second and Lawton third.

HOREMANS LEADING IN BILLIARD MATCH

Belgian's Score Stands 3,200 to 3,060 for Schaefer in 18.2 Balkline Encounter.

For the third day in succession Jake Schaefer, the Western billiard expert, outplayed Edouard Horemans, the Belgian champion, in their 4,800-point 18.2 balk-line match at Daly's Academy. Although Horemans still leads by a total of 3,200 to 3,060, Schaefer made 802 points to 800 for Horemans as the total for yesterday's afternoon and evening sessions. All of this gain was registered during the evening block of 400, when Schaefer again displayed wonderful skill with the cue and gathered a total of 671 while Horemans was making 400. Schaefer had the exceptionally high average for this latter block of 95 6-7, while Horemans averaged 57 1-7. Runs of 209 and 242 were responsible for the increase in Schaefer's score. In the afternoon session Horemans scored 400 to 131 points for Schaefer.

The evening session resulted in one of the best exhibitions of billiards that has been seen since the match began. Both players were at their best, with Schaefer showing marked improvement over his play of the afternoon.

Taking up where he had left off in the afternoon, Horemans added 43 points to a cluster of 84 he had already made, and followed this with runs of 59 and 110, while Schaefer gathered 56, 32 and then 209 during his first three innings. Thus far both players had excellent averages, Horemans one of a fraction over 70 and Schaefer one of 99.

Horemans Gets Lead.

Horemans started out as though he was going to make short work of Schaefer, and had a big lead at the end of the second inning. Then he began a run which eventually went to 110. He carried the balls up and down the table, but for the most part kept them in the centre and displayed fine judgment in speed and distance. He was called on several times to use his massé shot, and on one occasion he had to resort to it three times in succession to get the balls back into position.

After he had scored 110 points the balls line up in a position that required a simple massé shot. It was such a shot as Horemans goes after ordinarily without the least hesitation. But instead of spinning the cue ball as usual he miscued, failed to count, and left the balls in good position for Schaefer. Schaefer turned the miscue into a profitable and sensational run of 209 and left Horemans to sit in his corner for a long time as an uncomfortable spectator.

Schaefer played cautiously and kept the balls at one end of the table for nearly half the run. He made several massé shots that were as well executed as any the Belgian had made, and his run might have continued on to a new record for the match but for the fact that Schaefer became a little careless. He had a very simple one-cushion shot for his 210th point, a shot that required but a little English to throw the ball out against the second object ball. But Schaefer neglected to apply the English and his cue ball came out straight from the rail and missed the second object ball by half an inch.

The Young Western player followed this run with one of 110 and then in the sixth inning added 242 to his total with another run which was much like his previous one of 209. When the Belgian again got to the table he was able to go out before Schaefer could equal his total score.

Resorts to Safety.

It was evident from the very start of the afternoon session that Horemans had been impressed by the showing Schaefer made the night before. The Belgian had contributed to Schaefer's success to the extent of missing some easy shots and leaving the balls in almost perfect position for his rival. When he stepped up to the table yesterday to continue his unfinished run of the night before, he promptly resorted to safety play. Whenever he thought he had a very difficult shot, one he might miss, he played with the deliberate intention of leaving the balls safe in case he missed.

Just how effective this method proved was indicated by the score early in the session. After Horemans had scored 91 points from his unfinished run of 86, making a total for the run of 177, he missed on a hard shot and left Schaefer with such a bad position that the western player failed to count. So careful was Horemans about leaving the balls that Schaefer did not score for three turns at the table and in the meantime the Belgian gathered a total of 165 before Schaefer had counted at all.

Horemans played consistently good billiards. His average for the afternoon session was 50, although he did not cross the 100 mark in any of his runs. His best run was one of 84. With this run he reached 400, bringing his total up to 2,800 points as against 2,389 for Schaefer. His evening play also started as a continuation of this run.

The scores:

AFTERNOON GAME.

Eddie Raynolds last night won permanent possession of the trophy emblematic of the New York State amateur pocket billiard championship in the play-off game with J. J. Ahearn at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. He defeated Ahearn by a score of 100 to 73. Both players had high runs of 20. Raynolds took a safe lead toward the end of the game and, using safety play to advantage, kept Ahearn from becoming dangerous. Meantime he added to his own count until he reached the 100 mark.

This is the second time that Raynolds has won the championship, and it was this that gave him possession of the trophy.

BIRD IS VICTOR WITH CUE.

Defeats John Barraket in English Billiard Tournament.

The annual tournament to decide the American amateur English billiard championship for the Sir Thomas Dewar Trophy provided another good game at John Doyle's Broadway Academy last night. George Bird defeated John Barraket by a score of 200 to 121 in twenty innings. Barraket, who recently arrived here from Australia, was not at his best. He is expected to show improvement in the tournament. The best breaks of the game were 33 by Bird and 11 by Barraket.

Robert Morrison, the present champion, and John O'Neill, who was one of his rivals last year, have each won a game in the present tourney, which has eight entries.

HARVARD CLUB IS CLASS A CHAMPION

APPEL AVENGED ON COWARD

Team.	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Harvard Club	7	2	.777
Yale Club	6	3	.644
Columbia Club	4	4	.500
Princeton Club	2	6	.250
Crescent A. C.	2	6	.250

The Harvard Club became Class A champions of the Metropolitan League in squash tennis yesterday afternoon by defeating the Yale Club in the play off of a tie for first place by a score of 5 to 2. Two weeks ago, Thomas R. Coward of the Yale Club defeated John W. Appel Jr. of Harvard in the match that sent the two teams into a tie. Yesterday the result was reversed. Appel obtained his revenge. He defeated Coward. The Harvard Club won.

This, however, was not actually the decisive game between the two clubs. The Yale Club started off with a fine rush. Livingston Platt defeated the ex-national champion, Eric S. Winston, rather unexpectedly by scores of 15—5, 15—9. Platt is a wonderful player, but there were few who expected him to beat the former champion. Then Auguste J. Cordier, the national champion of 1920, won for the Yale Club from Anderson Dana, three times runner-up for the national championship. This made things look rosy for the Yale Club.

But that was where the Harvard Club was just starting. It was not merely that Prentice Sanger defeated Dr. MacGuire in straight games by the tightest possible scores. It was not merely that Appel won from Coward as already related. The real credit for turning the trend of the match in the direction of the Harvard Club was due to A. H. Tomes. That dependable player was pitted against one of the most formidable opponents that any man could confront. H. R. Stern of the Yale Club is notoriously one of the hardest men to beat in the game. He never concedes a single thing to an opponent. He works for every point as though the entire result of the match and the fate of the universe depended upon his unaided efforts. That way he has acquired the habit of winning. Many a man who knows quite as much of courtcraft as Stern has been beaten by the sheer spirit of determination and perseverance of the Yale man.

Tomes at Top Form.

Stern did his durndest yesterday afternoon. He played the fine game he always does. But Tomes, who has remained away from most of the season's tournaments because of pressure of business, was at the top of his form. Everything broke right for him. He dropped his first game with Stern and then proceeded to put the match on ice for the Harvard Club. He played unbeatable squash in the second and third games and won them by scores of 15—10, 15—7. Stern played the same steady game he always does, but Tomes, playing like a man inspired, could have defeated almost any man in the game yesterday.

Platt's victory over Winston was one of the most remarkable occurrences of the entire Winter. It was a decisive victory, too. The Yale man won in straight games, and there was never any real doubt from start to finish of his match as to the eventual result.

Appel's defeat of Coward seemed to attract most of the attention from the largest squash tennis gallery of the season. Coward was in good form. He hit the ball as hard as he always does and utilized change of pace as cannily as usual. But Appel was able to analyze is game and set the least bit of a faster pace. The scores of 17—16, 15—10 in Appel's favor do not tell the story. Every point of the match was contested evenly, with Coward extending the Harvard man to the utmost of his ability.

Appel Comes From Behind.

Coward led Appel at 7—1 in the opening game, and later at 12—8. Then Appel, by whirlwind hitting, caught up at 14-all. The Yale man again went into the lead, making the score 2-1 in his favor in the extra points. But Appel came from behind, tied it up at 15-all, and then ran out the game at 17—16. The second game was a repetition in a good many ways. Coward again took the lead early, only to have Appel come from behind and win in the end. The score in this game was much more decisive, Appel taking it at 15—10.

Coward made one wonderful around-the-court shot after another at the opening of the second game, and it looked for awhile as though it were all over except the Brek-ck-kek-ex, or however Aristophanes was in the habit of spelling it. It seemed a sure thing for the Yale Club. Coward led Appel by a score of 7-2, but the ex-national champion caught him and tied it up at 8-all. Thereafter, there was only one result possible. Appel was playing the brand of squash that used to win him championships.

Cordier's victory was especially notable for the Yale Club. The former champion accomplished a remarkable feat in climbing when the match seemed almost surely gone to his opponent's account. Dana had a lead of 13-3 in the second game of this match, but the Yale man started a long grind and overcame the lead, winning the game at 17—14.

The summaries:

WILLIAMS WINS AT TENNIS.

Defeats Kumagae in Final of Florida Singles Championship.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 3.—Richard Norris Williams 2d was in fine form today and defeated Ichiya Kumagae, 3—6, 6—4, 6—4, 6—1, in the final for the Florida singles championship. It was one of Williams's good days, and his control was perfect. After the first set he could do practically anything he wanted.

Kumagae played a worthy game of tennis, but was unable to stave off his rival's attack. The Japanese has not been playing for six months and plainly showed that he did not have his strokes working yet. Williams almost invariably won whatever volleys there were, and finally tired out his opponent, as the score of the last set indicates.

Championship Mixed Doubles (First Round)—Miss Gertrude Conway and F. V. Jackson defeated Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Adams, 6—2, 6—1; Mrs. Charles Armory and George L. Wrenn Jr. defeated Miss Katherine Force and Manfred Goldman, 7—5, 7—5; Miss Phyllis Walsh and Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated Miss A. Harrison and J. H. Robins, 6—1, 6—3.

Harvard Crews in Earliest Practice on Charles River

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 3.—Three Crimson freshmen crews appeared on the Charles River today for the earliest out-of-door practice in the history of rowing at Harvard. Coach Bill Haines said he hoped to have the Varsity oarsmen on the river next Monday. In the past Harvard crews have had their early season workouts on Boston or Lynn Harbors, but this year the river is now practically free from ice.

TWO MORE ENTRIES FOR CUP CONTEST

Denmark and Canada Bring Number of Challengers for Tennis Trophy Up to Nine.

Announcement was made yesterday at the offices of the United States Lawn Tennis Association of the receipt of two additional challenges for the Davis Cup. These were from Denmark and Canada. The Danish challenge represents another newcomer in the blue ribbon event of the lawn tennis world. The challenge from Canada, which has contested for the Davis Cup before, was expected. That from Denmark was more or less unexpected.

In forwarding the Danish challenge, Svend Olsen, Secretary of the Dansk Lawn Tennis Forbund, wrote that the players of his country were not only taking much interest in the event, but expected to progress well beyond the preliminary rounds. The countries now entered in the competition for the Davis Cup number nine. The record for previous competitions was six. The entries are Spain, the British Isles, Australasia, France, the Philippines, Denmark, Canada, India and Czechoslovakia.

The challenge from Canada followed closely upon that of Denmark. It came in the form of a letter from E. H. Senior of Toronto, Secretary of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association. The decision to enter a team was made at a recent meeting of the Canadian association after the matter had been under discussion for several weeks. Interest in the event is widespread throughout the Dominion. Letters with regard to the entrance of Canada in the Davis Cup competition have been received from as far away as Victoria and the general belief is that the Dominion will be able to enter one of the strongest teams that has ever represented it.

In addition to Canada's challenge it is confidently expected by Paul Williams, the Field Secretary of the U. S. L. T. A., that at least Belgium and Holland will enter the field before the entries close on March 15.

Interest in the entry of Denmark is heightened by the fact that the world's covered court championship is due to be contested in Copenhagen next month. The Danish Association has sent an invitation to the American Association to send its leading players to compete, but it is doubtful whether any of them will be able to find the time and opportunity to make the trip.

The American national champion, William T. Tilden, 2d, and the woman's champion, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, are to represent this country in the hard court championships in France in the early Summer, and will play later in the British championships in Wimbledon. But it will be impossible for them to make the trip to Europe early enough to compete in the covered court championship in Copenhagen.

MANY ENTRIES IN TOURNEY.

43 Doubles Teams to Compete for Indoor Tennis Championship.

Forty-three teams have entered the doubles tournament for the indoor tennis championship of New York City, to be contested on the courts of the Metropolitan Indoor Tennis Club at the Eighth Coast Defense Armory, Jerome Avenue and Kingsbridge Road, starting on Saturday. Play in the doubles will be started at 1 o'clock on Saturday.

The special event of Saturday afternoon, in addition to the continuation of play in the singles and the start in the doubles, will be the exhibition match already announced to take place between the national and present indoor champion in singles, William T. PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—Fifteen bicycle riders from various parts of Europe, who will compete in the six-day race scheduled to start at Madison Square Garden Sunday night, arrived here today on board the French liner Rochambeau from Havre.

The party included Gerard Leene, Maurice Brocco, Marcel Berthet, Joe van Bever, Jules Miquel, Emil Aerts, Claus van Nek, Ernest Kaufmann, Edward Leonard, Orlando Piani, Leon Parisot, Angelo Vay, and van Kempen. There were also two Americans in the party, George Wiley of Syracuse, former American champion and Charles Stein of Boston. They have been riding in France.

SPECIAL THOUSAND WON BY SID LESLIE

Leslie took the lead with the race half over and held it to the finish. Higgins raced Leslie all the way on the last lap, but in the home stretch Leslie just had enough left to beat him to the tape. Mike Devanney, Millrose A. C. crack, and local favorite, quit on the last lap. Eddie Ballestier also started but was not in at the finish. Leslie's time was 2:23 1-5.

Nick Giannakopolus, running unattached, won the two-mile run. The "Greek" ran a good race and ran away from S. Dewitt of the Glencoe A. C. and Max Bohland on the last lap. "Nick the Greek" and Bohland were even going into the last lap, but Max had set such a hot pace in catching the limit men that he had nothing left at the finish.

ORTEGA IN RING TONIGHT.

Mexican Boxer Will Clash With Carbone at Pioneer Club.

The invasion by Mexico of Gringo Land—meaning in this case New York City—is announced for tonight by way of the Pioneer Sporting Club, when one Señor Ortega (alias "Battling"), will uphold the honor of the Eagle and the Snake in the ring provided by the club for fistic purposes. The bout is to be a twelve-round affair against Frank Carbone, west side middleweight. Ortega, who has made for himself a reputation on the Pacific Coast, plans to take Carbone on as a milestone along the route to the door of Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion.

Anonymous Graduate Responds to Columbia Stadium Drive.

The first definite step taken in the Columbia Stadium drive on the part of an alumnus was made yesterday when an anonymous graduate made an offer, through a letter to the editor of The Columbia Sppectator, to donate $1,000 toward the acquisition of an athletic field and stadium, provided at least ninety-nine other graduates guarantee an equal or greater amount. He stated that the alumni were solidly behind the work of The Spectator in pushing over the proposition, which has been hanging fire for the last fourteen years.

The writer went on to state: "In the opinion of many, at least a hundred alumni could well afford to give $5,000 apiece toward an athletic field for the university. Unfortunately, I am not one of those but, to show my interest, I hereby, under certain conditions, offer to give $1,000 toward the acquisition of an athletic field, the conditions being that ninety-nine other alumni each give $1,000 or more and prior to Commencement Day, 1922."

WHITMAN ON TRAIL OF CITY CONTRACT

TIME EXTENSION OBTAINED

Witnesses Questioned About Pier Leases — Hirshfield Exonerates More Detectives in Reward Cases.

Evidence in regard to the letting of a city contract said to involve a city official is being placed before the Grand Jury under the direction of ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman. The evidence is said to show that the city officials aided a friend to obtain a contract in the Street Cleaning Department several years ago and later aided him to evade the penalty clause.

A forfeit of $250 if the work was not completed by a certain time was the penalty written into the contract, and it was reported that the city official obtained two extensions of time, thirty days each, when the contractor failed to carry out his agreement.

One of the witnesses under subpoena yesterday was said to be former Street Cleaning Commissioner Arnold B. MacStay. He did not testify yesterday and was asked to return today.

Among the witnesses who testified yesterday were Arthur Fradus, son of Jacob Fradus, who told the Lockwood committee that Robert P. Brindell ruined his contracting business; Alfred A. Taylor, General Superintendent of the Street Cleaning Department, and Leonard Damman, Secretary of Fradus Contracting Company, Inc.

William Chilvers, assistant to Mr. Whitman, investigating matter relating to the Dock Department, said he questioned several witnesses regarding the leasing of piers. One is said to have told him that he received $12,500 for his services in connection with the leases. He said that as a lawyer he was entitled to the fees.

One line of Mr. Chilvers's investigation did not produce material results yesterday. On examination of accounts he learned that $1,250 paid as reward to two detectives investigating bond thefts had been regularly passed upon and approved by the Commissioner of Police, according to law, and that there had been the usual deduction for the police pension funds.

Continuing his investigation into the records of the Police Department to ascertain whether rewards paid to members of the Automobile Squad had been properly recorded, Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield exonerated Detectives Andrews, Scott, O'Connor and Armstrong, and said that all the legal requirements had been fulfilled in those cases in which they accepted rewards. Several days ago Mr. Hirschfield exonerated Chief Inspector Lahey, following a similar invstigation.

ARRESTS NIP RED PLOTS.

Eight Cleveland Men Held for Planning to Kill Loyal League Members.

CLEVELAND, March 3.—Plots which involved assassination of Cleveland citizens connected with the Loyal American League, the destruction by dynamite of downtown buildings, and an intensive campaign of anarchistic propaganda throughout the city, are believed to have been nipped by the arrest here last Tuesday night of eight men said to be members of an anarchistic group.

The arrests were made by agents of the Department of Justice, working in co-operation with officers of the Loyal American League. The eight men are in the county jail, facing charges under the espionage law, which, Government officials believe, will lead to their deportation. Bliss Morton, head of the local Department of Justice, refused today to comment on the arrests, but did not deny the existence of the plots.

TO HONOR PADEREWSKI.

Several Nations Will Be Represented at Dinner to Polish Patriot.

Several nations will join through their representatives in paying honor to Ignace Jan Paderewski when he is entertained at dinner in the Hotel Astor next Wednesday night under the auspices of the Civic Forum. M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, in accepting an invitation wrote that in behalf of his nation he welcomed the opportunity to "render homage to the great patriot." Henry Morgenthau, who is in charge of the arrangements, said yesterday that the Belgian Ambassador, Baron de Cartier, also would attend.

"Paderewski," said Mr. Morgenthau, "was one of the greatest spokesmen at Paris. He was the voice of the great desires in the heart of humanity. He was capable of transmitting into action the hopes and aspirations of the entire Polish nation. To us he has always been the greatest interpretator of the beautiful harmonies which translated the soul of mankind. A leader of a nation with a fine sympathy for their ideals and aspirations, that is the man Paderewski.

"Mr. Hoover and myself together saw this man in action and witnessed the almost insurmountable difficulties that confronted him. We listened to his address in the Polish Parliament. We want New York to show Paderewski how sincerely America appreciates what he has done for the world."

Frank K. Polk will preside and the speakers will be Herbert Hoover, Mr. Morgenthau and Mme. Marcella Sembrich, the "Polish Nightingale."

INDICT JERSEY LEGISLATOR.

Representative Ernest R. Ackerman Named in Building Case.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., March 3.—Representative Ernest R. Ackerman of this city, President of the Lawrence Portland Cement Company, was indicted in New York yesterday on charges of violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. This information was obtained here today from B. A. Mathews, Deputy Attorney General of New York. Marion S. Ackerman, a brother of the Representative, and Vice President of the company, admitted that the Representative had been indicted, and said that the indictment was returnable March 16. Forty other persons also were indicted. This action was a result of the building materials investigation. The indictment contains two counts, monopoly and restraint of trade.

"I think the industry welcomes any investigation," said Marion Ackerman. "There is nothing to be concealed. The price of cement was fixed during the war by the War Industries Board. It is now within 10 cents above that price. The investigation in New York has been manifestly unfair."

Representative Ackerman is in Washington.

DETROIT HAS BREAD RIOT.

Mob Attacks Bake Shop in Protest Against High Prices.

DETROIT, March 3.—Police were called out late today to quell a disturbance at a bake shop in Hastings Street, where 200 men and women attacked customers coming from the shop as a protest against alleged high bread prices. Bread taken from customers was broken and thrown into the street.

The disorder followed the report of Justice Arthur E. Gordon, sitting as a Grand Jury in the bread price investigation here. The Justice advised Detroiters not to purchase bread from dealers who charged alleged excessive prices.

VERDICT FOR MISS BECKETT.

Mrs. Steichen Loses Suit for Alienation of Husband's Love.

The jury before Supreme Court Justice Cohalan, which heard the $200,000 suit of Mrs. Clara Steichen against Miss Marian H. Beckett, an artist, for alienating the affections of Edouard Steichen, artist, gave a verdict for the defendant in fifteen minutes yesterday.

The defence was that Mrs. Steichen became jealous of every woman with whom her husband had any association in an artistic way. She complained of his attention to Isadora Duncan, the dancer, before she decided that he was too attentive to Miss Beckett, who had been a guest of the Steichens.

WANTS PROSECUTOR NAMED BY COURT

FULL INVESTIGATION URGED

WOULD AMEND ORGANIC LAW

Changes in Grand Jury Procedure Recommended in Final Report —Judge Thanks Body.

A recommendation that the New York County District Attorney's office be investigated, and that District Attorneys be appointed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court instead of elected, is made in the final report of the Extraordinary Grand Jury, of which Raymond F. Almirall is foreman. The Grand Jury was impanelled on Aug. 11, 1919, to investigate criminal anarchy. It reported to Supreme Court Justice Bartow S. Weeks yesterday, saying it has been unable to complete the investigation of the District Attorney's office taken up in connection with the purposes for which it was constituted.

The principal recommendations are:

That the office of District Attorney should be taken out of politics, and he should be appointed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, subject to removal.

Neither the District Attorney nor his assistants should be allowed to engage in private law practice, or to accept money from private sources to defray the expenses of prosecuting any cases.

The District Attorney should have his own detective staff and not be dependent upon the Police Department.

He should be prevented from making prejudicial "side remarks" in presenting a case to the jury with a view to influencing their verdict or preparing an indictment in anticipation of a verdict.

Justice Commends Jurymen.

Justice Weeks commended the jurymen for their eighteen-months' work, and heard a request by Colonel William Rand, special Deputy Attorney General, who worked with the jury, that the Court, in view of the changes suggested, many of which involved drastic amendments to the basic law, make it clear that the Attorney General had nothing to do with drawing up the report or with the suggestions it contained.

"That is true," Justice Weeks replied. "This report is not due to any suggestion of the District Attorney, the Attorney General or the court. It is entirely the work of the jurymen. When it was shown to me a few days ago for my information certain verbal changes, mere matters of phraseology, were made, but the report is practically in its entirety the work of the Grand Jury itself."

The Almirall Grand Jury reported that it had held 112 sessions, heard 393 witnesses, and indicted 67 individuals. As the result of its criminal anarchy investigation, it recommended that the Penal Code be amended to include the general strike as "force, violence and unlawful means," and that it include specifically efforts to overthrow the organized Government of the United States.

In recommending the appointment of the District Attorney by the Appellate Court, the report says:

"The idea of justice, rather than that of either prosecution or defense, should be the determining attitude of the office. The District Attorney and the personnel should be generally under the direct supervision of the Appellate Division, which would encourage and fully justify public confidence against which public confidence, political and other selfish considerations now seriously militate.

Would Reorganize Prosecutor's Office.

"The effort of this Grand Jury to investigate the office of the District Attorney was prompted by the belief that the power is inherent in that office, through the Grand Jury, to inquire into and correct willful or corrupt misconduct by public officials and to maintain by proper vigilance a new respect for the public welfare.

"Upon the interpretation and impartial application of the criminal law by this office, and upon initiative, Grand Juries must depend for guidance. The people should be entitled to feel that this office is organized and conducted without prejudice, fear or favor, to serve, intelligently and efficiently, its very considerable purpose in our scheme of Government.

"It was, and remains, the opinion of this Grand Jury that the office of the District Attorney needs a thorough examination and reorganization and that the present method of preparation of the court calendar should receive very serious consideration."

The report says the inquiry into the District Attorney's office consumed forty-three sessions; 202 witnesses were called and sixteen indictments returned.

Changes in Grand Jury Procedure.

In making recommendations for a change in Grand Jury procedure the report says:

"The Grand Jury's principal duties lie not only in the finding of indictments and the dismissal of charges, but more vitally in the determination and correction, if possible, of the causative processes from which evolve conditions of crime or the oppression of the citizen by government. The public welfare obviously becomes affected, and the citizen is oppressed, by incompetence, malice, enmity or by the waste of public funds.

"The method of investigation before presentation of a case to a Grand Jury includes the interrogation of witnesses by the District Attorney. In this manner it is determined who shall be called and what evidence shall be submitted which cannot help but influence greatly the aspect of a case and the outcome, however unprejudiced the prosecutor may intend to be. Stenographic notes and transcriptions of testimony taken in advance are not generally, if ever, referred to the Grand Jury or, if referred, recorded.

"The explanation of this procedure is that it saves the Grand Jurors time. Nevertheless, such a practice denies even to the Grand Jury access to full information, and consequently its judgment necessarily is subordinated to that of the District Attorney. Unintentionally, perhaps, the effectiveness of the intelligence of Grand Jurors and their willingness to accept the full responsibility of their oath of office becomes restricted.

"Distinctly within the scope of the Grand Jury lies the power to maintain in each county decent conditions of government, without political prejudice. It is essential to the intelligent application of such power that the legal adviser shall not only be competent but free of political dependence."

Would Increase Jury Panel.

The report recommends that the Grand Jury panel of 1,300 should be increased several times and be made up by the Appellate Division.

"By remedying these practices," it says, "not only might the county be saved the expense of many trials followed by acquittals, but the fundamental purpose of a careful and impartial Grand Jury investigation would be achieved and the popular impression, particularly among the poor and the ignorant, that all are not equal before the law, would be very considerably dispelled."

Telling of the criminal anarchy investigation, the report says forty-four indictments were returned, five defendants were deported, one fled forfeiting $3,500 bail, two pleaded guilty and got suspended sentences after renouncing the Communist Party of America and seven were convicted.

"The principal results of the indictments," says the report, "have been the seeming disorganization of these political groups, a checking of the open advocacy of criminal anarchy, a stimulation of activity by the public authorities in other States and by the Federal authorities, carefulness in the acceptance of literature by job printers, and directing attention to the menace of criminal anarchy."

Refers to "Overshadowing Crime."

Concerning the "overshadowing crime," about which the jury once made a presentment to Justice Weeks, the report says the phrase referred to the "undetermined motive which might have prompted one of the original charges of conspiracy, in support of which there was adduced before this grand jury no tangible evidence." The reference is said to be to the insistence of Mayor Hylan and the Hearst newspapers that the Interborough officials and the offices of the Interborough brotherhood conspired to bring about the subway strike. The jury heard sixty-nine witnesses, but found no basis for the charges.

The jury commends Alexander I. Rorke, Assistant District Attorney, and concludes:

"The great wealth and opportunity in this country lay upon its citizens a weighty responsibility. Legislation, both positive and negative, and political parties, with their vast patronage and might, seem to be creating special classes so that groups of people as well as individuals are becoming privileged and therefore not equal before the law. The groups and individuals thus privileged and public officials, profiting by these conditions, barter their authority in exchange for mutual gain and power and are at times indifferent to their obligations to the public welfare.

"Such situations are oppressive and infectious with corruption. They are great public evils pregnant with crime. No other arm of the law is so intimately representative of the people as is the Grand Jury, which should jealously safeguard its rights and inexorably use them without fear or favor. In these requirements largely rests the safety and the welfare of our people."

Thinks Many Suggestions Good.

District Attorney Swann is in Florida. In his absence Joab H. Banton, Acting District Attorney, said the report contained many good suggestions.

"I am a great believer in the election of our public officials by the people," he said, "and to do otherwise in the case of the District Attorney would mean that the State Constitution would have to be amended.

"I agree that Assistant District Attorneys should not have the privilege of practicing law outside of the prosecution of criminal cases. I don't think any man can successfully serve two masters. Criminal law practice is now barred to members of the staff, but they may try civil cases.

"As to money from private sources being used to prosecute defendants charged with crime, that cannot be legally done now."

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The House adopted today a resolution authorizing the Congressional Medal of Honor to be conferred upon an unidentified British and an unidentified French soldier buried, respectively, in Westminster Abbey and at the foot of the Arch of Triumph in Paris.

GERMANS ARE LEADING IN AIRPLANE METALS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 3.—That the future supremacy of the air is with the country which discovers and manufactures the lightest metal, is the opinion of General Duval, former chief of the French Aeronautic service. The study of light metal, he declares in an interview, is essential to any progress, and he foresees the creation of something practicable to aviation and yet lighter than aluminum.

The Germans are already at work on the problem, the General says, and he sees Germany beating France in airplane construction unless systematically the study of air problems is carried further in this country. For two years the plan to construct an aerodynamic laboratory at Issyle Moulineaux has been before the Chamber, but the money has not been forthcoming. The result of the delay has been that French aviation has not made anything like the progress that has been made either in Germany or America.

While the French are still working with light metals, the Germans are beginning work with metals which are extra-light, and the moment they succeed they will be able to create an airplane much lighter and at the same time more powerful than anything that any other country is producing.

MARCONI HAS INVENTION TO GUIDE SHIPS AT SEA

LIVERPOOL, March 3.—Discovery of a new wireless invention by which ships may be guided during dense fogs was announced here tonight by William Marconi at the annual British shipmasters' dinner.

This invention, he said, has not as yet been in operation anywhere, and is based on a principle by which electric waves may be directed in any definite direction like flashes from a lighthouse. He declared these waves would take the place of leading lights in thick weather, and would prevent collisions of vessels during fogs.

LONDON, March 3.—Answering questions in the Commons today, Lloyd George said he was perfectly willing to give facilities to the elected representatives of the Irish people to meet to present proposals to the Government or to come by way of deputation, but there were certain persons who could not be permitted to meet or take part in the deputation, namely, those who had taken part directly in murder.

Mr. Devlin asked whether any reservations of this character were made to representatives of the Boers when asked to meet the British Government, and whether some of the things done by representatives of the Boers could not be described as similar to those done in Ireland. There were cries of "No, no!"

Lloyd George replied with emphasis that it was an insult to the Government of South Africa to suggest there was any comparison between the men who fought openly in the field with men who parade the streets in civilian dress under the protection of the law and then turn round and shoot guardians of the law.

DUBLIN, March 3.—Flavor of the Wild West is imparted to life in Ireland by such episodes as that which occurred in Henry Street this afternoon. This thoroughfare branches off from O'Connell Street by the Nelson Pillar and is a popular shopping centre. About 4 o'clock several men in plain clothes leaped from a motor car and covering a well built young civilian with their revolvers bundled him into the car and drove him toward Dublin Castle.

Another arrest which the authorities apparently regard as important is that of a man named McKeon from the Ballinalee District. He was a passenger on the night mail train from Dublin which was searched by a strong mixed force of police and soldiers. McKeon and another civilian were arrested. As they were being marched from the station McKeon, who is an athlete and a fast runner, dashed away from the escort and had sprinted a considerable distance before he was wounded by shots fired at him. Even after being hit he continued to run, but further bullets striking him he collapsed and is in a very serious condition.

Continuance of outrages in Dublin has resulted in extension of the curfew as from tomorrow to 9 o'clock instead of 10 o'clock as at present. This is a crippling blow to caterers for amusement, who carried on under existing restrictions in admittedly difficult circumstances. The same reason has decided the military to close three sections of the railway.

A number of houses in the Rorey district have recently been raided and articles of food taken, it is believed, to supply the need of men on the run. Houses in the Burtonport district of Donegal have been raided and bedclothes, carpets, towels, &c., taken to provide for the comfort of fugitives in the neighboring mountains. Similar incidents are reported from County Meath.

FLORENTINE REVOLT IS BEING QUELLED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, March 3.—Slowly but surely the Florentine revolt is being quelled. This morning's messages say sixteen people have been killed in Florence, while the number wounded is between 300 and 400. More than 100 rebels are confined in big forts on the hills. Armed conflicts with soldiers are still occurring in the working-class districts, and a general return to work has been thwarted by the extremists, but the worst resistance is now encountered in outlying towns and hamlets.

Eight three-inch guns had been brought to batter down the formidable barricades at Scandicci and 300 rounds were fired from machine guns to cower the insurrectionists and blow to pieces the Socialist stronghold. A military lorry filled with carabinieri came to grief on a bridge which had been mined by the rebels, and it is reported that six were killed during the fighting, while many were pierced by bullets but not fatally wounded.

The Socialist Mayor, who played a conspicuous part in the battles, has since been arrested.

The Fascisti raided the Mutual Aid Society Buildings and carried off portraits of Lenin and Trotzky which were found covering those of Italian monarchs. The place was afterward wrecked by gunfire. Four soldiers were killed in an ambush at Empoli and six so badly wounded that they died later.

Communist raiders destroyed the telegraph offices at San Romano. Pisa, the city of the leaning tower, has been occupied by the military after a sanguinary conflict. The Socialist Party Directorate who were attending the Confederated Labor Congress at Leghorn, at which the communist group had just been defeated by more than 1,000,000 votes, were summoned urgently to the capital on Tuesday night to deliberate about a national strike, but owing to the total lack of communications and the hold-up of correspondence they are still safely blockaded in that seaport.

Railway and general strikes continue in Pisa, Piombino and Lucca. Thousands of workmen have been thrown out of employment through the closure of the San Marco dockyards at Trieste, where the damage resulting from yesterday's devastation is assessed at 20,000,000 lire.

Fires are still burning in various parts of the city and Fascisti incendiaries have wiped out the Labor Chamber in the neighboring town of Muggia.

WOULD AMEND "DRY" BILL.

Sponsor's Change Allows Taking Liquor From House to House.

ALBANY, March 3.—Amendments were offered to the Mullan-Gage prohibition enforcement bills in the Senate today by Senator Mullan. One will permit a man legally to transfer, without a permit, liquor from one house to another, as from town home to Summer house.

Additional amendments, of minor consequence, will be offered to the bills in the Assembly tomorrow according to the announcement of Assemblyman Gage tonight. The measures will then be in shape for early passage in both Houses.

The Senate Internal Affairs Committee today reported favorably the bill introduced by Senator Lowman which will require, if passed, an operator's license for all automobile drivers in the State. Such a provision is now in the law, but relates solely to New York City.

Triple Alliance Against Soviet Russia Formed by Poland, Rumania and Hungary

BUDAPEST, March 2.—A defensive alliance against the Bolsheviki has been entered into by Poland, Rumania and Hungary and the treaty of alliance was signed here Tuesday, according to information from reliable sources.

Colonel Starzea signed the treaty for Rumania and Count Dembinsky for Poland, it was said.

LONDON, March 2 (Associated Press). Latest reports received by the British Government tend to show that the Russian Soviet Government troops have suppressed the revolt in Petrograd and Moscow, Cecil B. Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, stated in the House of Commons today.

Reports similar to those published in the press concerning the disorders had reached the British representatives in the Baltic states, he said.

Reports from the Finnish frontier, the Baltic States, Scandinavia and the Balkans with reference to the disturbances in Russia, however, continued this evening to be conflicting, but it was generally accepted that the extensive machinery of the Soviet Government for the crushing of uprisings would enable the Reds to maintain their authority against great odds.

The opinion was expressed today, however, that any serious disorders were confined to certain restricted districts in Petrograd and Moscow. Little doubt seems to prevail in London that the Soviet Government is facing one of the most serious crises since it assumed power, and that these are due to a variety of causes, among them the fuel shortage consequent on the stoppage of transportation and lack of food in the large cities.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Advices received today from Berlin gave a picture of the situation in Russia, as reported to the German capital. These stated that it was understood to be as follows:

Ukraine—Continual revolts against the Bolsheviki in the Governments of Kharkov, Kiev, Ekaterinoslav, Chernigov and Kherson. The Reds are fighting against the Atamans Tunic, Sheney, Siromeha and Naco; serious troubles in the Ukrainian Red Army and terror in Odessa, Nicolaiev, Elizabethgrad and Ekaterinoslav.

Volga District—Troubles in the Saratov Government.

PARIS FINDS AGAIN OLD LOVE OF FUN

MANY STRIKING CHARIOTS

Queen of Queens Pays Her Visit to the President, and at Night Whole City Joins in the Revels.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 3.—All the humor, gayety and love of fun and splendor which characterized Paris before the war came back with a sweep today with the celebration of Mi-Carême. For ten miles through the streets the procession of the Queen of Queens has wound its way, through packed crowds everywhere, sprinkled with boys and girls in fancy dress. Nobody worried about when or how Germany was going to pay, for today, at least. Interest was all in the comic figures of the carnival carried aloft on chariots which were accompanied by an immense gondola in which Mlle. Yvonne Beclu, recently elected Queen of Queens, sat surrounded by the twenty Queens of all the arrondissements of Paris, the Queen of Students and the Muse of the Free of Montmartre.

Art students had had full liberty under the Fête Committee to plan and construct the triumphal cars and their ingenuity earned laughter and applause throughout the many miles of streets along which the procession passed. There was a pelican of lath and plaster in whose open beak half a dozen children played around. On another car which represented the old songs of France was a cat, also in plaster, whose arched back and towering tail reached as high as the third story windows.

Half a dozen popular jests and sarcasms found expression on great chariots drawn by six and eight horses at a slow moving pace. On one car was a half span of one of the Seine bridges and below it a crowd of householders camped out. It did not need much imagination to see the sarcasm on the condition of things which has reduced many Paris inhabitants to such recourse for a roof to shelter them.

At the Elysée the procession stopped and the Queen paid a visit to the President of the Republic, who this time did not scorn his privilege of a kiss, though he has abolished the custom when he bestows the military and other honors.

Tonight the whole city is giving itself over to gayety. There is a masked ball at the opera and at almost every dancing hall in the city. Even these, however, are scarcely likely to contain the crowd of revellers and in the streets thousands of laughing, singing students and citizens are dancing and singing as on armistice night, for the carnival has come back to Paris.

AMERICAN PRINCESS'S ILLNESS NOW CRITICAL

ATHENS, March 2.—(Associated Press.)—Princess Anastasia, wife of Prince Christopher of Greece, formerly Mrs. William B. Leeds of New York, who has been violently ill from a form of stomach trouble for several days, seemed to be in a serious condition today.

Dr. Hoover, chief of the American Red Cross Hospital in Constantinople, is being rushed to this city on a destroyer for a consultation with seven Greek physicians, who have been treating the patient. A physician who attended the Princess while she was a resident of Switzerland has also been summoned.

Attending surgeons, the same men who treated the late King Alexander during his last illness, have been unable to agree upon a diagnosis in the case, and fear is expressed that an operation may became necessary, the King and Queen called on the patient this afternoon.

Strike Ties Up Hungarian Papers.

VIENNA, March 2.—No news dispatches have been received from Budapest for several days. The strike called by Hungarian printers has become effective and not a single newspaper is appearing in the whole country.

WARNS TOKIO DIET ON KOREAN POLICY

SAITO SAYS NATIVES LIE

TOKIO, March 2 (Associated Press).—The Government's Korean policy was attacked in the Diet today by Representative Ichiro Kiyose of the Kokumin-to, or Nationalist, party.

He mentioned especially the destruction by Japanese troops of Christian churches and schools at Chentao, on the Korean-Manchurian frontier, reports of which abroad, Representative Kiyose declared, made the Japanese appear in the rôle of blood-thirsty devils.

Admiral Saito, Governor of Korea, in a statement to the press today, said that the Japanese administators in Korea were getting closer to the Koreans. The Christian missionaries, he asserted, were becoming convinced of the good intentions of the Japanese in Korea, and were assisting them in the re-establishment of a settled form of progressive government. Admiral Saito characterized as untrue reports that the Japanese troops had singled out Christian converts in Manchuria for persecution and death.

"Unfortunately," Admiral Saito continued, "many Koreans adopted Christianity as a cloak, believing it in some way to be an anti-Japanese movement. Also many Koreans are very untruthful. Some of them bore false testimony against other Koreans of whom they were jealous or against whom they held a grudge. When these victims of theirs were punished, some being executed, these same witnesses carried perjured reports to the missionaries."

In conclusion, Admiral Saito said that such a thing would never occur again, as orders had been issued to troop commanders warning against the acceptance of false Korean testimony.

TOKIO, March 2.—In the course of a demonstration by Koreans today in celebration of the inauguration of the Korean peace movement, the Koreans clashed with the police, and fifty of them, including six girls, were arrested.

One hundred and fifty Koreans, mostly students, assembled in Hibiya Park for the celebration. They carried Korean flags and shouted "Long live Korea!"

Labor Party Votes Defeat Coalition's "Dear Meat Candidate."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 3.—Labor had today its revenge for its defeat at Woolwich yesterday. Figures of the Dudley by-election announced tonight show the Labor candidate, Wilson, has been elected by a majority of 276 over the coalition Unionist, Sir A. Griffith-Boscawen, who has represented Dudley in the Commons since 1910. The Dudley contest was the result of Griffith-Boscawen's recent appointment as Minister of Agriculture, it being necessary in these circumstances for him to seek re-election.

The Labor Party, realizing the glory attached to the defeat of a Cabinet Minister, brought up full strength in support of Wilson, who is a railway man. Lord Beaverbrook, proprietor of The Daily Express, has been attacking Griffith-Boscawen for the latter's refusal to introduce legislation for removal of the embargo on the importation of Canadian cattle into this country. Lord Beaverbrook's contention was that the removal of the embargo would cheapen meat here, so Griffith-Boscawen was instantly labeled "the dear meat candidate," and it certainly cost him many votes. But probably the unemployed question, which is very acute in Dudley, was the principal factor in his defeat. Lloyd George's influence had been used on behalf of the Minister of Agriculture, and Mrs. Lloyd George visited Dudley to try to turn the tide in his favor. The Labor Party is, of course, jubilant over the victory.

Find Woman Dying From Stabs.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 3.—Mrs. Mary Haefner, said to be a wealthy widow from Atlantic City, was found dying today in a driveway near the home of a sister on Potomac Avenue. She had been stabbed several times and her hip was broken. Murder was at first suspected, but investigation indicated suicide. Relatives said that Mrs. Haefner was suffering from a nervous breakdown.

THREATEN TO EXTEND COSTA RICAN RAID

NEW FORCE RUSHED TO COTO

Measures Will Be Taken to Limit Fighting, It Is Indicated in Washington.

PANAMA, March 3.—Costa Rica forces are being rushed to the Coto district in dispute between this country and Costa Rica, where Panama and Costa Rican troops have been engaged in hostilities, it is said in dispatches to the Government here.

A steamer, it is declared, has been at Punta Arenas taking on troops and munitions, and it is believed that the Costa Ricans plan to land these forces on the eastern shore of Burica Point, a projection of land which marks the Pacific end of the boundary between Panama and Costa Rice.

Should this manoeuvre be carried out, the Panaman forces which recently captured Costa Rican units occupying Coto, to the northeast, would be in danger of being cut off from their base of supplies.

The chief significance of such a move on the part of Costa Rica would appear to centre around the fact that it would involve the United States, since the shore east of Burica Point was given to Panama under the arbitration ruling of Chief Justice White, which was handed down in 1914. It has been understood here, that the United States Department of State has been insisting upon the interpretation of treaties obligating the United States to protect the territorial integrity of Panama.

Another possibility that the United States may become involved is found in reports that Costa Rica is reinforcing her garrisons at the Atlantic end of the frontier. The United Fruit Company owns extensive banana plantations, and has railroads extending southerly from Puerto Limon into Panama. It has been learned that this corporation will be almost certain to request the protection of United States troops if Costa Rica should decide to take over these lines for military purposes.

Travelers arriving here from Costa Rica report anti-American demonstrations in San José, Puerto Limon, Cartago and Heredia on Feb. 27 and 28. A strict censorship has been established here, and little is known of the movements of Panaman volunteer forces, but it is learned that a shipment of rifles is expected from Peru in a few days, and that they will be used for arming newly recruited forces.

The capture of another Costa Rican vessel, with 100 men on board, was officially announced here yesterday.

Prepare to Limit Fighting Zone.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Reports that Costa Rican forces might be landed at Burica Point, south of the Panama frontier, caused surprise in Government circles here in view of official intimations from Costa Rica previously that no extension of operations southward was contemplated.

It was indicated, however, that should such a movement develop the United States could be expected to take prompt measures toward compelling the contending Costa Rican and Panaman forces to confine their operations to the disputed territory of Coto.

No reply has been received either from Panama or Costa Rica to notes sent by the State Department suggesting that peaceable means of adjusting the dispute be adopted.

ACTS TO SAVE LORELEI ROCK

LONDON, March 3.—Lorelei Rock, on the Rhine near St. Goar, has been purchased by an athletic club, in order to safeguard it against disfigurement or usages not in keeping with the historic surroundings, according to a report from the Rhineland.

The summit of the rock has been bought for the sum of 7,000 marks, and will in future be used as a drill ground by the South Nassau gymnasts.

The rock is a familiar landmark to all travelers on the Rhine and students of mythology. It gives a remarkable echo, which may account for the legend attaching to it. In its commonest form the tale is that of a Rhine maiden who threw herself into the river in despair over a faithless lover and became a siren, whose voice lured fishermen to destruction.

BINGHAMTON JUDGE TO HEAD DRY FORCES

Harold L. Hart, City Judge of Binghamton and the Republican leader of Broome County, has been agreed upon by the Republican organization of the State as its candidate for Federal Prohibition Director of the State of New York, to succeed Charles R. O'Connor, the present Democratic incumbent. Mr. Hart's appointment is expected to be announced within a few days from Washington.

The fact that under the leadership of Mr. Hart the Republican situation in Broome County never has been in such fine shape had considerable to do with his selection, it was admitted by local Republicans. Broome was one of the few counties in the State which showed a falling off in the vote cast for Alfred E. Smith last Fall, compared to 1918.

Judge Hart is considered a militant law enforcer, and it is predicted that he will strive for a strict enforcement of the Federal prohibition law. It was said that his first effort will be to end the alleged collusion between bootleggers and various officials.

The position pays $5,000 a year, but is considered a big plum by the politicians because of the power involved. Mr. Hart's headquarters will be in New York City. Commenting yesterday upon the choice of the Republicans, State Chairman George Glynn said:

"The organization knew it would have to take the responsibility for the selection of a Federal Prohibition Director for this State, and the leaders have chosen a man whose standing, ability and environment warrants the assumption that he will enforce the law."

Grants Appeal to 'Wolf of Wall St.'

Federal Judge Martin T. Manton granted David Lamar, "the Wolf of Wall Street," yesterday an appeal to the United States Supreme Court in his suit for a writ of habeas corpus to escape serving a sentence of one year in the penitentiary at Trenton, N. J. Lamar will thus be able to escape beginning his term, which was imposed by Federal Judge Cushman in 1917, until at least October.

Sees Prohibition of Divorce More Needed Than of Drink

BOSTON, March 3. — National prohibition of divorce is far more needed than the Volstead act, in the opinion of the Rev. J. I. Corrigan, a professor at Boston College.

"If divorces multiply at the same rate in the future as in the past," he said at a meeting of the Young Men's Catholic Association of the college last night, "and there is every indication that they are increasing faster, by 1946 we shall have annually in the United States one divorce for every five marriages."

HINTS TRANSIT PLAN IS ALREADY FRAMED

ASSERTS BILL WILL FAIL

Asks if Public Would Be Admitted to Proposed Hearings by New Commission.

Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien, who was one of the speakers against the Miller traction bill at the Albany hearing on Wednesday, said yesterday that the prospect held out by William A. Prendergast, chief spokesman for the Miller plan, that the commission to be appointed by the Governor might recommend a lowering of fares instead of a rise had little prospect of fulfillment. Mr. O'Brien had this comment to make upon the hearing:

"Great stress was laid by Mr. Prendergast in his sesquipedalian oration at Albany yesterday upon the careful and detailed investigation into the traction conditions which will follow the appointment of transit commissioners if the Miller bill goes through. He tried to have his hearers and the public believe that careful investigation into all of the ramifications of the traction question will be made before any action is taken by the Commissioners and that the fares might be lowered as well as raised as the result of the inquiry and deliberations of that commission.

"May I ask whether it is a fact that the investigation has been already fairly well completed, the plan practically prepared and the whole of the subject matter put in such shape that the Transit Commission, these three supermen whom the Governor has in mind, may be able to expedite the determination of the questions necessary as a preliminary step to fixing the fares on our city streets?

"Has this plan been already prepared by the Merchants Association, which employed the men who prepared this plan? Who has employed the lawyers who drafted this bill?

"A further query I would put to Mr. Prendergast, since he is the chief spokesman for the Governor's measure, is this: If the bill be enacted into law and the Transit Commission appointed, is it designed to conduct this inquiry in a public proceeding, with witnesses under oath, with the public allowed to be present? Will testimony be presented in such form and under such rules as would be required in a rate case tried in court? Will Stone & Webster's figures be accepted in any form as evidence either of the value of the properties involved or the operating expenses and revenues?

"The defense of the Miller bill in the Assembly Chamber yesterday was far weaker than even the most ardent opponent of this indefensible bill expected it to be. The whole burden of the argument was that traction conditions in New York ought to be changed, even if it were necessary to violate the State and the Federal Constitutions and the sacred principles of home rule that have been developed and extended during the last sixty years. They should be invaded and set aside and ignored, if necessary, to make the project a matter of stabilizing securities.

"Even though the party machinery and all the known mechanics of State politics are being used to a straining point to rush this bill through, the overwhelming force of an enlightened public opinion in New York and the up-State cities will block the passage of the bill, and there will be one more slab in the legislative cemetery to mark the last resting place of another traction bill."

SHIPPING AGREEMENT CONDEMNED BY BOARD

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The agreement between the International Mercantile Marine Corporation and the British Admiralty requiring the corporation to operate its ships without injury to British commerce is "inimicable" to the foreign commerce of the United States, the Shipping Board declared today in a report submitted to the Senate. The report was in response to a resolution of inquiry, as a result of charges by Senator Jones of Washington, that the agreement was injurious to American shipping.

In reporting its findings after a hearing had been held on the charges, the board declared the agreement to be "inimicable to and not in harmony with the policy of the United States, with respect to the development of its trade and commerce, and at variance with both the letter and the spirit of the Merchant Marine act of 1920."

The resolution, a copy of which has been sent to the International Mercantile Marine Corporation, directed it to amend the agreement to exclude all vessels documented under the laws of the United States from the effects of the agreement, so that it would not apply to ships operated by the company at any time under the American flag.

ASSAIL FISH SALE TO ARMY.

Republicans on House Committee Ask for Criminal Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Recommendations that the Department of Justice institute criminal proceedings against dealers who in 1918 sold the War Department 5,000,000 cans of salmon held by Government experts to be unfit for human consumption are contained in a majority report filed today by the House War Investigating Committee. The Democratic members of the committee presented a dissenting report.

The minority report commended the department for an inspection service which kept the food from the soldiers, declared the product was turned back to the packers and that the army had been "spared the pestilence and suffering caused by the sale of embalmed beef during the Spanish War." The minority report also held that the procurement of $8,000,000 by resale to the dealers and the preventing of the salmon from reaching the public established "beyond peradventure the department's humanity—that man is above the dollar."

WILL SPEED ACTION ON TRACTION BILL

GOVERNOR HAS NO FEARS

Nevertheless Some Supporters Believe Caucus Will Be Necessary to Assure Victory.

TO TAKE UP WATER POWER

Lawmakers Expect Message From Miller Next Week Dealing With Concentration of Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 3.—Speedy action on the Governor's transit bill is planned by the Legislative leaders. The Public Service Committee of the Senate and the Assembly Judiciary Committee will meet early next week to consider amendments to the measure, of which approximately fifty have been suggested. Many of these are trifling or merely technical.

With the bill revised, it will be pressed for final passage as early as circumstances will permit. Clayton R. Lusk, Senate leader, said today that week after next should see the bill on the Senate and Assembly calendars and ready to be put through the stages immediately preceding final action.

In some quarters this prophecy is regarded as too optimistic. Even among advocates of the Transit bill there are those who predict that, owing to the opposition manifested at the Mayors' Conference meeting here yesterday, it will require more time and possibly a party caucus to put the measure through. The Legislative leaders, however, profess to see nothing but smooth sailing ahead.

Governor Undisturbed.

Governor Miller also is serene. He said today that he had heard from the leaders that there was nothing to give reason for fears that the bill might suffer defeat.

"As leaders of your party in this State, would you insist upon a caucus in the event that this course should be found necessary to insure the passage of your bill?" the Governor was asked.

With a smile the Governor replied:

"I should not hesitate to make the bill a party measure. But, of course, it is a matter for the people on the floor above (the legislators) to determine what should be done in this regard. I do not anticipate that it will be necessary to bind anybody by caucus action."

Governor Miller's attention was called to a point advanced by Controller Craig at yesterday's hearing. The City Controller read from some of the New York City charters of the Colonial period to prove that the city had delegated to it, through these powers of regulation and control, jurisdiction over public utilities, and insisted that these could not be taken away even by the State.

"I suppose," said the Governor, "that the City of New York has all the rights vested in it through the charter under which it is incorporated and no other. Of course, there have always been questions outstanding regarding certain relative powers of the State and the City, as a result of ancient grants, but these do not affect the transit situation."

No Exemptions for Up State.

Senate Leader Lusk today emphatically rejected a suggestion that the Transit bill might be amended so as to exempt up-State cities from the rigors of Public Service Commission interference with local agreements made with proposed new State public utilities corporations operating within their boundaries. The powers of regulation of the Public Service Commission under the Governor's bill would be identical with those to be vested in the Transit Commission for New York City.

"I have heard of no serious suggestion in that direction," said the Senate leader, "nor would it be heeded by the Legislature, in my opinion. Cities, through the powers delegated to them by the Legislature in the matter of public utilities, have made such a muddle of it that for their own protection the State now finds it necessary to withdraw its grant. Future utilities, contracts and agreements will be made, not between the cities and the public utilities corporations but between these and the State.

"Look at New York City," he went on. "Two years ago I sat in this very room and voted to give Governor Smith all he asked for in the matter of reorganizing the Public Service Commission for the First District. We passed the bill without any vital change, practically in the form the Governor sent it to us. Has any good resulted from it? You can judge for yourself of the situation in New York City and of the necessity for the plan contemplated by the pending Transit bill."

Water Power Measure Expected.

It is understood that the next message from Governor Miller to the Legislature will deal with water power. The Governor said today that he hoped to be able to complete it in time to be transmitted to the lawmakers next week.

Senator Mortimer Y. Ferris of the Essex-Warren District today introduced a bill which provides for the transfer of regulation over water-power projects from George D. Pratt the Department of Commissioner of Conservation, to that of the State Engineer, Frank M. Williams. The bill provides that all plans and specifications for development of the State's water powers, including the construction of large reservoirs in the Adirondack region for impounding water, must be prepared by the State Engineer and Surveyor. Before becoming effective they must be passed upon by a oard composed of the State Engineer, the Attorney General and the Conservation Commissioner.

Commissioner Pratt does not favor the bill but it is in line with recommendations embodied in the Governor's message to the Legislature which contemplate concentration of all the engineering work of the State in the State Engineer's Department.

AMERICANS IN TIFLIS.

Three Relief Workers Stayed When Reds Seized Georgian Capital.

Confirmation of Constantinople reports that Russian Bolsheviki have captured the Georgian capital, Tiflis, was received yesterday by the Near East Relief in a cablegram from Lester Ray Ogden of Oakland, Cal., who is in charge of the American relief work in Batum, the Georgian port on the Black Sea. Ogden's dispatch was sent on Feb. 26 and delayed five days in transit. It reads:

"Tiflis was entered by the Bolsheviki last night. All communications with Tiflis are closed. Theodore A. Elmer, Oberlin, Ohio; Harold Barton, Concord, Mass., and Ernest A. Yarrow, Binghamton, N. Y., Near East Relief workers, American citizens, are still there."

Charles V. Vickrey, General Secretary of the Near East Relief, expressed no fear for the Americans.

UNTERMYER NAMED IN CONTEMPT CASE

Lawyer Quotes Him as Saying He Did Not Care to Send Material Men to Jail.

CONFERENCE IN WASHINGTON

A. J. Baldwin Testifies Meeting Was Arranged After Client Had Seen Alderman Kenneally.

Arthur J. Baldwin, counsel for John A. McCarthy, former business associate of Charles F. Murphy, testified yesterday that Samuel Untermyer told him he did not care to put any one in jail in connection with the housing investigation here. He quoted Mr. Untermyer as having said he had accomplished his purpose in exposing building conditions and was after constructive legislation.

Mr. Baldwin's testimony was given before Justice McAvoy in the case of Robert O. Scallan, a reporter for The World, charged with contempt of court. Scallan had written an article, published last Saturday morning, intimating that the Tammany nomination for District Attorney would go to some one in the Attorney General's office if the fifty-six indicted building material dealers were permitted to escape with fines.

Mr. Baldwin said he met Mr. Untermyer at the home of a Mr. Bugher in Washington on Feb. 12, in pursuance of an appointment arranged by telephone and telegraph. He testified that Mr. McCarthy told him that William P. Kenneally, Vice President of the Board of Aldermen, had said he had a friend, Morris Panger, in the office of William A. De Ford, Special Deputy Attorney General, who was prosecuting the anti-trust law case against McCarthy. Kenneally told McCarthy, the witness said, that Panger said he thought De Ford would be willing to accept a plea of guilty and the imposition of a fine, and that the prosecutor was surprised that no one had come to see him regarding it.

It was in connection with this situation that he arranged to see Mr. Untermyer in Washington. Then he saw McCarthy again.

Another Conference with Kenneally.

"He (McCarthy) told me that since his conference with me, I believe, he had again talked to the Alderman (Kenneally) and the Alderman had repeated and was sure he had gotten the message correct," Baldwin testified.

Baldwin suggested that McCarthy go back to Kenneally again. On Wednesday, Feb. 16, McCarthy reported to him that he saw Panger in company with Kenneally the previous evening, and that Panger repeated in substance what Kenneally had said. The conference attended by Panger, Kenneally and McCarthy, took place in the Anawanda Club, the Tammany club in Leader Murphy's district.

Stanley Richter, Special Deputy Attorney General, son-in-law of Mr. Untermyer, asked permission to defend Mr. Untermyer if "unwarranted attacks" were made. He objected to Mr. Baldwin's testimony.

De Ford said that his object was to discover "the source of Mr. Untermyer's clairvoyance as to what was happening here and to show and develop" a "proposition" that, he understood, Mr. Untermyer made to the witness.

Richter said De Ford seemed to be laying the basis for an indictment for conspiracy. This was denied by the prosecutor. Richter insisted that De Ford had made such a statement the previous day. De Ford said he did not, and the Court said:

"No, he did not state that. He stated that he thought that in respect of the proceedings here evidence might be adduced in the course of the proceeding that would be the basis for an indictment for criminal conspiracy or criminal libel or conspiracy to commit a criminal libel, but the object of the inquiry has no such purpose."

Says Untermyer Gave Information.

"May I state to Your Honor," in answer to Mr. Richter's suggestion, that there is nothing here to connect Mr. Untermyer with this publication," said De Ford. "I believe if Your Honor will give me an opportunity to analyze the facts in evidence I will convince Your Honor that he was a party to this publication and that he furnished these people the materials, which they afterward embodied in the attacking article."

De Ford charged that Mr. Untermyer gave The World "the false material, with the understanding that the only question that was open was as to the time when it should be used."

Justice McAvoy listened privately to Baldwin and then ruled that the evidence was competent. Major C. B. Brophy, for Scallan, objected to the evidence and the court said:

"It is not at all objectionable from your standpoint. In fact, it somewhat mitigates the offense."

Continuing his testimony Baldwin said:

"I said I wished to see him (Untermyer) in regard to the building material cases. I explained to him that I had been away the first of the week in St. Louis, but on the day previous some of the defendants had been to see me, saying that a friend of Mr. McCarthy had called upon him at the third panel jury and told him that he had a friend in Mr. De Ford's office who said that he thought Mr. De Ford would be willing to accept a plea of guilty and the imposition of a fine in those cases, and further said that De Ford was surprised that no one had come to see him in regard to it."

Explained Case to Untermyer.

Baldwin told Untermyer that he had not talked to any of the lawyers for the defendants, but that before he saw De Ford he wanted to see the chief counsel to learn if the attitude of the prosecutors was what had been described to him.

The witness said he explained to Mr. Untermyer that there was a great difference between the material men's cases and previous cases, and although his clients might be technically guilty of a violation of the Donnelly act, he said that during the war the rigors of the Donnelly and Sherman laws had been let down because of necessity, and he felt that the defendants were no more guilty than many others who acted similarly during the war. He said the case might take six weeks to try, would involve great expense, and said that in the present condition of public opinion with respect to housing conditions he did not believe there could be but one result—a verdict of guilty. He said that he came to see Mr. Untermyer to see if De Ford had been correctly quoted and if that was the attitude of Mr. Untermyer.

To which Untermyer, according to Baldwin, replied:

"I don't care about putting anybody in jail. I have accomplished my purpose. I am after real constructive legislation. I am going south to prepare a report. I have always thought that these matters should be regulated by law and that there should be some commission in the nature of a State Trade Commission that should have jurisdiction over any association or combination of manufacturers and dealers."

"Well, I said, 'Then what shall I do?'" Baldwin testified. "He said, 'You go ahead and make any arrangement you can with De Ford and it will be satisfactory to me.' I asked Mr. Untermyer, 'What shall I tell him about our interview?' He said, 'Don't mention it.' I said, 'You mean you would rather for me not to mention at all that I had seen you?' He said, 'Yes. Don't mention it at all.'"

Tells of Seeing De Ford.

When he spoke to De Ford subsequently, De Ford told him he would demand the imposition of jail sentences.

On cross-examination by Major Brophy, Baldwin said that after his talk with Untermyer he asked Mr. McCarthy to go back to "his friend" and "see what there is of this." McCarthy promised to see Kenneally that night.

Baldwin went to Pittsburgh and returned two days later, the 16th. McCarthy told him that he had seen Panger and Kenneally and that Panger repeated in substance what Kenneally had said. Panger read to McCarthy a paper purporting to have been dictated by De Ford "as outlining his condition and his attitude of mind and what he would do in the event of certain pleas being entered."

Baldwin gave the Court the memorandum and Prosecutor De Ford interjected to say he recognized it as a copy of a memorandum he dictated to his secretary "so that I might be sure that the communication that I authorized Panger to make as to my state of mind was accurately made, so that nobody could be misled." The memorandum said that Mr. De Ford would not accept pleas of guilty and that he would ask for jail sentences.

Going back to the conversation with Mr. Untermyer, Major Brophy asked the witness:

"Was anything said in that conversation with respect to any rumor of the offer of a nomination next Fall of District Attorney to Mr. De Ford?"

"No, sir," replied the lawyer.

The Scallan case was adjourned until Monday, when it will be taken up in the Criminal Court Building in connection with the cases of James W. Barrett, R. E. Smith and W. P. Beazell, members of The World staff, also cited to appear in response to an order to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt.

W. B. WILSON PUT ON JOINT COMMISSION

President Displeases Senators by Appointing Retiring Secretary to International Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Announcement made today that William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor in President Wilson's Cabinet, had been appointed by Mr. Wilson a member of the International Joint Commission caused considerable dissatisfaction among Senators. At the same time it was announced that Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to the President, had declined appointment on the commission.

The dissatisfaction does not apply personally to Secretary Wilson. The Democrats criticise the appointment because Mr. Wilson will displace Obadiah Gardner, a former Democratic Senator from Maine, and the Republicans are displeased partly because the International Commission will remain in Democratic control and partly because there will be left on the commission only one member—ex-Senator Clarence D. Clark of Wyoming—who has any acquaintance with its work.

The dissatisfaction began to develop when it became known last week that President Wilson had tendered a place on the International Commission to Mr. Tumulty. Senator Spencer of Missouri, who had a telegraphic controversy during the political campaign last year with President Wilson and Mr. Tumulty over Mr. Spencer's charge that the President had assured the peace conference that the American Army and fleet would go to the assistance of European nations if they were again threatened by German aggression, was one of those most pronounced in opposition to Mr. Tumulty's appointment. There was nothing, however, that Senators could do to prevent it, as it is vested exclusively in the President and does not have to be submitted to the Senate for confirmation.

HEALTH INSPECTORS HOLD IMMIGRANTS

Inspectors from the Department of Health yesterday examined 1,760 immigrants arriving from Ellis Island and Boston, and sent seventy-four of them to Willard Parker Hospital to be cleaned. Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland, apparently convinced that Congress would not grant the antityphus appropriation sought for New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Norfolk and Baltimore, said responsibility for any outbreak of typhus or cholera would rest upon the Federal authorities.

"It is to be regretted," he said, "that the United States Public Health Service did not frankly admit their lack of facilities and equipment. Had this admission been made a month ago Congress would probably have provided these facilities. Even at the eleventh hour Congress should take this action. Nothing worse than typhus and cholera could come to this country. Should they break out responsibility rests on Congress and the Federal authorities.

"It is not humane to hold immigrants on piers and steamships, as is being done because of the lack of facilities at Ellis Island. We have found that they are restless and prepared to riot on ships where they are herded as cattle."

Three deaths and seven cases of sleeping sickness were reported to the department. The deaths were those of Edward C. Ramos, 3 months old, of 170 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn; Melvin Goldstein, 5 months old, of 1,199 Fulton Avenue, the Bronx, and Elsie Muller, 1 year old, of 1,592 Second Avenue. Of the new cases, one was in Manhattan, one in the Bronx, four in Brooklyn and one in Queens.

EX-GRAIN MILLIONAIRE DIES AS GAS FILLS ROOM

OMAHA, March 3.—Emil Rothschild, formerly a millionaire grain dealer and President of the Rothschild Grain Company, 36 years old, was found dead from asphyxiation in his home here early today. Gas was pouring from the burners of a stove.

Members of his family said that Mr. Rothschild had been suffering from a nervous breakdown following severe financial reverses. He is said to have lost heavily during the last eight months in grain speculation and to have suffered reverses because of the depreciation of the value of the German mark. Last night he sent a cablegram to his brother Louis in Hamburg, Germany, asking that the latter "wire immediately what you can realize on my house and marks."

He left several notes, but their contents were not made public. Later it was announced that in one of the notes, addressed to his attorney, Mr. Rothschild said his assets would be ample to take care of all obligations.

ACTOR CHARGES LIBEL.

Leo Stark Says J. A. O'Brien Accused Him of Disloyalty to Equity.

Leo Stark, an actor, appeared in the West Side Court yesterday as complainant against J. Arthur O'Brien, also an actor, in a criminal libel action. Both actors were recently members of Chauncey Olcott's "Macushla" company, and the charges against O'Brien have grown out of letters which he is said to have sent to the Actors' Equity Association.

O'Brien, Stark charges, accused him of disloyalty to the principles of the Equity, and also charged him with presenting personal bills to the Olcott company for payment under the pretense that they were bills concerned with the production.

Magistrate Max Levine adjourned the case until March 15, when further testimony will be taken in the Tombs Court.

NEW ENGLAND ROADS PLAN TO CUT WAGES

AFFECTS UNSKILLED LABOR

April 4 Set as Date for Readjustment of Pay Involving Several Thousand Men.

BOSTON, March 3.—A reduction in wages of unskilled employes of all the principal railroads in New England was forecast today. The New York, New Haven & Hartford, the Boston & Albany and the Boston & Maine Railroads each called conferences of employes, at which the extent of the cut is to be discussed. April 4 is the date tentatively set for the reduction, which on these roads will affect approximately 7,000 men. It is understood that the other roads will take similar action.

Details of the proposed readjustment have not been announced, and the companies say they are being withheld until the representatives of the employes can sit down with the road officials and talk over the situation.

The conferences are set for March 11 at New Haven in the case of the New Haven road, March 8 at Springfield and Boston for the Boston & Albany, and March 14 at Boston for the Boston & Maine.

Eighteen hundred employes of the Boston & Albany, a part of the New York Central system, are affected by the wage reduction. All are rated as unskilled laborers, including freight handlers, truckers, sealers, scalers, stowers, coopers, baggage porters, janitors, watchmen, drawtenders, crossing men, grain shovelers, lampmen, mail porters, pumpmen, station cleaners, fire builders, ashpit men, flue borers, coalers, car cleaners, headlight men, sandhouse men, lamplighters, trackmen, apprentices and storeroom men.

PORTLAND, Me., March 3.—Laborers employed by the Maine Central Railroad were informed in notices today that their wages would be revised. They were invited to confer with officials here on March 14.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 3.—Officials of the Ontario & Western Railroad gave notice today that on April 1 a reduction will be made in the wages of unskilled employes of the entire line. A conference with representatives of the various lines of unskilled labor has been called for March 11.

READING, Pa., March 3.—Announcement was made today by General Manager F. M. Falck that he will meet 100 or more representatives of the employes of the Reading Railway system in Philadelphia on March 15 to discuss the necessity of a reduction in the existing rates of pay. The new rates will become effective April 1.

CHARGE PULLMAN CO. WITH BREAKING LAW

CHICAGO, March 3.—Violation of the Transportation act was charged today by employes of the Pullman Company in a dispute before the Railroad Labor Board which involved acceptance of the company's employe plan of representation and recognition of the labor unions. The Pullman plan was drawn up on suggestions of the second Industrial Congress called by President Wilson, and has been put into effect at many points on the Pullman system.

According to employes' representatives, the plan was instituted without consulting the workers. They declared they still were subjected to the national agreements and the wage decision of the Labor Board last July. Failure to pay the scale provided in this decision is the basis for the case.

Interwoven with the question of whether the company is bound by the national agreements and the wage decision, both of which the company denies, is the problem of the six union labor organizations represented among the employes.

Union representatives maintain the right to act for the employes in negotiations with the company, but the latter refuses to confer with any "outsider," declaring it will deal only with its own employes.

SIXTEEN RAIL UNIONS SANCTION BIG STRIKE

CHICAGO, March 3.—Sanction from sixteen railroad brotherhoods and unions for a strike of employes of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railway was sent to local representatives of the unions, following a midnight conference of heads of the organizations here. It was announced today, by E. H. Fitzgerald, President of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes.

It was stated that the sanction will become effective at a date for concerted action to be agreed on by the local representatives of the organizations on the Southern road. It endorses a strike vote completed Jan. 28.

The conference was attended by B. M. Jewell, President of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor, and it was said that the projected strike would have the backing of the Federation.

The question of a wage reduction on the road was recently brought before the Railroad Labor Board here by the management of the road, but the board held that the Transportation act had not been fully complied with in so far as preliminary conferences between employers and employes were concerned, and remanded the dispute for such conferences.

DENIES OPEN SHOP PLAN.

Road in South Says It Is Simply Replacing Strikers.

HARRISON, Ark., March 3.—Charles A. Phelan, General Manager of the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad, on which operating employes struck last Saturday, denied today that the railroad had decided to operate on an open shop basis.

A dispatch from Helena stated that Mrs. Harter, employed in Mr. Phelan's office, had given out a statement that the railroad would adopt the open shop plan for labor. Mr. Phelan said there was no such woman in the employ of the railroad.

"We had to have labor, and we hired it where it could be found, regardless of organization," Mr. Phelan said, "but the company has not adopted the open shop plan."

Mr. Phelan said the railroad had employed 250 new men and that train service was about 50 per cent. of normal.

WAR MAIMED TELL OF FEDERAL NEGLECT

BUCK PASSED BY EVERYBODY

Wounded and disabled veterans of the World War told the committee investigating conditions among disabled men for the American Legion at the City Hall yesterday that they were being neglected or improperly treated by the authorities.

The first witness was Martin L. Engen of 514 West 177th Street, a patient at the Fox Hills Hospital, who is receiving a temporary disability allotment of $80 a month. During the war he served in the navy, and at the Great Lakes Station in October, 1918, fell from a scaffold and broke his back. He wears a plaster cast from shoulder to hips.

Engen said he was notified on Wednesday by a physician from the Polyclinic Hospital that he would have to undergo an operation, and that if he did not his compensation would probably be stopped, even although he remained helpless. He said he applied for permanent disability rating in December last year, but it had not yet been allowed.

That the Government is failing to care for 150 veterans suffering from tuberculosis at Saranac Lake was told to the committee by Frederick T. Albright, a veteran of the army, who is being treated for tuberculosis. He said he had no complaint to make about his own treatment, but that some of the men are being entirely neglected.

About 150 men, he said, had refused to leave Saranac Lake and go to a Government hospital in Mexico because they thought the treatment they were getting could not be improved. The Government then refused to take care of the men, the witness said, and most of them left. Then, he said, the Government started the contract-cottage system, and when many of the men who had left returned they were refused admittance.

"Several of the men who could have been cured if they had not been chased from Saranac Lake died after they left," said Albright, "and others were set back in their cure by the many changes made."

Albright said he went to Washington to make application for permanent disability allotment and that it took eight men, including Lieut. Col. Cholmondley, former head of the War Risk Bureau, ten working days to locate his papers.

Thomas D. Brown of 869 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, said:

"Everybody passed the buck, even the Red Cross," when he looked for a readjustment of compensation and vocational training. He said he contracted pneumonia while in the army and that since then the blood does not flow properly to his legs and that he cannot stand on his feet over fifteen minutes at a time. He left Perryville Hospital because he had been mistreated, and the doctors there notified the Government that he had been cured and his compensation was reduced from $90 to $22 a month.

He then wrote to the Government for readjustment of compensation, as he was totally disabled and received a notification that the Government did not know that he was in the hospital and was waiting for a report. He said he had been in the Polyclinic Hospital for five months.

George La Bonce of Norwood, N. J., told the committee he had lost his right eye in the service and had since almost lost the sight of his left eye. He said he had been shifted to various hospitals and camps for two months without treatment, had waited nine months for vocational training and was getting only $12.50 a month compensation.

Dr. Thomas W. Salmon, formerly chief consulting physician on neuropsychiatry in the A. E. F., told of a soldier who had become a mental defective, being sent by the police to a hospital for the criminal insane. He said 15 per cent. of the insane veterans were in New York City, and urged that the proposed hospital at Creedmoor be constructed at once. He also urged the establishment of a clearing house in New York for the mentally diseased, with accomodations for about 300 men.

NAVAL VETERAN DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Guy Nichols, Brooklyn Murderer, Left $5,000 War Risk Insurance to Parents.

OSSINING, March 3.—Guy Nichols, 24 years old and a naval veteran of the war, was executed in Sing Sing Prison tonight for the murder in Brooklyn on Nov. 3, 1919, of Samuel Wolchak, a stationer, at 208 Wyckoff Street, whom Nichols and his accomplices sought to rob. Jesse Walker, another ex-seaman, was executed three weeks ago for his part in the affair. In an ante-mortem statement Walker said Nichols had no part in the actual shooting.

Some of the trial jurors and Supreme Court Justice Manning, who sentenced Nichols, tried to induce Governor Miller to commute the sentence to life imprisonment, but District Attorney Lewis of Brooklyn opposed clemency and the Governor decided not to intervene.

Surrogate Foley granted yesterday the application of Mrs. Nannie Morse Ryan, widow of Joseph J. Ryan, son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, for the appointment of a temporary administrator of her husband's estate pending her contest of the will.

Mr. Ryan left the bulk of an estate estimated at $100,000 to Dorothy Lucille Whiteford, friend, and left only $100 to his wife and $5,000 each to his two children.

In naming Charles A. Curtin administrator the Surrogate said: "It appears for the welfare of the estate that a disinterested party should be named." Counsel for Mrs. Ryan contended that when the decedent's debts were paid there would be little of the estate left.

SEARS, ROEBUCK CUTS PAY.

From 2,500 to 3,500 Employes Are Affected in First Reduction.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Wages of from 2,500 to 3,500 employes of Sears, Roebuck & Co. were reduced today. Similar reductions will be made in a short time in the pay of other employes until wages have been reduced to the general level of the Spring of 1920, when the last increase in pay was granted.

Falling off in the business of the big mail order house during the months of January and February is given as the reason for the reduction. In those months Albert H. Loeb, Vice President of the company, announced, the business done was only about one-half of what it was in January and February of 1920.

CRAIG'S JAIL TERM IS AGAIN POSTPONED

DELAY MERELY TECHNICAL

Marshal Had Not Signed Government's Answer—Controller Present in Court.

Execution of the sixty-day sentence in the Essex County Jail at Newark, imposed upon Charles L. Craig, City Controller, by Judge Julius M. Mayer in the United States District Court, as a result of statements made by the Controller concerning Judge Mayer's orders in the traction receiverships, was again postponed yesterday when the case came before Judge Manton in the Federal Court. The proceeding was a hearing to make permanent a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Manton after Judge Mayer had imposed the sentence on Feb. 24.

A technicality in the filing of papers relating to the suit was the cause of the postponement, which was requested by United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey. The proceedings were adjourned to March 12 at 10 A. M.

Controller Craig was present with his counsel, Edmund L. Mooney, when the hearing began. Mr. Craig is technically under arrest, but is released in the custory of his counsel. When Judge Manton had ascended the bench Colonel Caffey immediately suggested an adjournment because of his failure to obtain the signature of United States Marshall Thomas D. McCaffey to the return, which is the Government's answer to the writ. Colonel Caffey said that he had been unable to find Marshal McCarthy and asserted that he was doubtful whether the Deputy Marshal was authorized to sign the document.

Mr. Mooney told Judge Manton that he was ready to proceed at once, but that, like the United States District Attorney, he was anxious that the regular order should be observed in the proceedings. He said that he had not yet filed his traverse to the return, which is the Controller's reply to the Marshal's formal answer to the writ. Judge Manton suggested that Colonel Caffey have the return duly signed and that Mr. Mooney then file his traverse, so that the hearing on the writ could proceed on March 12.

Judge Manton then asked Mr. Mooney whether he wished the Court to sit as a district Judge or as a Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Mr. Mooney replied that Judge Manton has been designated as a Circuit Judge to sit in the District Court, and that he was so sitting when the writ was issued. He said that he wanted this status to continue.

Colonel Caffey asked that Mr. Mooney decide at once as to what court he wished Judge Manton to represent, as it affected the right of the parties to an appeal. "If it shall be decided that the Court was sitting as a Circuit Judge, I shall question the right of a Circuit Judge to issue a writ of habeas corpus," Colonel Caffey declared.

Whatever is the outcome of the hearing before Judge Manton on March 12, the sentence will be appealed to the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Mooney has declared that he will appeal if the case is decided against him, and in the other event the United States District Attorney will appeal.

FORBIDS "RHINE PROTEST."

Mayor of Philadelphia Says German-Irish Meeting Will Not Be Held.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—Despite threatened legal action by the promoters of the proposed mass meeting next Sunday to protest against alleged misconduct by colored French colonial troops in occupied Germany, Mayor Moore today declared there would be no meeting "in the Metropolitan Opera House or anywhere else."

After protests had been made by the American Legion, individuals and civic organizations, Lulu Temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine, canceled the lease obtained on the Metropolitan Opera House for next Sunday by Joseph McGarrity, publisher of The Irish Press, and Director of Public Safety Cortelyou revoked the police permit to hold the meeting.

McGarrity reiterated today that he would bring legal action against the Shriners to compel them to let him have their building, as he had obtained a signed contract for its use.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

No Perceptible Response to Events at London — Movement of Stocks Irregular.

If any one had expected to find the course of events at the London reparations conference reflected in the financial or commercial markets, he would again have been disappointed yesterday. The allied Premiers' reply to Germany was technically an ultimatum, and that word has conveyed unpleasant associations in financial circles since July, 1914. But on the face of things, yesterday's markets appeared not to be in the least interested. By all tradition, expectation of an actual clash over the controversy would have been indicated by a break on the Stock Exchange, a fall in cotton, a decline in European exchange rates, a rise in wheat and great commotion in the market for European public securities.

These financial movements used to be familiar, in a long series of years before the great European war, whenever an ill-tempered speech on international affairs was made at London, Paris or Berlin, or rumors of "massing troops on the border" were distributed to the stock exchanges. But yesterday's markets displayed no particular relish even for the pretense of such misgivings. The stock market was mostly firm, with the smallest total transactions in three weeks. Cotton prices were steadier, and on support from Liverpool. European exchanges advanced, notably sterling. On the French and English markets public securities hardly moved, and what movement occurred was again in opposite directions on the two stock exchanges. Wheat, it is true, advanced; it sold at Chicago yesterday 6½ cents per bushel above the price of a week ago; but this advance only represented recovery of the decline which had occurred in the few preceding days, and yesterday the grain trade was more disposed to talk about the "green bug" than the London conference.

Apathy of this sort might be interpreted either as meaning that financial judgment had no apprehensions of awkward results from the rejection of the German proposals or as indicating that speculative markets had exhausted their power of "discounting." Probably there would be truth in both suppositions. So far as the speculative position is concerned (on the Stock Exchange particularly) it was evident some time ago that the legitimate movement of prices had come to a dead halt. If the financial community as a whole were convinced that a new and dangerous turn in the general situation was threatened in any quarter, it is entirely probable that the market would not stand still. But the common belief appears to be that the signs of the moment do not indicate anything which can be confidently relied on and that meantime financial markets have already moved pretty far in the way of anticipating unfavorable possibilities.

Last week witnessed the first decline of the year in our own Federal Reserve system's reserve percentage; yesterday's statement of the Bank of England shows that the ratio of reserve to deposits at that institution decreased this past week from 15 per cent. to 12¾. Outstanding note circulation of the Federal Reserve increased last week, for the first time in 1921; at the Bank of England also circulation has increased £1,600,000, and at the Bank of France 337,800,000 francs, most previous weeks of 1921 having shown decreases. Expansion of credit and currency at just this time of year is not unusual, even in a normal period. It seems ordinarily to reflect some sort of preparation for what in this country we call the "Spring trade." But in the United States, as in France and England, there has been a feeling that the influences of the season ought to be considerably superseded by the influence of prolonged deflation in the field of prices and trade activity. A few weeks more will give better means of drawing conclusions as to the larger tendencies. Increase in both Federal Reserve notes and in British currency notes was fairly continuous after this date in 1920 and 1919.

The foreign exchange market yesterday was strong from the outset, buying being on a good scale and fairly aggressive. Sterling rose to $3.90 for the first time in about two weeks, and the other major Europeans followed it up. The Mid-Europeans were dull and mildly irregular, with such changes as were reported only nominal. The Scandinavians were dull and without feature.

Directors Announce There Will Be No Decision on Preferred for Sixty Days.

Directors of the Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Steamship Lines, after the dividend meeting, which lasted more than three hours yesterday, announced that no action would be taken on the preferred dividend for sixty days. This postponement will carry the date into May, when the Directors will also be expected to take action on the semi-annual dividend on the common stock. The action was taken, the company's statement says, to husband all cash resources, pending negotiations looking to a solution of the company's financial problems.

There had been much speculation in Wall Street of late, both as regards the action on the dividend and arrangements for financing. As all sorts of rumors were in circulation, the stock recently broke to 33⅜, a new low record. Later, however, there was a moderate recovery in the shares, on the rumor that the regular quarterly dividend would be declared at yesterday's meeting. Before the close yesterday, however, there was another sharp drop in the stock.

The Board of Directors, after the meeting, issued the following statement:

"The preferred stock of the Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Steamship Lines is entitled to noncumulative dividends of 5 per cent. per annum. For several years this dividend has been paid without any interruption or delay. During that period earnings of the lines have been largely in xcss of preferred dividend requirements, and the financial condition of the lines has been extremely easy.

"The company is now engaged in negotiations looking to a solution of its financial problems. The necessary examinations involved will cover a period of from thirty to sixty days' time. It is imperative that during that period the company should husband all its cash resources.

"In view of these facts, your Directors have decided to defer for a period of sixty days the consideration of dividends on the preferred shares. It is hoped and believed that this is only a delay in the payment of these dividends. Your Directors express confidence that from present indications current negotiations referred to will work out successfully."

"AGWI" Again Prominent.

Fluctuations in the common stock of the Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Company were again a feature on the Stock Exchange yesterday, in view of the meeting of the Board of Directors later in the day to act on the preferred dividend. On Wednesday word was circulated that the preferred dividend would be paid, and the stock rallied about 5 points. The shares were again strong during the early dealings yesterday, advancing to 46¾. After an irregular movement, however, the stock broke rather sharply in the closing half hour on what was reported to be "good selling." On this break the shares declined to 41⅞, almost 5 points from the high. This evidently was due to selling by speculators who believed that no action would be taken on the dividend, or that it would be passed entirely. There was some recovery, and the stock closed at 43⅜, a net loss of 2⅝ points. About one-third of the total capital stock changed hands in yesterday's session. The Directors, after their meeting, announced that action on the preferred dividend had been deferred for sixty days.

Covering on the News.

There is an old saying in Wall Street to either sell or cover stocks on the news. This was applied to the stock of the Utah Copper Company in connection with the reduction in the dividend announced yesterday. For some time the stock has been weak on the rumor that the dividend would be reduced, and a large short interest was created. Previous to the announcement yesterday the stock broke to 46⅜. This transaction was followed by another at 47, and the next sale was at 49¼, a jump of 2¼ points between sales. The next sale was at 50, the high for the day. Following this there was another slight reaction, but the stock ended the day more than 2 points higher, at 49⅞. In addition to the reduction in the Utah dividend from $1.50 to $1 quarterly, the Directors of the Ray Consolidated announced the passing of the dividend on that stock.

Standard New Jersey Heavy.

One of the stocks which attracted attention because of its weakness was Standard Oil of New Jersey common. The issue first appeared on the tape at 149 offered, with no bid. This was later followed by a sale at 148¾. Later there were additional offers with few bidders, and on what was heavy trading for such a stock as Standard of New Jersey, the shares broke 7¼ points, to 142½, also a new low record for the year and more than 25 points below the high price for the year to date. The selling of the stock was due to the announcement by the company on Wednesday that it had curtailed its working schedule because of business conditions.

Three Important Conferences.

At the close of the meeting of the Labor Committee of the Association of Railway Executives yesterday, which was preliminary to the meeting of the association's Standing Committee and member roads today, no statement was made regarding the program which had been followed. It was understood, however, that the committee discussed the most recent developments in the railroad labor situation and prepared a report for presentation to the Standing Committee today. The Standing Committee, in turn, will present the report to the member roads this afternoon, and it is expected that an important statement will be made by the association after the big meeting. In the absence of any official statement regarding today's member road meeting, it was the guess that the association would discuss the general situation, while it paid particular attention to the labor question.

D. & R. G. Litigation in Kansas.

Counsel for the Denver & Rio Grande Stockholders' Protective Committee and Western Pacific attorneys are en route for Kansas City, where there will be a hearing in proceedings instituted by the Denver stockholders some weeks ago. This continues the fight of the stockholders in the Western courts. Confirmation of the sale of the D. & R. G. properties to Western Pacific interests last November has not as yet come from the courts, and the hearing tomorrow is on the $5,000,000 sale price. It was the opinion yesterday that if the sale price were approved there would be no remainnig obstacles to prevent confirmation of the sale. The Denver stockholders have intimated that even should the sale be confirmed they intend to press the other litigation they have started, which is an attack on the validity of the $38,000,000 judgment obtained some years ago by Western Pacific bondholders.

Skilled Rail Labor Fair.

Observers of developments in the railroad labor situation say that the more intelligent workers, while not openly in favor of a reduction of any railroad pay rates, admit privately that such reductions must come as wages paid in other industries decline. It is asserted in some quarters that real skilled workers, who served a long apprenticeship and won their present standing as the result of hard work, look askance at the unskilled worker who was placed upon a par with them, as the direct result of some of the centralizing methods adopted during the war emergency and through national agreements. That such workmen should continue to receive the wage they obtained only because of the war emergency is not considered fair by many of the skilled employes, and it is expected that there will eventually be a sharp distinction between the two classes.

So far as may be learned, there is no definite "Burlington plan" under consideration by bankers or the Burlington, Great Northern and Northern Pacific officials. Of course, all these interests are busy and are trying to divise ways and means for meeting the situation, but nothing so formal as a "plan" will be decided upon until all the interests concerned have had opportunity for going over the whole matter with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The refusal to approve the plan submitted was a distinct surprise both to bankers and railroad men, and no definite alternative had been brought into being. The bankers and railroad officials expect to go to Washington next week for conference with the Commission and then the way will be cleared for consideration of a new scheme.

Farm Loan Bonds.

Those who had expected the decision of the United States Supreme Court establishing the tax-exempt features of the Farm Land Banks and Farm Loan bonds to stimulate the market for the latter seem destined to disappointment. There was some momentary demand for the bonds and prices rose sharply, going to a basis of about 5¼ per cent. But after the first bulge the market quieted down and for the last day or so there has been virtually no activity. There are firm bids in the market, but very few bonds, and as the bidders seem unwilling to advance their quotations above present levels and sellers are unwilling to part with their holdings at these figures, something very much resembling stagnation has resulted.

No Canadian Financing.

Unless plans are changed radically, there will be no Canadian Government financing in this market at this time. The plan for refunding the $40,000,000 or so of maturities which the Dominion has falling due between April 1 and Aug. 1, appears to have been sidetracked, and present indications are that the bonds will be paid off without any further operation in the market. Final decision has not been reached, but is expected early next week. It was said yesterday that Canadian balances here are fairly large now and are expected to increase before the first of the due dates.

NORTHERN PACIFIC FORMS OIL COMPANY

GEO. T. SLADE IS PRESIDENT

The Northern Pacific Railway Company has formed with other interests an independent company to develop and lease for development on a royalty basis its extensive acreage of potential oil lands in Montana, North Dakota and Wyoming, according to a statement issued yesterday.

The new concern, incorporated under the laws of Delaware, has a capitalization of 100,000 shares of no par value and is called the Absaroka Oil Development Company. Control will be retained by the railroad company and it is understood some of the stock probably will be sold to provide working capital.

At the same time, it is understood that the company probably will be most active as the medium through which Northern Pacific oil properties may be leased to outsiders and therefore will not require any large amount of cash to begin operations. If the Montana and Wyoming oil properties are developed into bonanzas it is probable that the parent concern will go into development and oil production on a broad scale. The statement announcing the new arrangement says:

"The Northern Pacific Railway Company owns a substantial acreage of land and of oil and gas rights in parts of North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming, where there are possibilities of oil production. Preliminary investigations have disclosed some thirty-five so-called "structures" in these States where geological conditions indicate there may be oil and gas. Some of these structures have already been tested and in two locations oil has been produced in commercial quantity, namely, Elk Basin district, mostly in Wyoming, and the Cat Creek district, in the central part of eastern Montana."

The statement then announces the formation of the new company and outlines its purpose. It continues:

"George T. Slade, formerly Vice President of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, thoroughly familiar with the territory served by the railway, will be President of the new company, which will at once take up and deal with all applications for leases that have been received by the railway during the last few months."

While the local officials of the railway company refused to disclose any more of the details of the new organization than those included in the statement, Wall Street immediately began to suggest the various oil development and producing companies which would be most likely to apply for property leases or which might have a proprietary interest in the new concern. Among these were Standard Oil of California, Midwest Refining and others.

That the Northern Pacific decided to create a subsidiary company to handle its oil interests was somewhat of a disappointment in some circles where it had been expected that the company would segregate its oil and railroad properties somewhat after the fashion of the recent Southern Pacific Company separation.

The total acreage of lands owned by the Northern Pacific Railway Company as of Dec. 31, 1919, was 4,585,542, of which 2,647,238 acres were in Montana, 1,406,312 in Washington, 324,526 in Idaho, 107,130 in Oregon and the remainder in Minnesota, North Dakota and Wyoming.

Directors of the General Railway Signal Company have passed the quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on the common stock. The regular dividend on the preferred stock was declared, however.

The statement issued following the Directors' meeting said:

"In view of the general business depression and uncertainty as to when there will be substantial improvement, the Board of Directors deems it the part of prudent business management to conserve the company's cash assets."

UNITED STATES MORTGAGE & TRUST COMPANY—TRUSTEE

An Annual Sinking Fund Beginning at Once Retires All Series A Bonds by Maturity by Purchase up to 107½ and Interest or by Call at that Price.

Business—Sharon Steel Hoop Company owns and operates plants located at Youngstown, Warren and Lowellville, Ohio, and at Sharon, Penn. The Company's products have a broad market on account of the diversity of uses for which they are available, including cooperage hoops, steel barrels, articles used in the manufacture of electrical, furniture and builders' hardware, tacks, shoe nails, toys, stoves, ranges, porcelain and enamel ware, and a large variety of articles used in the vehicle and automobile trade and for agricultural implements. The Company has approximately 3,000 customers in the United States, exclusive of goods sold abroad.

Security—These Bonds will be secured by direct first mortgage on the entire physical properties of the Company now owned (including properties of subsidiaries wholly owned but excepting some unoccupied acreage and property used for employees' homes), carried on the books, after depreciation, at $10,398,047, together with all properties hereafter acquired. A recent independent appraisal values this property in excess of $16,000,000 after depreciation.

Assets—Combined balance sheet as of December 31, 1920, but after giving effect to the proceeds of this issue, as prepared by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., shows total tangible assets, less depreciation and other reserves of $18,044,756, of which $6,951,155 were current assets. Total liabilities (except these bonds) were $3,141,924.

Earnings—Annual profits before interest, depreciation and federal taxes, averaged $2,841,116 for the five years ending December 31, 1920, or more than seven times maximum annual interest charges of $400,000 on these bonds. For the year ending December 31, 1920, they were $2,044,693 after writing off more than $600,000 to adjust inventory to market values.

Purpose of Issue—The proceeds of this issue will be used to retire all underlying bonds, to reimburse the treasury for expenditures for additions and improvements, and to provide additional working capital.

Further Issues—The remaining first mortgage bonds may be issued at par for additions and improvements at not to exceed 66⅔% of cost thereof and only when average annual profits, after depreciation, applicable to interest charges, have been equivalent for the 3 fiscal years immediately preceding to at least three times aggregate annual interest charges on all of these bonds outstanding and those then to be issued.

We offer the above bonds for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to the approval of legal proceedings by counsel. It is expected that interim receipts will be ready for delivery on or about March 21, 1921.

BACK MILLER VIEWS ON INDUSTRIAL BODY

WANT STRIKES CONTROLLED

Ask Legislature to Safeguard Secrecy of Workers' Ballots on Question of Walkout.

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York at its regular meeting yesterday, adopted a resolution offered by its Executive Committee that the chamber call upon the Legislature for laws which will give effect to recommendations made recently by Governor Miller for a reform of the organization and powers of the Industrial Commission. The chamber also resolved that Charles M. Schwab be given a testimonial reception in recognition of his services to America during the war.

The report of the Executive Committee on the settlement of industrial disputes read in part:

"The committee recognizes that one of the greatest causes of industrial waste is the frequent conflict between employers and employes which results in strikes and lockouts, and the Chairman of the Committee on Industrial Problems and Relations correctly pointed out that there had been no time in history when the effort to eliminate economic waste was so imperative as it is today.

"The proposals which this chamber has been asked to consider relate to an attempt to bring about in this State some machinery which may contribute in part, at least, to the solution of these various industrial problems.

"Your committee is of the opinion that the time has come when the State should interfere to protect itself from public disorder and its citizens from lawless invasion of their rights, to protect the public from the disastrous effects of strikes and industrial disputes, and to protect those who do not belong to unions from unlawful aggressions, and those who do belong to unions from exploitation by venal officers, in the manner recently disclosed in this city."

The resolution, which was adopted after some opposition, read:

Be It Resolved, That the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York appeals to the Legislature of the State of New York to enact legislation to give effect to the recommendations of Governor Nathan L. Miller in his annual message to reform the organization and powers of the Industrial Commission so as to provide for a single-headed commission, with a board of three, to be empowered to discharge exclusively quasi-judicial and legislative functions, and to be clothed with authority to investigate labor conditions and to deal with labor disputes; and to accomplish this purpose the following legislation be enacted:

1. That any voluntary association of seven or more members may sue or be sued in the name of the association, service of process upon any officer, manager or business agent of such association to constitute service upon the association, and that the Industrial Commission shall have power to prescribe and supervise the accounts and records of such association with the same authority now given the Public Service Commission over the accounts and records of street railways and similar corporations.

That the authority of the Industrial Commission to deal with labor disputes should include the duty to make inquiry concerning the matters in dispute with the right to subpoena witnesses, examine them under oath and require the production of books and papers in order to enable it to ascertain all facts material to the dispute and to furnish the public and every employer and employe entitled to vote upon the questions of strikes and lockouts involved, with a copy of its report.

That notice of the intention to strike or lockout must be made to the Industrial Commission at least fourteen days before action.

That every ballot cast for strikes or lockouts shall be so safeguarded as to preserve the freedom of the voter and the decision at which he has arrived, and to that end that the Industrial Commission shall be charged with the duty of supervising the count of the vote so as to insure a secret ballot free from intimidation or misrepresentation, and its honest count.

Several other resolutions were adopted.

Plans for Disposing of British Government's War Holdings.

Under the arrangement adopted by the British Cabinet the assets in the Government wool account, created in Australia during the war and amounting to approximately £14,000,000 in cash and 1,800,000 bales of wool, will be divided equally between the British Government and the new British-Australian Wool Realization Association as soon as the latter has been legally constituted. The physical division of the surplus wool is a practical impossibility, and the Government is accordingly arranging an agency contract with the association for the sale at a commission of the British half of this material.

According to information received from Australia by the London press, the new association will be launched by making issues to growers of one-half of their interests in debenture stock and the other half in shares in the association, and this distribution will represent the final division of the profit due to the growers under the Government's wool purchase scheme.

D., L. & W. TO END CROSSINGS

$4,300,000 Project to Start Soon, With Third Track for Rush Service.

W. F. Griffiths, passenger traffic manager, has distributed in the cars of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad a small folder announcing that the company soon would begin work to eliminate grade crossings on its suburban lines and prepare a third track for the rush hour traffic.

The crossing work will be under way within the next two or three months and will cost the company $4,300,000. According to present plans, it is to be completed within a year and a half. Work has been started to condition the new third track, heretofore used for freight service, so that in the mornings two eastbound tracks may be in use when the pressure of trains is toward the city, the process being reversed at night.

The New York Stock Exchange Committee on Admissions has received the following proposals for transfer of membership: Walter A. Bass to C. Kenneth Garrison for $100,000, and James A. Corcoran to Thomas P. Fowler for $99,000. The last sale of Stock Exchange seats was made for $100,000.

TWO IOWA BANKS CLOSED.

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 3.—The Farmers' Savings Bank at Ulmer, Iowa, has been closed, it was announced at the State Banking Department today. The bank was overloaned and experienced an unexpected withdrawal of deposits, it was said. It was capitalized at $10,000 and had deposits of $90,000, according to its last statement.

EMMETSBURG, Iowa, March 3.—A national bank examiner arrived here today to go over the books of the Emmetsburg National Bank, Palo Alto County's oldest financial institution, which was closed yesterday by bank officers.

"Our bank has not failed," said a statement by President Williams. "We're merely closing to avert failure."

Mr. Williams said the "general depression" was to blame for the closing and that depositors would be paid in full. The bank is capitalized at $50,000.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC DECLINE.

The January earnings statement of the Southern Pacific Company as submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission reflects plainly the decline in the volume of business carried by the road in that month. After showing that gross declined $1,206,634, compared with January a year ago, and that there was an increase in railway operating expenses of $1,554,846, a net railway operating income of $1,511,381 was shown, which was $2,891,647 below the report for January, 1920.

Compared with preceding months the January freight revenue this year was almost $3,000,000 below that of December, more than $4,000,000 below November and $7,250,000 below October, 1920. There was also a drop in passenger revenues, and for the first time there was a very appreciable decline in the item of transportation expense from the December figures.

Under the head of January revenues, it was shown that mail revenues declined $2,198,247 from January, 1920. This, however, was due to the fact that 1920 January mail revenues included back mail pay amounting to $2,235,171.

RADIATORS NET $4,186,889.

Net profits of the American Radiator Company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1920, were $4,186,889. This compares with $3,571,843 in the previous year. The profit for 1920 was equal to 7 per cent. on the $3,000,000 outstanding preferred stock and 28.8 per cent. on the $13,806,225 outstanding common stock.

The company has written its inventories to current replacement value. The value of such inventories on Dec. 31, 1920, was $7,436,234, compared with $9,573,961 on Dec. 31, 1919. There is no funded indebtedness and a substantial cash balance remains after payment of all current bank indebtedness.

SHIFTS IN STEEL PLANTS.

U. S. Corporation Committee Finds Trade Unfavorable to Plan.

The United States Steel Corporation announces that a committee has been appointed to investigate the advisability of installing three shifts at continuous processes of steel. The committee is headed by William B. Schiller, President of the National Tube Company of Pittsburgh.

It was stated that the committee had been operating for some time, and it was found that many men in the trade were not wholly favorable to the change, because under the present arrangement they are able to earn much more than if the straight eight-hour day were put into effect.

United Cigar Stores' Sales Rise.

Sales of the United Cigar Stores Company of America for February aggregated $5,730,000. This compares with $5,337,195 in February, 1920, the increase being 7.21 per cent., and is a 40 per cent. increase over February, 1919. For the first two months of this year total sales were $11,692,224, against $10,762,786 last year, an increase of 8.6 per cent.

SAYS BANK NEED NOT PUBLISH SALARIES

CITES COURT RULING

Declares Williams Had No Authority Under Law to Demand Such Confidential Information.

National banks will not have to publish figures showing the compensation paid to officers, as requested by former Controller of the Currency John Skelton Williams, if the opinion of Thomas B. Paton, general counsel for the American Bankers' Association, proves correct.

Mr. Paton issued a statement yesterday in which he expressed the opinion that the five periodical reports which the Controller is authorized to call for each year include only statements of assets and liabilities, and that salaries paid to officers are not assets or liabilities, and hence are not necessarily included in these displays. As for special reports, as provided for in the National Bank act, Mr. Paton believes that there is no requirement for publication of these. Mr. Paton's statement is as follows:

"Section 5211 requires five reports each year to the Controller of the Currency 'according to the form which may be prescribed by him,' and 'each such report shall exhibit, in detail and under appropriate heads, the resources and liabilities of the association (national bank), &c. The reports must be published 'in the same form in which it is made to the Controller.'

"The Supreme Court of the United States, in Cochran vs. U. S., 15 Supreme Court Reporter 628, says that the object of Section 5211 is 'to apprise the Controller of the Currency and the public of the condition of each national bank at stated periods.'

"In my opinion a statement of salaries paid does not come within the spirit and meaning of Section 5211; it is not the character of information which the law requires shall be reported upon call of the Controller and published. It is not a statement of what the bank owns or what it owes—its resources and liabilities—and a report and publication of such salaries would in no way fulfill the object of Section 5211, which, as declared by the Supreme Court, is, as already said, to apprise the Controller and the public of the bank's condition at stated periods. The Controller's authority is measured by law—he cannot go beyond the law, and this is simply an authority to call for a report of resources and liabilities, so that he and the public may know the condition of the bank. When he goes beyond this and demands publication of additional information of a confidential character he is, in my opinion, proceeding without authority of law.

"True, Section 5211 also provides for special reports to enable the Controller to acquire a 'full and complete knowledge of its (the bank's) condition.' But assuming the authority to require these special reports would cover a wider latitude of information, there is no requirement for publication in such case.

"I am therefore inclined to the opinion that a report of the compensation paid to officers and employes is not a report of the resources and liabilities, and that the Controller of the Currency has no power to force the reporting banks to publish this confidential information."

State of San Paulo

(Republic of the United States of Brazil)

Fifteen-Year 8% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

External Loan of 1921

Due January 1, 1936

Interest payable January 1 and July 1. Principal, premium and interest payable in New York City at the office of Messrs. Speyer & Co., in United States gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness, free from all Brazilian taxes, present or future. Coupon Bonds, registerable as to principal only, in denominations of $1,000 and $500, not interchangeable. The Bonds are redeemable as a whole, at any time after January 1, 1927, at the option of the State, at 105 and interest, on six months' previous notice.

The Sinking Fund payments are to be sufficient to retire all the Bonds at or before maturity.

Security

These $10,000,000 Bonds, together with the £2,000,000 Sterling Bonds, offered in London by Messrs. Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., N. M. Rothschild & Sons, and J. Henry Schröder & Co., and Fl. 18,000,000 Guilder Bonds, which are to be offered in Amsterdam by Messrs. Lippmann, Rosenthal & Co., and Rotterdamsche Bankvereeniging, will be a direct obligation of the State of San Paulo, commercially the most important State of Brazil, and in addition will be secured by a first charge on the surtax of 5 francs per bag on all coffee exported from the State, except that the Government is entitled to deduct from this surtax £285,000 annually until August 1, 1924. After that date the entire surtax is to be available for the service of the loan. Of this surtax, 44% is pledged for the service of the $10,000,000 Bonds and is to be remitted in weekly installments to Messrs. Speyer & Co., as Fiscal Agents of the loan in New York, until the Bonds are retired.

Since the surtax was created, the State has provided funds required for the repayment of the following loans: £3,000,000 5% Exchequer Bonds of 1906, £15,000,000 5% Treasury Bonds of 1908, £7,500,000 5% Treasury Bonds of 1913 and £4,200,000 5% Treasury Notes of 1914, for all of which loans this surtax was previously pledged.

The Contracts with the State of San Paulo limit the entire loan to the above mentioned three issues of Dollar, Sterling and Guilder Bonds. The State intends to use the proceeds of the loan to repay internal floating debts.

The 44% of the surtax pledged for the service of the $10,000,000 Bonds is expected to produce about $1,540,000 per annum (figuring exchange at 7 cents per franc), on the basis of an average exportation of 10,000,000 bags of coffee, the Government having the right, however, until August 1, 1924 to deduct annually a proportionate amount of the £285,000 above mentioned. Any rise in the rate of exchange for francs above 7 cents will increase the funds available for the service of the Bonds.

Sinking Fund

Any surplus remaining in the hands of Messrs. Speyer & Co. from the weekly remittances of the surtax, after providing annual interest requirements and necessary expenses, will constitute a Sinking Fund and it is to be used for the purchase of Bonds at or below 105 until November 15, 1925, and thereafter to the redemption of Bonds at 105, as stated below. Any unexpended balance remaining in their hands on November 15, 1925, is to be applied to the drawing by lot of Bonds for payment on January 1, 1926, at 105. On each November 15 thereafter at least one-tenth of the balance of the loan outstanding after the said January 1, 1926, redemption, is to be drawn by lot for payment on the succeeding January 1 at 105, and for this purpose the State is to provide additional funds, should the surtax be insufficient. All Bonds not previously retired by the Sinking Fund are to be paid at maturity at 105 and interest.

We offer the above Bonds, subject to the approval of counsel and to prior sale, if, as and when issued and received by us, at

Yielding at least 8.47% per annum
if held until redeemed

Payment for Bonds allotted is to be made in New York funds at the office of Messrs. Speyer & Co., 24-26 Pine Street, New York, or in Chicago funds at the office of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, on March 15, 1921, against delivery of Speyer & Co.'s Temporary Receipts, providing for the payment of the interest from March 1, 1921, to July 1, 1921, and exchangeable for the definitive Bonds when ready, bearing the January 1, 1922, and subsequent coupons.

Application will be made to list the Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

Market Position Of the Motor and Tire Stocks

We have prepared a special bulletin touching on the present position of the automobile industry and making comparison between the stock market decline of the motor and tire stocks in 1917 and the drastic setback of last year.

The recovery from the 1917 low level was sharp and decisive. The present situation may be an exact parallel.

To those interested we shall be glad to send a copy of Bulletin T-44 just for the asking.

LOCOMOTIVE ORDERS SHOW AN INCREASE

YEAR'S PROFIT $66,884,613

$21 a Share Earned on Capital of $25,000,000 After Dividends on Its Preferred Stock.

Andrew Fletcher, President of the American Locomotive Company, in his report to stockholders says that at the close of business last year the company had unfilled orders amounting to $24,270,702, compared with $8,999,921 at the close of 1919. About 64 per cent. was for domestic account and the balance for foreign countries. In the previous year 32 per cent. was domestic and 68 per cent. foreign. Mr. Fletcher said that the prospect of orders for any appreciable amount was not promising.

Earnings for the company in 1920 amounted to $66,884,613 gross, compared with $70,073,581 in 1919. After deduction of all taxes, both Canadian and domestic, the profit available for the capital stock was $7,111,126, against $9,494,269 the year before. This sum remained after payment of the regular dividends or the preferred stock, but before reserves for additions and betterments, and was equal to more than $21 a share on the capital of $25,000,000 outstanding, compared with about $30 a share in 1919.

Manuf., maint. and admin. exp. and dep	58,043,172	58,115,819
Gross profit	$8,841,440	$11,957,762
Int. on bonds, &c...	94,300	228,189
	$8,747,139	$11,729,573
U. S. and Can. taxes	1,636,013	2,235,304
Profit	7,111,126	9,494,269
Divds on pref. stock	1,750,000	1,750,000
Divds on com. stock.	1,500,000	1,375,000
	$3,861,126	$6,369,269
Res. for add. and betterments	2,000,000	4,000,000
Net credit	$1,861,126	$2,369,269

"The available profit for the calendar year was 10.6 per cent. on gross earnings in comparison with 13.5 per cent. for the calendar year 1919," said the President's report.

"The excess of current assets over current liabilities Dec. 31, 1920, was $37,318,564. There has been included in current liabilities a reserve of $1,911,537 to provide for current shrinkage in value of notes and bills receivable carried as current assets, and for the estimated loss at the prevailing discount on Dec. 31, 1920, which would obtain in converting to United States dollars that part of the net working capital of the Montreal Locomotive Works which is expressed in Canadian dollars on the balance sheet of the Montreal Locomotive Company.

"The reserve of $5,979,421 in current liabilities set up for accruals for United States and Canadian income and profits taxes is, we believe, sufficient to provide for any differences in interpretation of the laws by the Internal Revenue Departments of both countries.

"The company has no bills payable outstanding and of the $8,685,186 cash on hand on Dec. 31, 1920, a considerable part of it since the first of the year has been invested in United States Treasury 5¾ per cent. certificates.

"The amount of materials and supplies of inventory account together with work in progress Dec. 31, 1920, was $14,609,096 in comparison with $7,170,804 as of Dec. 31, 1919. The materials and supplies have been valued at cost or market price, whichever was lower."

Net profits in 1919 were $12,619,000, which, after preferred dividends was equivalent to about $22 a share.

ARREST BARES FRAUD IN STOCK SALES

Details of a scheme to defraud business men in this and other cities out of commissions for sales of stock in corporations came to light yesterday with the arrest of Amos T. Atwell, 65 years old, at his home at 791 St. Nicholas Avenue on a bench warrant issued on indictments returned against him and fifteen other men. After Atwell was taken to Police Headquarters he suffered a heart attack and had to be sent to the prison ward at Bellevue Hospital.

Inspector Coughlin said that for the last ten days detectives have been gathering in members of the band alleged to be connected with the swindle, and thus far ten of them had been arraigned in General Sessions.

He said that in May last, according to admissions made by some of the men under arrest, William J. Hazard, 62 years old, 8,746 109th Street, Richmond Hill, Queens, conceived a scheme of answering advertisements for the purpose of defrauding persons offering stock for sale. Hazard was arraigned in General Sessions several days ago and he and others named in the indictments are well known in the upper Tenderloin district, said the Inspector.

He explained that some of the men involved in the scheme posed as salesmen and called on the advertisers and, after obtaining employment, reported a few days later that they had arranged for sales of stock running from $5,000 to $10,000. As a general rule, said Inspector Coughlin, a representative of the intended victim was sent to see the prospective purchase.

It developed in the police investigation, he said, that the "purchaser" really was a confederate of the "salesman," and that on every occasion he engaged to send a promissory note to the firm the next day to bind his contract to purchase the stock. The note would arrive in the mail in the office of the firm, and the "salesman" immediately would demand and receive his commission on the sale. Inspector Coughlin said that up to yesterday afternoon more than thirty complaints had been received from business houses which had been victimized.

The total obtained on the scheme, according to the inspector, was more than $10,000. Besides Atwell and Hazard, the police had arrested John Harrison, 57 years old, who said he was a broker, 453 Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn; John J. McAuley, 35 years old, a salesman of 510 West 177th Street, and David Rosenthal, George van Norden and George LaPorte, who would say little about themselves.

Among those who appeared as complainants were Charles T. Hesser, 116 West Thirty-ninth Street, Weisbart & Co., 605 Fifth Avenue, the American Transportation Fuel Company, 111 Broadway, Joseph T. Brockay, 1,476 Broadway, and the Finance Corporation of America, 119 North Broad Street, Philadelphia.

UTAH COPPER CUTS ITS DIVIDEND TO $1

RAY CONS. PASSES DIVIDEND

Announcement was made by the directors of the Utah Copper Company yesterday of a reduction in the quarterly dividend on the capital stock from $1.50 to $1 per share. Rumors to the effect that the rate would be reduced had been in circulation and the stock had declined sharply. This action is another reflection of conditions in the copper trade since the signing of the armistice, which brought an end to the unprecedented demand for copper brought about by the war.

The company has been paying the quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share since the early part of 1919, consequently dividend disbursements in both 1920 and 1919 amounted to $6 per share. In 1918, however, when the war demand for copper was still in existence, the company paid $10 per share. In 1917 $13.50 was paid and in 1916 it paid $12. In 1915 the dividend was only $4.25, while in the years from 1908 to 1914 the annual dividend varied from $1 to $3.

In announcing the reduction Charles Hayden issued the following statement: "On account of the small domestic sales it was the opinion of the board that conservative action in regard to dividends should be taken at this time."

Directors of the Ray Consolidated Copper Company yesterday announced the passing of the quarterly dividend on the capital stock of that company. Three months ago a payment of 25 cents quarterly was declared.

The stock of the Utah Copper Company traded in on the Stock Exchange yesterday actually advanced following the announcement of the reduction in the dividend rate. The advance was due in great part to short covering, inasmuch as a large short interest had been built up in the stock, according to Wall Street opinion, on the rumors that the dividend would be reduced. Ray Consolidated sold off fractionally on the announcement that the dividend of that company had been passed.

COPPER DOWN TO 12⅜.

Lowest Price Recorded Since First Year of War.

The price of copper dropped to 12⅜ cents yesterday, the lowest price that has ruled for the metal since late in 1914. Several times the metal dipped as low as 12½ cents but with only moderate transactions around this level.

It was not reported yesterday that there was any substantial selling of copper at the new low price. There was, however, some surprise expressed that the price displayed such weakness since a big amount of copper was removed from the domestic market by the pooling of surplus stocks and the earmarking of this copper for export. Against this surplus debentures were sold. It has been expected that this course would improve the domestic situation, but thus far the market has shown little life. The larger companies continue to quote 12⅝ and 13 cents according to delivery.

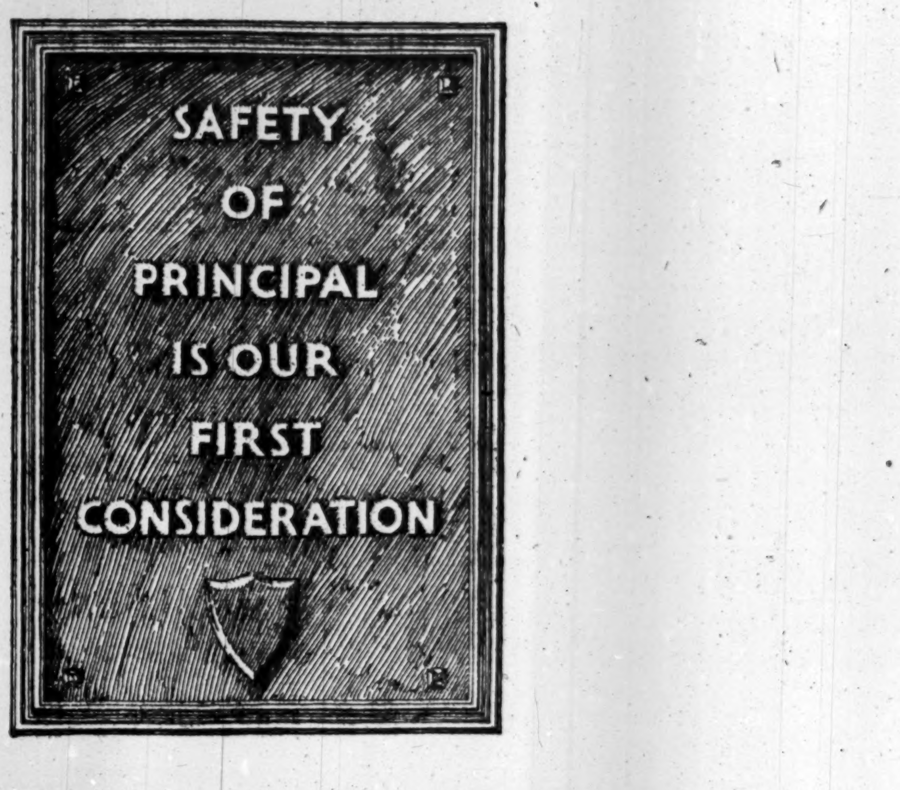
Responsibility



SAFETY OF PRINCIPAL IS OUR FIRST CONSIDERATION

The protection afforded the investor by the services of an investment banking house may be measured by the bankers' conception of their responsibility to the investor. Do they interpret it merely in terms of buyer and seller, or do they conceive it as an intimate relationship between client and banker—a trust based on confidence never to be shaken? Every recommendation of Ames, Emerich & Co. is made with this sense of deep obligation and responsibility to the investor.

The Final Judgment on any Investment is the judgment of Time. Thousands of issues of new securities come into the market each year. They are tested, investigated, judged and purchased by the investing public. But the last test, the final judgment, is the judgment of Time.

Periods of stringency or of depression have proved too much for many loosely safeguarded and badly secured investments.

Those securities which today survive these tests have survived because of their own merit, and because of thorough safeguards applied by the investment house which originally marketed them.

The STRAUS PLAN has survived the tests of 39 years without loss to any investor, and the first mortgage bonds safeguarded under this PLAN have been vindicated by the judgment of Time. They merit your investigation. Write today for our booklet, "Common Sense in Investing Money", which tells all about the STRAUS PLAN and STRAUS BONDS. Ask for

The report said that $3,193,569 of the net profits was received from royalties of the Burton and other processes owned by the company but not included in the book value of the company's assets. In connection with the cash on hand, it was stated that of the company's total capital and surplus of $203,869,123 shown at the close of 1920 only $4,136,464 is in cash, "in keeping with the company's policy of using earnings to expand the business, being invested in properties, merchandise and securities."

TIRE MEETING POSTPONED.

AKRON, Ohio, March 3.—Failure of small creditors to assent to the readjustment details in the proposed refinancing plan has caused a postponement of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's stockholders' meeting from March 4 to March 15. In explanation of the change, the Directors said:

"Officers of the company have been advised by the Merchandise Creditors' Committee that owners of more than 75 per cent. of the merchandise indebtedness dealt with by the plan of readjustment have assented to the plan. While the company is gratified at the progress made by the committee, in view of the large amounts involved, the plan cannot be carried out so long as creditors holding any substantial amount of the company's debt have not assented."

HOW TO PREVENT FIRE.

How to Avoid Loss if One Should Occur—Advice From Credit Men.

The New York Credit Men's Association is sending to manufacturers, merchants and business men generally a booklet offering practical suggestions for fire prevention and incidentally giving some pointers that will probably come as news to many holders of fire insurance policies. The booklet covers two departments, "What To Do Before a Fire," including suggestions for fire prevention, and "What To Do After a Fire."

There is no better form of inexpensive fire protection, it says, than plenty of fire buckets, kept always filled with water, and to be used only in case of fire, except when oils or paints are used or stored.

For oil or grease fires, fire buckets filled with sand are necessary, as the sand will smother the fire. Water would only serve to spread the flames. Fire pails should not be of wood, and should hold at least ten quarts each. A safe number is estimated as two to every thousand square feet of floor area.

These buckets, says the association, should be placed on permanent shelves, hooks or racks elevated not less than two feet nor more than four and a half feet above the floor. This allows rooms for sweeping below, while the buckets are constantly in view and their condition, whether full or empty, is noticeable.

Where oily waste and oily rags are used, the use of self-closing metal waste cans is urged. Metal waste cans, such as the ordinary street ash can, are recommended as receptacles for all ashes, refuse, floor sweepings, &c.

The more general use of safety matches which light on the box, galvanic battery spark lighters for lighting gas, and the installation of approved chemical fire extinguishers are urged upon merchants and manufacturers.

"A fire drill of frequent recurrence is of the greatest possible value in preventing loss of life by fire. Emphasize the importance to employes, in the event of fire, of not stopping to get their hats and coats."

The approved automatic sprinklers, with watchman and clock service or automatic signal to Fire Department Headquarters or sprinkler supervisory service, are characterized as the very best known protection to property.

To holders of fire insurance policies is addressed this warning: Remember, that without the written consent of the company insuring your property, endorsed on the policy, it is void if you should move to another location; if you place a chattel mortgage on your personal property; if you are a manufacturer and your factory is operated later than 10 P. M., or if you cease to operate it for more than ten consecutive days; if mechanics are employed in your premises in altering or repairing for more than fifteen days at any one time; if the building described in the policy, whether intended for occupancy by owner or tenant, be or become vacant or unoccupied and so remain for ten days.

The policy is void also if illuminating gas or vapor be generated in the building or adjacent thereto for use therein; if there be kept, used or allowed on the premises, benzine, benzole, dynamite, ether, fireworks, gasoline, Greek fire, gunpowder exceeding 25 pounds in quantity, naphtha, nitroglycerine or other explosives, phosphorus or petroleum, or any of its products of greater inflammability than kerosene oil of the United States standard. The last, however, may be used for lights and kept for sale according to law, but in quantities not exceeding five barrels, provided it be drawn and lamps filled by daylight or at a distance not less than ten feet from artificial light.

The booklet closes with a quotation from President Wilson: "Preventable fire is more than a private misfortune. It is a public dereliction."

Unemployed Labor in England.

Unemployment in Great Britain, as measured by the percentage of the membership reported by the British trade unions as unemployed at the end of each month, reached in December the highest figure of the entire war period. At the end of December the unemployed percentage was 6.1, comparing with 3.7 at the end of November, with 5.3 at the end of October and with 0.9 at the end of last April. At the end of 1919 unemployment was represented by a percentage of 3.2, at the end of 1918 by 1.2. The lowest ratio of unemployed during the entire war period was 0.3, which was reported at the end of each of the seven months from October, 1916, to April, 1917, inclusive.

STATE INCOME TAX IS DUE ON APRIL 15

The New York State Income Tax Bureau made public yesterday a set of questions and answers relating to the State Income Tax law. Returns are due before April 15, a month later than the Federal returns. Taxpayers in New York County should file returns at 120 Broadway. Some of the questions and answers made public by the bureau are:

"Generous: In my 1919 return I included interest from New York City bonds. As I now understand that these are not taxable, may I offset this overpayment of tax against the amount due in my 1920 return? A.—No. When your return is audited refund will be made without any application on your part.

"Murray Hill: (a) In the case of a man who died in June, 1920, can the executor in filing the decedent's individual return claim his full marital exemption? (b) Does such exemption have to be prorated? A.—(a) Yes, if the return of the decedent includes all income of the widow for the calendar year. (b) No.

"Uptown: In addition to the branch at 120 Broadway, New York City, has the State Income Tax Bureau another office in the Borough of Manhattan? A.—Beginning March 7 an office will be opened for the collection of State Income Taxes in Room 200, Municipal Building.

"East Orange: If my director's fees in connection with a New York City banking institution exceeds $1,000 must the bank deduct and withhold on such payments to me as a non-resident? A.—Yes.

"Buffalo: Because of living cost I did not keep house in 1920 but boarded with my sixteen-year-old son in a rooming house. Am I permitted the head of a family exemption? A.—Yes. This exemption is permitted a parent who through force of circumstances is obliged to maintain his dependent children in a boarding house.

"Plumber: (a) In 1914 I loaned some money. This was paid to me in 1920. Is it income? (b) Are my union dues exempt from taxation? (c) How about $50 luxury taxes on sodas, theatres, clothing and jewelry? A.—(a) No. This is a return of capital and not income. (b) Where union dues are paid into organizations which provide disability, lay-off or other relief, they are not deductible. (c) Yes.

"R. L. N.: (a) If I occupied one-third of my own home but rent furnished apartments to two families, may I take out two-thirds of the cost of lighting, heating and janitor service? (b) What deduction can I make for wear and tear on furniture in these apartments? A.—(a) You may deduct two-thirds of your expenses for this purpose. (b) A reasonable deduction on household furniture included in a furnished apartment is allowed.

"R. L.: I am the only support of an elderly sister, unable to work, who keeps house for me. I pay the rent and all expenses. My salary was $2,000 in 1920. Must I file a return? A.—Yes, as a single person who received $1,000 or over you should file a return. Your exemption of $2,000 as head of a family and possibly $200 additional if your sister is unable to support herself, will not require you to pay any tax.

"J. W.: My return for 1920 is filed but the partnership in which I am interested, on a corrected report, has increased by share $1,500. Will the bureau correct this in examining the partnership report, or, if not, what should I do? A.—You should file an amended return on or before April 15 and pay tax on the additional income.

"Dutchess: As stockholder of a bank which has paid the so-called stockholders' tax of 1 per cent. on capital may I in making out my return deduct this amount on my dividends received from this stock? A.—No. As the tax was paid for you by the bank it is additional income to you, but because it is a tax it is also deductable. You would, therefore, be in the position of adding it as income and deducting it as taxes. The common method is to disregard this item entirely."

Crop and Animal Product Returns Fall $5,105,000,000 in 1920.

The value of farm crops of 1920 and of the farm animal products and animals sold and slaughtered, as finally determined by the Bureau of Crop Estimates of the Department of Agriculture, is $19,856,000,000, or $5,105,000,000 below the total of 1919. The drop is almost entirely confined to crops, among which the chief declines are: Corn, $1,662,000,000; cotton lint and seed, $1,300,000,000; wheat, $854,000,000; hay, tame and wild, $325,000,000; tobacco, $248,000,000, and oats, $161,000,000.

On the other hand, as many as ten crops gained in value, chief of which are oranges, with a gain of $32,000,000, and sugar beets, $24,000,000. Other items of gain are cabbage, $11,000,000; cow peas, $10,000,000; sorghum cane sold and syrup made up, $7,000,000. Small gains were made by soy beans, sugar beet seed, maple sugar and syrup, and onions. Apparently, the products of the farm wood lot have gained $223,000,000 in value in the comparison with 1919.

After offsetting gains against losses, the net crop value reduction in 1920 below 1919 is $4,868,000, while only $237,000,000 is found in the total of farm animal products and farm animals sold and slaughtered. The wool decline is as yet unrealized, but it is reckoned at $37,000,000. Of the animals sold and slaughtered, the decline for cattle and calves is $223,000,000 and for swine $427,000,000. But on the other side of the account, dairy products gained $311,000,000, and poultry raised and eggs produced $160,000,000.

It is the rule that, in the upward and downward movements of prices, farm animals and animal products lag behind crops. So extreme was the lag in price of animals and animal products in 1920, on account of the extraordinary fall in the prices of crops within a short time, that the total crop value of 1920 is reckoned to be only 56 per cent. of the total value of farm products. In the estimates for a long series of years this is the first crop value estimate that has fallen below 60 per cent. of the total of all products.

Celluloid Co. to Increase Stock.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Celluloid Company has been called for March 17, to authorize an increase in the capital stock from $6,000,000 to $10,098,000. There will be $3,000,000 of accumulated preferred stock and $7,098,000 of common stock in this increase.

Shattuck and Arizona Report.

The annual report of the Shattuck and Arizona Copper Company for 1920 shows gross income of $1,582,924 as compared with $1,069,098 the year before. The company reported a net operating loss of $239,115 for last year as against $186,499 in 1919.

Bucyrus Co. Shows Gain for Year.

Net earnings of the Bucyrus Company for 1920 amounted to $1,101,984, after payment of taxes and allowances for depreciation. In 1919 earnings amounted to $982,562. Directors of the company have declared an extra dividend of ½ of 1 per cent. on account of accumulated dividends on the preferred stock, and not 1¾ per cent., as reported yesterday.

Curb Seats Cost $7,500, $8,000.

Two seats of the New York Curb Market Association changed hands yesterday for $7,500 and $8,000. The first was that of W. E. Moore, sold to Clarence A. Betman, and the other that of L. M. Richmond, to James A. Cochran.

UPWARD MOVE IN GRAINS AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 3.—Sentiment in wheat and corn is much less bearish than for some time past. Investment buying of both grains has been in evidence on a small scale for several days on the breaks, and with the news of a rather bullish character the breaks have been short-lived.

Tomorrow's change in the Administration at Washington, unsettled political conditions in Europe and green bug and Hessian fly reports were mainly responsible for the buying and the advance today. The pit element was bearish on wheat early, and prices at one time were one-quarter of a cent lower than yesterday's finish on wheat, but the close was at the top, with net gains of 2½ to 2¾ cents, May leading. Corn gained ¾ to ⅞ of a cent and oats ½ cent.

There was free selling on the extreme bulge in wheat by the leading long interest, after it had bought March and sold May rather persistently early. It was also credited with selling a great deal of corn at 70⅛ cents and over for May. That the President had vetoed the Emergency Tariff bill was unknown to the majority of traders, but it may influence the market to some extent tomorrow, even though the trade has understood for some time past that it would not become a law.

Green bug reports are increasing somewhat and weather is favorable for their development. Hessian fly over the greater part of the soft Winter wheat States, as shown by official reports, holds out the prospect of damage later in the season, but it is much too early for it to develop.

Receipts of Canadian wheat at Minneapolis have fallen off, due to uncertainty regarding the tariff, but Winnipeg reported good buying today by houses that usually act for mills. Minneapolis bought cash wheat at Omaha and in the Southwest, and Buffalo was after grain in the latter section. Flour trade is reported as showing improvement. Deliveries at Kansas City today on March contracts were 25,000 bushels, while the 33,000 bushels delivered at Minneapolis yesterday went to a house that usually acts for country mills. Country offerings of all grains are very light and field work is progressing rapidly, with much plowing under way in parts of the Central West, due to the favorable weather.

Primary arivals of wheat for the day were 690,000 bushels; week ago, 978,000; 000 bushels; week ago, 654,000; last year, 406,000.

Corn receipts were 1,098,000 bushels; week ago, 1,626,000; year ago, 866,000, and shipments, 995,000; week ago, 832,000; year ago, 516,000.

Caused by Carelessness, Says Engineer After Visit to the West.

That there is a growing tendency toward carelessness in dealing with fire hazards in metal mines is the impression of Byron O. Pickard, mining engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines, who has recently made a visit to several of the mines in the West. He says the attitude may be more exactly analyzed as a feeling of immunity rather than unthinking carelessness; probably the natural result of a mine being operated for a period of several years without a serious mine fire. When candles were taken out of the mine and the carbide lamp substituted, many metal mine managers drew a sigh of relief and considered themselves free from danger of underground fires.

The occurrence of several serious mine fires during the last year should do much to disturb the equanimity of the intelligent manager and make him inspect his mine for fire hazards, says Mr. Pickard. These recent fires should start him thinking about fire proofing, fire preventing and fire fighting methods. He should realize from a study of the causes and effects of these mine fires that the danger of fires in mines is ever present; that fires start easily and unexpectedly; that fires on the surface and underground are hard to control when no arrangements have been made nor thought given to prevention or fighting; that it takes only a small fire to fill the mine with smoke and poisonous gas; that a mine fire often results in loss of life and serious losses of property; that operations are stopped sometimes for months and often for a year or more; that each manager after a fire has seen the light, vowed that never again will he be caught unprepared, and has made extensive plans for fire proofing and fire control.

During the last few years metal mine operators have had a severe struggle with economic and labor conditions, and many of the less-favored mines are operating either at a loss or on a very small margin of profit. The gold mines of the West, which are mostly either working small veins or low-grade deposits, have found it difficult or impossible to operate at a profit. Many of the copper mines ceased production soon after the war and confined their operations to the development of new ore bodies. Those copper and gold mines which continued to operate have frequently been compelled to cut costs in every possible way, and attention has been entirely given to "getting out" the ore.

Mr. Pickard says that the endeavor to reduce costs to a minimum, coupled with the feeling of immunity from fire, has resulted at various mines in the development of dangerous fire conditions. During his visit Mr. Pickard observed the following at some of the mines:

Wooden headframes; planked floors around the collar of the shaft or adit portal; one or more frame buildings in the immediate vicinity of the collar of the shaft or adit portal, oftentimes grouped about the collar; mining timbers piled in the immediate vicinity of the collar; one or more cans of oil and gasoline standing at the collar of the shaft or adit portal; one or more boxes of dynamite near the collar of the shaft or adit portal; large carbide containers left open, partly filled with carbide; pulleys and idlers in shafts permitted to run dry and hot; no attempt made to control ventilation; no fire extinguishers nor fire hose on the surface or underground; no self-contained oxygen breathing apparatus; no plans made for fire-fighting; no disaster signals; no fire doors; no fire inspection in the stopes, and no thought given to fireproofing shaft collar, shaft timbers and stations.

Mr. Pickard says: "The intent of this article is to call to the attention of metal-mine operators generally the growing danger of fire hazards and how dangerous conditions may multiply if no thought is given to the matter, so that the operator will take steps to correct such conditions and be prepared to control his fire, should he be so unfortunate as to have one start on the surface or in his mine."

Markets Display Irregular Trend—Grains Higher, With Declines in Other Staples.

The trend of cash prices for staple articles in the wholesale markets yesterday was mixed and irregular, some of the foodstuffs advancing fractionally, with slight recessions and pronounced weakness in others, particularly the metals. In the grains, wheat advanced ¼ cent, corn and oats ½ cent each per bushel, with flour unchanged. In the grocery line, coffee advanced ⅛ of a cent, sugar unchanged, and among the dairy products, butter dropped 1⅛ cents per pound, with eggs unchanged. There were no changes reported in the provision group. In the metals, iron No. 2 Philadelphia dropped $1.50, and tin, class A, 75 cents, per ton, with lead up 5 cents per 100 pounds. Others in this group were unchanged. In the textiles, spot cotton rallied, closing at an advance of 30 cents per 100 pounds, printcloths unchanged.

WORLD MARKET STERLING.

Quoted at Premium Twice as Often as at Discount.

At the beginning of February sterling sold at a substantial premium in every important market of Europe, except Amsterdam, Zurich and Stockholm, and it was also at a premium in Rio Janeiro, Montevideo and Valparaiso. The percentage premium on sterling was 14½ at Copenhagen, 114½ at Paris, 323¼ at Rome and 1,040 at Berlin.

Out of the twenty larger markets of Europe and other continents a premium on sterling was quoted in 13, a discount in 7. Of the seven markets where the exchange on London stood below parity three were in Europe, two (New York and Montreal) in North America, one (Buenos Aires) in South America and one (Yokohama) in Asia. The discount was nowhere greater than 10 per cent., except at New York, where it was 20¼, and at Yokohama, where it was 18 1-3.

COTTON PRICES RISE IN BELATED RALLY

Absence of Selling Pressure Permits Market to Hold Steady and to Advance.

There was not much to yesterday's cotton market, and while it made a net advance on the day of 25 to 30 points, the rise was neither impressive nor significant and was accomplished only because most of what may be called the regular interests were holding off pending the development of something definite abroad.

At the start there was a decline, led by December, which sold down to within a point of the previous day's low record. On this decline the late months lost 18 to 20 points, while the near months went down 5 to 10 points. At the bottom profit-taking purchases appeared and the list was rallied. It came back to about where it had left off on Wednesday, and held there for some time, but in the last hour good speculative buying came into the market and advances of 30 to 40 points were scored, and most of these late gains were maintained to the close.

Business was on a small scale throughout the day. The South did little, and this absence of the usual selling pressure was what permitted the market to hold steady and to advance in the final hour. Local interests, both Wall Street and the local commission houses, bought pretty consistently, but in very light volume, during most of the session, and when they increased their late buying prices shot forward. About all that this demonstrated, however, was that the market was very thin.

Liverpool was in about the same condition as was our market. Business there was in small volume and prices rose a little. Liverpool spots were reported to be in good demand, but the Manchester market was said to be dull and goods were pressed for sale.

First and Second Preferred Stock

OF THE

READING COMPANY:

At the hearing in Philadelphia on March 1st, the Reading Company Common Stockholders' Committee asked that changes be made in the proposed plan of segregation of the coal properties, which, if made, will seriously affect the rights accorded the First and Second Preferred stockholders under the plan as submitted to the Court.

Accordingly, the undersigned request all holders of the two classes of Preferred Stock above mentioned to forward to the Committee, if they have not already done so, their proxies to protect the interests of the holders of Preferred Stock, and particularly to endeavor to secure for the Preferred Stock equality of treatment with the Common Stock of said company, and for that purpose to intervene in the suit or proceedings, if necessary. Copies of the proxies may be obtained upon application at the office of MR. ADRIAN ISELIN, 36 Wall Street, New York City, or MR. WILLIAM A. LAW, c/o First National Bank, Philadelphia, Pa. The Committee already has received proxies from holders of about Eight Million, Eight Hundred Thousand Dollars ($8,800,000) par value of both classes of Preferred stock.

To Stockholders of American Smelting & Refining Co.

The undersigned with his associates who represent a very large number of the holders of this stock is asking for proxies to be used at the annual meeting to be held April 6th.

The purpose is to secure the election of a Board of Directors which shall be more representative of the stockholders and which shall manage and push the business of the company and conserve its large resources and revenue entirely in the interest of the real owners, the stockholders, and free from any outside dictation or interest.

The present board of 28 is made up of 4 members of the Guggenheim family and, selected by them, 22 salaried employees and 2 other stockholders. The number of shares held by the entire board is 2,444 out of 1,110,000 shares. Those now actually in control are not free from conflicting personal interests.

Stockholders are advised not to throw away their rights by giving the proxies requested by the present management, which would ratify all past actions, including not only the extraordinary ones of which mention has been made but, perhaps, many others which as yet may not even have come to the notice of the stockholders.

Full information will be supplied by and proxies may be filed with the undersigned at his office, 5001 Woolworth Building, 233 Broadway, New York. Telephone Barclay 7363.

COAL MEN DIVIDED ON CALDER MEASURE

State Association Hears Bill to Regulate Industry Praised and Denounced.

1921 PRICE DROP DOUBTED

Operator Says Reduced Demand May Result in a Shortage by Curtailing Production.

A discussion of the Calder bill to regulate the coal industry developed a marked difference of opinion among dealers who attended a regional meeting of the New York State Coal Merchants' Association at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday. The measure found almost as many friends among the coal men as it did opponents, and both sides held equally decided views.

The bill was brought up at the afternoon session when John B. Reimer, a Brooklyn coal dealer, characterized the measure as a most progressive piece of legislation. He maintained that regulation of one sort or another was necessary for the coal industry. He called attention to what he described as a drift toward Government regulation in other lines as well.

"Unfortunately the bill has been blackjacked and cooked in the Senate committee, and what is left will merely serve as statistical data," he said. He expressed surprise that no restrictive measures had been introduced in the State Legislature. High prices, he added, were not the fault of the dealers, but of the anthracite and bituminous operators.

John E. Lloyd of Philadelphia, President of the National Retail Coal Dealers' Association, was equally emphatic in his objection to the Calder measure. The Senate committee Mr. Reimer criticised, he said, was known in the Senate as a "Bolshevist" committee, and the measure had been presented to them by Senator Calder because he knew that no other committee would give it much consideration. J. L. Bacon, a Brooklyn dealer, said the Calder bill was "socialistic."

Thomas H. Watkins, President of the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Corporation, discussing the coal outlook for 1921, expressed little hope for price reductions on contract coal, in spite of the fact that the mild Winter and consequent decreased demand had caused a drop in the price of spot or demand coal to below the cost of production. The falling off in demand for soft coal has caused production to drop below weekly consumption, and the present surplus may be exhausted by next Fall, so that prices then may increase, he said.

23 COAL OPERATORS GIVE UP

INDIANAPOLIS, March 3.—Twenty-two Indiana coal operators, who are under indictment on charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust law through a conspiracy with miners and retailers to increase soft coal prices, surrendered today to Mark Storen, United States Marshal, and gave a bond of $10,000 each for their release. A Kentucky man, who operates mines in Indiana, also surrendered.

There remains eight other Indiana operators, whose counsel said that they would yield on their return to the State.

Last Minute Demand and Jobs.

The women's garment manufacturers will not count themselves as well on the road to prosperity, they say, until the situation after Easter discloses itself. Just at present, there has been a rush of last minute business, prompted by retailers who wish to complete their purchases for the Easter season, and the danger is one of overproduction by the manufacturers and the accumulation of jobs urged for sale after the present brisk buying is over. It seems probable, however, that the manufacturers will guard against this condition, or so they intend, and that production will not go much further than meeting the bona fide demand.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The annual meeting of the Silk Association of America will take place on March 23 in the offices of the association.

Hoffman & Hartblay, Inc., buyers, 117 West Thirty-third Street, have added the following accounts: The Hub, Wheeling, W. Va.; Seltner Company, Flint, Mich., and the Crescent Dry Goods Company, Pendleton, Oregon.

A beefsteak dinner was given to Hugo Stearns, President of Benj. Stearns & Co., importers and manufacturers of millinery, 29 West Thirty-third Street, by their salesmen on Wednesday evening.

Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell, auctioneers, will sell 5,000 cases of first quality men's and women's hosiery of the Ipswich Mills next Wednesday.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ..7½ to 7¾ p. c. for the best names
Wednesday .7½ to 7¾ p. c. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Late Delivery of Imported Suits.

A feature of the business being done on imported lines of men's clothing is the late delivery being accepted by buyers. The goods wanted fall chiefly in the class of sports wear, although they will probably be bought for general use. The representative of one line explained yesterday that he had received two large orders for which May shipment has been accepted. This is quite late for deliveries of the sort, and indicates that the retailers in question are counting on the development of a late business. Ordinarily the stores would only be interested in shipments of Summer goods at that time.

Price and Quality Advocates.

Quite varied views are held among representatives of the ready-to-wear trade concerning how the public is liable to receive an appeal made to them on quality or one based on price. Some manufacturers are looking forward to a continuance of the sales which have had an almost steady run since early last Autumn. Another group believes it is time to subordinate price to quality. In the advertising copy put out for dealers by various clothing and garment manufacturers, the choice of an appeal is left to the customer, though in well-advertised lines quality with price is the point emphasized.

Gray Goods Sales Again Fair.

Buyers of gray goods continued to do a fair business in this market yesterday for near-by deliveries. Sales of 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths were reported at 7 cents, while 39-inch 68-72s and 39-inch 72-76s sold at 8 and 9 cents respectively. For 39-inch 80-80s, 9½ cents was again paid. Five-yard sheetings were sold during the day at 6¼ cents and 5.50s at a cent a yard less. At the lower price of 12¾ cents, some business was put through on 39-inch 4.20-yard sateens. An interesting feature of the day was the increased demand for fine-yarn cloths, particularly voiles and carded lawns, which reflected the improved demand for these goods from the retail trade in their converted state.

It Is Dull Thursday Now.

One of the many changes that have occurred in the retail dry goods business in the last few years has been the banishing of "dull Friday" by putting on special offerings to keep customers from waiting until Saturday to do their heavy buying. In taking the dullness out of Friday, however, a dull Thursday has been developed in its place, and store executives are now wrestling with the problem of how to stimulate buying on that day without taking the snap out of Friday's trade again. What would appear to be the obvious solution of the problem—more special sales—is not desirable, it was said yesterday, for, to paraphrase an old saying, too many sales spoil the store.

Divided on Men's Wear Fabrics.

A sharp divergence of opinion is noted in the opinions held concerning the prospects for men's wear fabrics. Some sellers as well as buyers believe that, instead of improving, there is the possibility of further liquidation once Easter has been passed. Others hold, however, that values are about stabilized and that there are very good chances of some small advances from time to time in the near future. There is still no way of determining just how much surplus exists in the market, but there is some reason for believing that staples are the principal goods being carried over. Should the demand become even stronger than it is for fancies, it is quite generally felt that the market will be relieved of most of its difficulties.

Uses Eyelet Embroideries.

One of the local millinery manufacturers is offering a line of straw and fabric hats embroidered in eyelet effects. The embroidered fabric is placed over one of a contrasting color, which shows through the eyelets, and is used to make the crown. The brim is made of straw. Long, carved pins, ornaments and bows of grosgrain ribbon are favored as trimmings for these hats. Lisere and moire ribbon are combined to make "bow" hats, which this manufacturer also favors. One smart model of this type is made in navy blue with a round crown of lisere and a boat-shaped brim of dark blue moire ribbon. A huge bow of ribbon with trailing ends is set on one side of the brim.

Raw Silk Markets Steady.

The Yokohama raw silk market continues firm at unchanged prices. Cables received by H. L. Gwalter & Co., report a steady demand for high-grade coarse silks, both yellow and white, for use in this country. Early shipments for these silks are difficult to obtain, because of their scarcity. Canton also is unchanged for prompt and near-by shipments, but there is a tendency on the part of reelers to give concessions for forward deliveries in order to make way for the new crop. Due to the fluctuations of silver exchange, prices for steam filatures in Shanghai are rather irregular. The demand for those varieties is moderate. Tussahs are slightly improved in price there, and are firmly held. Coarse silks are also in demand at Milan for American account, with shipments earlier than April or May hard to get. The local market is quiet but steady.

Where the Errors Are Found.

Careful investigation of the errors made by employes of a well-known department store brought to light recently three types of mistakes that were more numerous than the others. The error most frequently found was that of entering the amounts of sales in the wrong columns of the tally card, despite the plainness of its directions. The next most frequent error consisted of failure to put the sales number on the sales check. Third in order, according to number, came the failure to print on the sales checks the initials of customers and the capital letters in their names, as is required by the store.

Dress Goods Lines Stiffen.

The announcement of sold-up and withdrawn dress goods by the American Woolen Company had the effect yesterday of stiffening up competitive lines in an appreciable manner. It is now felt that the prospect of continued good sales for next month is almost assured. April has been quite generally regarded as the critical period, and more so this season than in the past because so many men's wear mills had been placed upon the production of women's wear fabrics, chiefly tricotines. It was predicted of next month that these men's wear organizations would busy themselves with preparing for the demands of the clothiers and would close out their dress fabrics at liquidation prices. The apathy of the clothing trade and the improved state of conditions in women's wear may prevent this unsettling factor.

CLOTHING STRIKERS ACCUSED OF RIOTING

Manufacturer Reports $5,000 Damage Done by Raiders—Court Discharges 17.

Striking clothing workers who invaded the clothing plant of Rosenblatt Brothers & Greenstone, 170 Greene Street, Wednesday, did damage estimated at $5,000, Louis Rosenblatt, the senior member of the firm reported yesterday. The intruders described themselves as members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Rosenblatt said, but none of the seventeen captured by the police, produced union cards to verify their statements.

"We are a committee from the union, the spokesman announced when they were ushered into my office," Mr. Rosenblatt said. "We have been sent by the Amalgamated to pull out your workers. If they don't come out we are going to do some damage before we leave."

"When I told them my workers would refuse to be called out the striking tailors walked into the factory rooms and turned the place upside down. They put pressing machines temporarily out of business, spools were thrown in every direction, wires were cut and neat piles of finished pants were scattered about. All will have to be sorted again."

Seventeen of the strikers were arrested by policemen summoned from Police Headquarters. They were discharged by Magistrate March, in Essex Market Court. Rosenblatt said he had run his plant upon an open shop basis for eighteen years.

Harry A. Gordon, counsel of the Clothing Manufacturers' Association of New York, announced yesterday that Archibald Stevenson, who was associate counsel to the Lusk investigating committee, had been retained to commence an immediate investigation of the activities of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

"It is intended that the information to be thus obtained will be used upon the trial of the action of the J. Friendman & Co. against the Amalgamated Clothing Workers," Mr. Gordon said. Mr. Stevenson also was Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Aliens during the war, and was associated with the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice and the Military Intelligence, and engaged in the study of seditious propaganda during the war.

CALL SUES BURLESON FOR MAIL BLOCKADE

Socialist Paper Brings $500,000 Action Against Retiring Postmaster General Individually.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—A $500,000 damage suit was filed in the District Supreme Court here today by the owners of The New York Call against Postmaster General Burleson, who retires from office tomorrow. The complainant alleges Mr. Burleson's action in closing the mails to the publication on Dec. 3, 1919, caused losses in advertising and circulation before mail privileges were restored by court order last August.

S. John Block and Horace S. Whitman are attorneys for The Call, a Socialist daily newspaper published here, of which Charles W. Ervin is managing editor and the Workingmen's Co-Operative Association is the publisher. The petition in their suit, filed against Mr. Burleson individually, charges that by cancelling the second-class mailing privileges of the paper, Mr. Burleson "unlawfully, wilfully, negligently and in violation of the laws of the United States and without legal warrant or power violated the rights and privileges of the publishers of The Call."

The newspaper, according to Mr. Burleson's declaration, was among the publications that from the date of this country's entry into the war conducted "an organized propaganda to discredit and impede in every way the Government in the prosecution of the war," and which, in varying language "branded the declaration of war by our Government as a crime against the people of the United States and against the nations of the world."

On Aug. 25, 1920, Justice Hitz in the District of Columbia Supreme Court granted to the publishers of The Call a writ of mandamus directing the Postmaster General to restore the mailing privileges which had operated to prevent it from circulating outside New York City. The Court held that the Espionage act, under which the Postmaster General moved, contained no express grant of authority to the Postmaster General to exercise whatever power the act gave him by a blanket order operating in the future upon issues of a periodical publication not in existence, adding that fraud or wrongdoing never was to be presumed. The Court signed an order that such future issues of the paper as were mailable under the law should be transmitted as second-class mail matter.

The Postmaster General subsequently appealed the decision and that appeal still is pending.

SHUBERT INTERESTS BUY.

Take Over Plot Adjoining the Century Theatre.

Under the title of the Trebuhs Realty Company the Shubert theatrical interests have purchased the property at 19-21 West Sixty-second Street, running through the block to 18-20 West Sixty-third Street, adjoining the Century Theatre on Central Park West, controlled by them, either for future expansion of that playhouse, or for the erection of a new theatre.

The property fronts 50 feet on each street and is 200 feet in depth.

It has been owned for eleven years by the C. & D. Company, a holding concern, for the old Chalmers-Detroit Motor Company, which formerly occupied the six and three story buildings on the site. Originally it was the old R. M. Stivers factory.

On the west the site adjoins the theatre which Butler Davenport started to erect several years ago and recently leased by John Cort and associates. Within a few blocks, at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, the Shuberts are building a large playhouse.

CAN GERMANY PAY?

That is the question---brief in text, but stupendous in moment---that the whole world is asking to-day!

Allied chieftains, in conference at London, say what Germany CAN and MUST pay.

Germany says she cannot possibly pay the amount demanded.

THE NEW YORK HERALD has conducted a searching investigation into the conditions that actually exist in Germany.

Mr. Raymond Swing, The Herald's investigator charged with this important mission, and for whose reliability The Herald vouches, has for the last three months studied at close range the economic, social, financial and industrial conditions of Germany in all their phases. He has visited all essential parts of the country.

The results of this most important investigation will be disclosed in a series of articles to be published DAILY in THE NEW YORK HERALD, COMMENCING MONDAY, MARCH 7.

The facts and figures they will contain will furnish many surprises.

The interest they are bound to create will be international in scope.

The Subjects of the Articles to be Published Follow:

- Present Relations Between Politics and Monarchism.
- Present Relations Between Politics and Labor.
- Luxury and Present Modes of Life in Berlin.
- Living Conditions of the Poor in Berlin and Elsewhere.
- German Industry and the Coal Situation.
- Large Dividends and Their Real Meaning.
- Reorganization of the Nation's Economic Life.
- The Present Financial Situation and Prospects.

INVESTORS BUY TWO APARTMENTS

St. Nicholas Avenue House in Heights Section Figures in $350,000 Deal.

BIG DYCKMAN TRANSACTION

Two good sales of apartment houses in the upper west side area yesterday indicated a renewal of investment interest in multi-family residential property. For several weeks there has been comparatively little trading in apartment buildings, but within the last few days three or four fairly noteworthy deals have been closed.

One of yesterday's transactions involved the six-story structure on a large plot, 100 by 100 feet, at the southeast corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 177th Street, in the Fort Washington district. It was purchased by Mabel A. Dreyer from the Lusonray Realty Company. On the ground floor are seven stores, all well rented. The holding price of the property was $350,000. The brokers in the sale were O'Reilly & Dahn and H. T. Wood.

Further north, in the Dyckman section, the five-story apartment house on the southwest corner of Broadway and 207th Street was purchased by an investor from William E. Keys. The house has a frontage of 125 feet on Broadway and 100 feet on 207th Street. It was held at $275,000 and shows an annual rent roll of about $36,000. It was a cash transaction. The building was erected about five years ago by the Emerson Building Company, Just & Galardi, and was purchased by Mr. Keys soon after completion. The house has forty-five apartment suites and ten stores on the ground floor.

Byrne & Bowman were the brokers in the transaction, and they also negotiated a new first mortgage loan on the property for $135,000 to run for five years. Mr. Keys was represented in the sale by Thompson, Koss & Warren as attorneys.

The buyer of the Santa Rosa Apartments, reported a few days ago, was the Russian Church Relief Corporation. The property represented an investment of about $500,000. It is situated at 120-128 Convent Avenue, comprising the block front between 133d and 134th Streets, recently sold by Slawson & Hobbs for the Paterno & Son Contracting Company. The houses return an annual rental of about $65,000.

Tenement Investments.

Mulvihill & Co. sold to Patrick and Mary Flynn the five-story brownstone flat, 19 by 100, at 59 East 122d St., for the owners, Gussie Cohen and Rachel Demberg.

Samuel Freedman sold for the estate of Jacob Paskusz to Phillip McGuire the five-story tenement house 315 East Forty-sixth Street. The property had been in the family of the sellers for over thirty years.

The Haggstrom-Callen Company sold for Aaron Weiss and Samuel Kupperman the five-story and basement triple apartment house, size 31 by 90 by 100, at 153 West Sixty-sixth Street to a client for investment.

G. Tuoti & Co. sold for the H. M. Weill Company to a Mr. Mariani the four-story flat at 349 East 133d Street, 20 by 100.

Charles W. Eidt sold for Caroline B. Jones and Sidney Jones to Morris Silverman and Anna Wallach the five-story tenements at 344 and 346 East Fifty-eighth Street, on a plot 40 by 100.

Henry S. Kirschner and the Sherman Brokerage Company resold the six-story tenement, on plot 50 by 118 feet, at 294 and 296 East 143d Street, to Isidor Cuba.

The five-story flat at 312 West 133d Street, lot 25 by 100 feet, has been purchased by Ennis & Sinnott from Janet B. Littell. The broker was Charles E. Cathie.

The six-story tenement at 139 Orchard Street, lot 25 by 87.6 feet, held at $45,000, was sold by W. Gold to A. Goldberg and S. Lindar. The broker was M. Goldberg.

Realty Notes.

The Fencers' Club, now meeting in the French branch of the Y. M. C. A. on West fifty-fourth Street, is the buyer of the five-story building at 155 East Fifty-fourth Street, purchased by Arthur S. Lyon, a club member, from the Girls' Friendly Society.

The Town Board of North Hempstead, L. I., will consider the question of local tax exemption at a meeting to be held this afternoon in the Town Hall. A large delegation of real estate operators is planning to attend and urge the adoption of an ordinance similar to the one now in force in this city.

J. Edward Breuer of Great Neck appeared before the Town Board on Monday and contended that if the counties adjoining New York City did not enact a similar law the real estate market would be subject to unjust competition, inasmuch as the law encouraged speculative and home building.

Commercial Leases.

Stephen H. Tyng Jr. & Co., Inc., leased a floor at 130 Fifth Avenue to the Sanford Narrow Fabric Company, Inc.; also a floor at 85 Fifth Avenue to the Vogue Merchandise Company, a floor at 95 Fifth Avenue to F. Hoffman & Co., the store at 126-128 East Twenty-fifth Street to the National Glove and Silk Importing Company and a floor at 133 Fifth Avenue to Thurn, Browne & Cohen.

Ames & Co. leased for the Millbrook Realty Company the store and basement at 17 East Thirty-first Street to Kahaner & Rotter for a term of years; also the store and basement at 18 East Thirty-first Street to the Lenox Carpet Company.

Frederick Fox & Co., Inc., leased for the National City Realty Company office space in the former Hotel Manhattan property, northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-second Street, to the Eastern Electric Company.

The Charles F. Noyes Company leased the store at 116 Fulton Street for Thoelen & Lux to Francis A. Reilley and Grace V. Harwich for ten years at an aggregte rental of $125,000.

MARINE MEN READY TO FIGHT WAGE CUT

OFFICERS TO JOIN THE MEN

Workers Will Combat Effort to End Eight-Hour Day and Curtail Their Allowances.

The Executive Council of the Atlantic and Gulf Coast District of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, at the close of a two-day conference in the Hotel Marlborough, announced yesterday that plans had been adopted to resist a proposed wage cut of 25 per cent. by the steamship owners. The plans were not made known, but it was said that the unions pnopose to fight any modification of the present agreement, which expires on May 1. Support of the 17,000 members in this district was pledged by the Executive Council. An assessment, it was said, would be levied to carry on the fight.

The newly formed American Ocean Licensed Officers' Association, created for the purpose of co-ordinating activities in combating any deviation from the existing contracts, will meet this afternoon at 1 o'clock in the rooms of the Neptune Association, 21 Park Row. The wage cut proposal will be considered.

The Executive Council of the Marine Engineers yesterday adopted resolutions in which it was set forth that there was nothing in existing economic conditions to warrant a cut or revision of working conditions. The resolution provided that "each member be instructed to continue as heretofore, doing all within his power to operate the ships upon which he is employed in the most economical manner possible, thereby demonstrating clearly the contention of economic manner possible.

In the preamble to the resolutions the Executive Council said that "the steam vessel interests have, through the press and other means, informed the marine engineers employed in the ships operating from the Atlantic and Gulf Coast districts that they were contemplating putting into effect not only a large reduction in their salaries, but that they were also going to take away from them the principles of the eight-hour day, thereby increasing their hours of labor aboard ships, and make a reduction in their subsistence allowance, and are going to take away the privilege of a night off at the termination of a voyage."
